upon what a Title to Real Estate depends? Upon volumes of decisions of the Courts which have to be considered and applied. These are often at variance one with another, but our Law Department, which is unequalled anywhere, can usually arrive at correct decisions. UNTERMYER RIDICULES THE TRUESDALE REPORT

"FARCICAL AND INSINCERE"

Believes There Are Depths of Insurance Corruption Under a Surface Only Scratched So Far.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Policy Holders' Committee of the Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies, does not take the report of the Truesdale Committee, published yesterday, any too seriously. He made these comments on the findings of the committee:

"I have read the latest installment of the expensive and overworked press bureau of the insurance companies. The New York Life was last heard from, but its explanation was punctured by Hamilton's revelations, and now comes Mr. Perkins, the real head and front of the New York Life, who, to protect himself, asserts that the members of his Finance Committee knew all about the campaign contributions.

"The farcical and insincere character of these performances becomes more and more apparent as each chapter is issued. The policy holders are not so easily misled as some gentlemen seem to imagine, nor are their memories quite so short.

"Mr. Truesdale was a member of the Agency Committee of the Mutual Life, which was charged with the duty of supervising these contracts, while Messrs. McCurdy, Thébaud, and company were drawing millions from the company over a period of years.

"While this so-called report is loud in its denunciations of those who have already been excoriated and exposed by the Armstrong Committee, (which received no aid or comfort from Mr. Truesdale or his associates,) it is as strangely silent as to the responsibility of the Agency Committee as was the Fowler report concerning the liability of the Finance Committee.

"All these belated 'exposures' of the evils of which we already know, in spite of the attempts of these gentlemen to suppress the fact, serve only to emphasize the urgent need for a genuine investigation of these companies by managements that are in no way responsible for the continuance, through all these years, of conditions of which we are just beginning to learn the opening chapters.

"One cannot contemplate without dread the depths of corruption that must underlie the surface that has only begun to be scratched.

"The companies have exacted through all these years such exorbitant premiums and have returned so little that their solvency is put remotely beyond question, so that they can well endure the strain. But it must now be apparent to all that there can be no genuine reform until the past is known and the responsibility distributed where it belongs. The efforts to shift all the blame upon the shoulders of the already discredited and deposed officers ought not and will not succeed.

"For almost a year after the Equitable troubles were in the public eye these gentlemen sat idly by, not daring to go through even the form of an investigation. It is too late now to befog the public mind or to keep out the light.

"By the way, I see it is now not only admitted but asserted by way of defense in the Perkins habeas corpus proceedings that while Mr. Perkins was civilly liable for the campaign contribution of 1904, he ought not to be held criminally liable because the members of his Finance Committee were aware of the contribution and approved of it.

"How comes it that Mr. Perkins and his associates on that committee did not sue themselves instead of trying to divert attention by filing suits against the irresponsible estate of their dead President? Perhaps they did not know that they knew of its contributions when they virtuously directed the beginning of those suits.

"This fairly illustrates what the policy holders may expect from this sort of 'housecleaning.' The sooner we have an end of all this claptrap the better it will be for all concerned, including the reputations of the gentlemen who are conducting the performance."

SAVED JUST AS SHE FAINTED.

Many persons who were walking along the west drive, Prospect Park, in Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, saw Ira Serris, a mounted policeman, stop a frightened horse and rescue a young woman who had fainted.

The young woman was Miss Florence Howard of 129 Walworth Street. She was riding a spirited horse, which took fright at a passing automobile. The animal dashed up the drive with Miss Howard clinging to the bridle. The policeman followed. Just as his horse breasted the frightened animal Serris saw the young woman drop forward. He caught her, and then grabbed the bridle of the runaway, allowing his own reins to drop and guiding his own horse with his knees. After a short run Serris was able to stop both horses.

Miss Howard was resuscitated by the policeman. She declined to be treated by a physician, and was sent home in a carriage.

NO MORE BRIDGES.

Contractor Says He'll Build Three Tunnels for the Price of One Bridge.

A plan whereby no more bridges across the East and North Rivers would be built and tunnels sixty feet wide would be substituted has been proposed to Mayor McClellan and the Rapid Transit Board by D. D. McBean, the contractor who built the subway tunnel under the Harlem River. Mr. McBean said last night at the Waldorf-Astoria that he was prepared to bid for the construction of such tunnels and to take the contracts and build them at that width.

"With the plan I have worked out," he said, "I can build three tunnels for less than it would take to bridge the East River. My scheme is to do away with expensive approaches by building tunnels that will be entered and left by the use of large elevators. All kinds of traffic can be sent under the river in this manner and with my plan of tunneling under water, such as I used in the Harlem River, I can as easily build tunnels sixty feet wide as thirty.

"To build these tunnels will cost about $2,000 a foot. They will be of greater permanent value than bridges, will last indefinitely and can be rebuilt from within. There is no reason for rat-hole tunnels. My tunnels are built with low curving roofs, not in circular form. They are put down in sections, their bulkheads removed, the sections riveted together and there you are at the bottom of the river as dry as you are in this room."

While Mr. McBean does not know how his plan will be regarded by the Rapid Transit Board, he says that the city will have to come to it some day or other.

HUMAN AIRSHIP A FAILURE.

But He Made a Sincere Trial—He's at Bellevue Now.

Policeman Abraham Frunkin of the Old Slip Station was standing under the elevated structure at the Battery early yesterday afternoon when he was approached by a short, swarthy man, who said:

"I'm an airship. Stand here a few minutes and see me fly." Frunkin was aware that yesterday was the 1st of April. So he told the speaker to go ahead and fly.

Five minutes later he was astonished to see a man gayly skipping along the ties overhead in his direction. When he arrived directly overhead of the policeman, the man flapped his arms and jumped off.

He landed on the pavement at the policeman's feet, bruised, not much hurt, and apparently astonished at his failure. Frunkin called Dr. Merrill of the Hudson Street Hospital. After a short examination the man was pronounced insane, and was removed to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital.

BENEFITS JEWISH CHILDREN.

Bill Provides for Commitments to Homes of Their Own Religionists.

A delegation of Jews will go to Albany this week to attend a hearing on the bill introduced by Assemblyman Max Eckmann providing that the Commissioner of Charities, in indenturing, placing out, or committing any child in New York City shall, when possible, send it to a family or institution of the same religion as the child's parents.

The primary intent of the bill is to provide that Jewish children shall be placed in Jewish families or Jewish institutions. A special clause has for some time provided that Catholic children committed should be sent only to Catholic institutions. In Greater New York there are four institutions for committed children; and there is soon to be built a large orphanage for them in Hawthorne, near Yonkers.

Mr. Eckmann asked the State Board of Charities about the number of Jewish children in non-Jewish institutions last year. Acting Secretary Robert W. Hill answered that in the year ended Sept. 30, 1905, 655 Jewish children were admitted to institutions managed by Hebrews in Greater New York, while 704 Jewish children were received in non-Jewish institutions.

Non-Jewish institutions which cared for Jewish children and the number of such children in the year ended last September are:

Convent of Mercy, Brooklyn, 9; Industrial School Association, Brooklyn 13; Nursery and Child's Hospital, New York City, 24; Society for Aid of Friendless Women and Children, Brooklyn, 5; New York Catholic Protectory, 296; New York Foundling Hospital, 12; Misericordia Hospital, 1; New York Juvenile Asylum, 100; Institution of Mercy, 2; St. Agatha's Home, 1; St. Joseph's Home, 1; St. Mary's Maternity and Infant Home, Brooklyn, 2; Brooklyn Children's Aid Society, 11; Brooklyn Nursery and Infant's Hospital, 15; Dominican Convent of Our Lady of the Rosary, 5; Five Points House of Industry, 47; Missionary Sisters, Third Order of St. Francis, 8; Nursery and Child's Hospital (Castleton), 13; Orphan Asylum, Brooklyn 3; Sheltering Arms Nursery, 2; New York Infant Asylum, 139.

The Eckmann bill has a clause specifying that it shall take effect immediately. It has been read once and referred to the Committee on Cities.

THE SKIPPER'S MODEL LOG.

Capt. Burnett's Deep-Sea Pen Tells of Storm That Hit the Hudson.

The British steamship Hudson, in yesterday from China, Japan, and East Indian ports, ran into a terrific hurricane on March 10. The vessel sustained much damage to her plates, decks, and lifeboats. The skipper of the Hudson is Capt. Burnett, and he has been known as the writer of the most entertaining log to be found on the seven seas. Here is the story of the hurricane in his own words:

"Tuesday, March 11, latitude 32.37, longitude 39.40, the wind developed a fierce gale from the N. N. W., with a very high sea running with squalls of hurricane force. At 10 o'clock shipped a heavy sea amidships, which swept over the saloon chart room and the lifeboats at the after-end of the bridge. The starboard lifeboat was torn from its lashings, smashing it against an iron ventilator. All the doors on the starboard side were stove, and the bridge deck started.

"The lifeboat was secured with great difficulty, owing to the high force of the wind. Oil was used through the starboard waste pipes, and thereafter no heavy seas came aboard abaft the bridge on the weather side. At 11 o'clock a wall of sea water struck the steamer on her starboard bow, bending in the two upper plates for a length of twenty feet, stove all the forecastle ports, and started the forecastle deck. The steam pipe coverings were torn away, and considerable damage was caused to deck fittings.

"The impact of the giant sea was terrific. It felt and looked as if the fore part of the vessel was torn away, and nothing could be seen forward for spray and rushing water.

"The sea continued to be very heavy, and blew with hurricane force at midnight. Then the gale gradually moderated, and finally turned into rain on the 11th and 12th."

No Money for Topographers.

The Topographical Bureau of the Borough of Queens is likely to go to pieces this week. The 175 attachés did not receive their salary checks on Saturday, and inquiries at the office of Controller Metz brought forth the statement that there was no money to the credit of the bureau, so salaries could not be paid. The bureau is in Long Island City, and is engaged in officially mapping the borough.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS FEAR HEARST AS A FOE

Pressing the Recount Bill as a Means of Balking Him.

IT IS LIKELY TO BE PASSED

Republicans Would Be Satisfied Whatever the Result of the Recount—Hearst Men Worried.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Roosevelt wants it—Odell wants it—Higgins wants it; that, in brief, is the situation relative to the Raines-Murphy Recount bill. The Republican leaders are unanimous in holding that William R. Hearst is likely to be too dangerous a factor for the Governorship for the Republicans to leave anything undone to weaken him. The enactment of the Recount bill and seating of Hearst in the Mayor's chair is believed at present to be the most available weapon. It is not that the Republican leaders have no use for McClellan, but that they have less for Hearst.

There is an opinion among many Republican leaders that Hearst is making such headway that he may capture the regular Democratic organization. They are fearful that with him as the Independence League Democratic candidate nothing could prevail against him. While they know that thousands of Democrats would bolt him and either vote for the Republican candidate or not at all, they also realize that thousands of Republicans would support him.

The Republican leaders figure that to enact the Recount bill is most desirable, as the opponents have everything to gain and absolutely nothing to lose. They hold that if the recount shows Hearst defeated he will, in their opinion, be unable to pose as a martyr—a sacrifice to Tammany ingenuity and trickery. If he succeeds McClellan, they declare, he will not attempt to run for Governor; will feel bound to serve out his term, as he promised during the campaign.

None of the Hearst leaders have said that their chief would serve out the four-year term if he should be declared elected. It is known that Hearst is doing nothing toward obtaining McClellan's seat and, in fact, his emissaries here are disposed to view any move in that direction as a blow at their plans.

New York has had three-cornered fights for Governor before. In 1848 Hamilton Fish, as candidate of the Whigs, was indebted to a split among the Democrats for his election. In 1854 Horatio Seymour was defeated by Myron H. Clark because thousands of Democrats favored the temperance and "free soil" platform upon which Clark, the Whig candidate, was running. In 1879 Lucius Robinson was defeated by Alonzo B. Cornell as the price of having offended John Kelly, who nominated himself as the Tammany Hall candidate and polled just enough votes to beat the regular candidate.

The Recount bill is due to come up in the Assembly this week. A long fight is expected, but that it will pass is not doubted. Palmer, the Democratic leader, and La Fetra, Charles F. Murphy's personal representative, have served notice that they are opposed to it. That the Senate will also act favorably there can be little doubt. And that the measure will receive the signature of Governor Higgins there is less doubt.

Certain corporations are very desirous that the bill fail of enactment, for they view with dismay the possibility of Hearst becoming Mayor. Also many conservatives of both parties are sincerely desirous of having the bill defeated. But the Republicans, who think first of victory, and who also happen to be possessed of all the power, do not care about the menace argument.

ARREST FOR PRUNING TREES.

Ruf Planted Them Himself, but He Had No Permit.

Herman Ruf of 1,965 Clinton Avenue planted one or two trees in front of his house a few years ago, and since then he has taken great pride in them.

Saturday afternoon he thought the time of year had come when a little pruning would approve their appearance. While he was trimming them he was arrested, and yesterday was arraigned before Magistrate Breen in the Westchester Police Court on a charge of pruning trees without a permit.

After listening to a lecture from the Court, he was discharged, but was told that in future he must not prune trees, even if he planted them himself, when the trees are on the public sidewalk.

Gov. Winthrop Here on a Summons.

Gov. Beekman Winthrop of Porto Rico was among the arrivals from San Juan on the steamship Coamo yesterday. Gov. Winthrop said that he had been summoned to Washington to appear before the House Committee on Insular Affairs in relation to Porto Rican questions. Beyond this the Governor had nothing to say at present.

Suicide's Bullet Failed.

A thin, shabbily dressed man, who said he was Joseph Schwartz, a homeless laborer, attempted suicide by shooting himself on a bench in Central Park, at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, early yesterday morning. He aimed badly, and the bullet was deflected by his skull, after making a severe scalp wound. In Flower Hospital the surgeon revived Schwartz. He wouldn't say why he wanted to kill himself.

Women Teachers Want Equal Pay.

The women teachers of the city have organized and are about to present to the Board of Education a petition to have the salary schedules arranged without regard to the sex of teachers. As they regard their services as quite as satisfactory as those given by the men, they feel that in justice to them the compensation should be the same.

WOMAN ANARCHIST CALLS OUR FLAG A SHAM

Violent Speeches Made to Reds in Memory of Johann Most.

DIATRIBES IN FIVE TONGUES

Orators Denounce The Times, Modern Civilization, and the Police—Emma Goldman Among the Speakers.

The Grand Central Palace was crowded yesterday afternoon with Anarchists and sympathizers gathered to commemorate the life of the late Johann Most.

Lucy Parsons, widow of Albert Parsons, one of the executed Chicago Anarchists, was present, having journeyed from Illinois to be at the meeting and speak in tribute to the dead Anarchist. The speakers were many and of many languages. Each of them aimed a part of his oratory at THE TIMES in response to a recent editorial on Most and his life. THE TIMES was berated in Hebrew, Yiddish, German, Italian, and English.

Red banners, red feathers in red hats of many women, red neckties and red badges for the men and the blue coats of more than a hundred policemen under Inspector Walsh gave color to the assemblage. The reporters were denounced as the hirelings of the capitalistic element.

Abraham Isaacs presided, and in his opening address made the first attack on THE TIMES, declaring that it was the only paper that dared insinuate against the sincerity and honesty of Most's motives and that it had "insinuated that Most should have been shot down in the streets."

"Most loved justice and truth," he declared, "and for no other reason he was hounded and persecuted. Had he lived 2,000 years ago he would have been crucified. As it was he got only ten years in prison."

Emma Goldman There, Too.

Emma Goldman, wearing a black gown, bare-headed, and bare-throated, followed Max Boginsky, who spoke in German. She too denounced the press.

"Never a man was so shamefully hounded by the representatives of the robbers and thieves as was Most," she declared. "Their work knows no limit when it comes to misrepresenting an idea. They have done all they could to misrepresent Most's ideas, but they still live. They also misrepresented the man when they failed to kill his ideas. They represented him as the wildest of beasts, in pictures and articles, using lies, infamous lies.

"The ruling powers may think they can now rest in peace because he is dead, but although he is dead this great meeting shows that his ideas live. A time will come when we will gather to celebrate our freedom and there will be no officers in blue coats and brass buttons around us."

After a speech in Yiddish, Comrade Kelley spoke. He denounced THE TIMES and informed the audience of the birth of a new Anarchistic magazine called "Mother Earth," published by Emma Goldman and edited by Max Boginsky. Lucy Parsons referred to the bomb throwing in Chicago as "an explosion which rent this capitalistic country."

"In 1883 it required more courage to say 'I am an Anarchist' than it does in 1906," she declared. "But Most had the courage to say it then, and to declare that he was a friend of those men who were being hounded to the gallows. In America, the land of the free and the home of the slave, the flag which invites the immigrant fleeing from tyranny and oppression to a place of refuge tells a brazen lie, because here they imprison men for telling the truth. If the founders of this republic had been made of such contemptible stuff as Americans are made of to-day there would have been no republic."

Compliments for Policemen, Too.

She referred to the policemen as the "vile hirelings of the capitalistic spirit personified in a club and a few brass buttons."

"They hated Most," she said, "because he tore the veil of hypocrisy from Society with ruthless hand and said to the proleteriat 'look behind the veil and see the devils bred in hell with hearts of stone.' If he had said our McCurdys, and Perkinses, and the Standard Oil push were elegant gentlemen he would have been called an elegant gentleman himself. But he called them thieves and liars. That was his crime, and that is our crime.

"We have burned our bridges behind us. I despise the civilization which sends 1,700,000 children to work in the factories. But the spirit of liberty is abroad. There never has been a time when there was so much unrest in the world, and from this unrest will be born the sturdy child of liberty."

Editor S. Yanovsky of the Free Workmen's Voice reviewed Most's life and the principles of Anarchy. He spoke in Yiddish. Pietro de Estavi spoke in Italian. For all of the speeches there was abundant cheering.

The collection baskets had to be passed several times to cover the expenses of the meeting. The Chairman announced that $347.93 and three gold rings were collected on the first tour. After paying $350 expenses it was hoped to get a sum of money to add to a fund for the education of Most's children.

The audience sang "Die Arbeitsmänner," written by Most, demanding it over and over again. The playing of the "Marseillaise" stirred the crowd, while the funeral march by Chopin made many women weep.

Prof. Beckwith to Rest.

The Trustees of the General Seminary, Chelsea Square, the official theological school of the Episcopal Church, have accepted the resignation of the Rev. Ibson Thaddeus Beckwith, Professor of the Literature and Interpretation of the New Testament. An official of the seminary said yesterday that Prof. Beckwith's health is not of the best. He is to take a long rest, it is said, and will devote some time to literary work.

HER SAVINGS GONE IN A FIRE.

Hard Plight of a Polish Girl Who Had Deprived Herself for Her Parents.

Bertha Lipschy, a young Polish woman, spent most of yesterday searching the ruins of the fire which on Saturday destroyed several tenements in Avenue D, Bayonne. The girl had lived in one of the houses. By hard work and by depriving herself of all but the necessities of life she had managed to save $850, which she kept in a trunk in her room. She had planned to return to Poland when her fortune reached $1,000, and provide a home for her aged parents.

When the police and firemen hustled the tenants out of the blazing buildings the girl was compelled to flee. She thought of her money when she reached the street, and only force prevented her from rushing back into the building.

No trace of the trunk has been found.

Jail for Hitting Police Captain.

A sentence of six months in the Kings County Penitentiary was imposed by Magistrate Furlong, in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, yesterday, on the panhandler, John J. Head, who attacked Police Captain Pinkerton of the Bedford Avenue Station in the latter's home, at 25 Fillmore Place, on Saturday morning because the Captain refused to give him money. None of the wealthy friends with whom Head said he once worked side by side was present in court to help him.

MITCHELL IN NEW YORK FOR COAL CONFERENCE

Operators Say There Is No Excuse for High Prices.

PLAN TO FIGHT ROBBINS

The advance guard of Mitchell's Anthracite Miners' Committee of Seven, consisting of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers himself, President Nicholls of Anthracite District No. 1, J. T. Dempsey, Secretary of the same district, and John Fahy, President of District No. 9, arrived at the Ashland House last night. The Committees of Seven of the operators and miners will meet at noon to-day in the Jersey Central Building, 143 Liberty Street.

The repeated assertions on the part of the coal dealers that anthracite was scarce and that the reason the price of domestic anthracite was advanced was because the sales agents of the companies were not filling the orders, were declared yesterday to be unfounded by the operators, who, however, say they will not allow dealers to accumulate large stocks for speculative purposes. On behalf of the operators' committee of seven, a statement was issued which read in part:

"The coal operators are doing their utmost to secure an even distribution of the supply of coal now on hand. The price of freight has not been raised, no charge whatever is being made for the cost the operators have incurred for the storage of coal, and the price free on board and 'alongside' is exactly the same to-day as it has been for months past.

"There is no excuse for raising the price of coal, and the operators are doing everything in their power to prevent it. There is no reason for the public being inconvenienced by the existing strike. The operators have stored a very large quantity of coal against just such an emergency as has arisen, and this coal will be distributed with as great regard as possible to the demands of legitimate consumers."

When coal dealers saw this statement, they declared with some indignation that it was preposterous to say there was no excuse for raising the prices of anthracite. Orders were filled so slowly that domestic sizes, they said, were at a premium. To supply customers, dealers had to buy from speculators who had prepared for a strike.

"We have been treated outrageously by the operators," said Alfred L. Barber of Alfred Barber's Sons, at 377 Water Street.

"They gave us the assurance that there would be no trouble at the mines until April 15. Yet three weeks ago they stopped shipping coal here and began seizing all the loaded cars along their lines."

J. Samuel Smoot, Commissioner of the Coal Dealers' Association, had this to say:

"The operators are telling the truth when they say prices are the same, but for three days last week no coal was loaded at the mines to be shipped to dealers here, while the consumption from our yards went on at the same high rate."

He said that every dealer who wanted to buy coal for his customers had to get it at 50 cents increase in prices from other dealers who stocked up for the present emergency. They had kept coal stored on barges. The freight rate from Jersey City to the Manhattan and Brooklyn docks, he said, was doubled. The independent operators, on account of slow deliveries by the companies, had been advancing prices for weeks.

FIGHT ROBBINS AND MINERS.

Ohio Coal Operators Combining for a War to a Finish.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 2.—The Ohio coal operators are planning a finish fight not only with the miners, but with the Pittsburg Coal Company, whose President, Francis L. Robbins, is accused of betraying confidence and of "turning tail and running." Forty Ohio operators met here to-day and called a meeting of all the operators of Ohio for this city next Friday. As the men who assembled here to-day represent a majority of the operators of the State their sentiments presage what probably will be done at Friday's conference.

In their fight with the Pittsburg Coal Company the Ohio operators will have the aid of the J. Pierpont Morgan interests. J. H. Winder of Columbus, representing the interests in Ohio, is in Charleston lining up the operators of West Virginia. The men at to-day's conference declared they would have the support of the operators of Illinois and Indiana.

The Ohio operators plan to place their affairs in the hands of a large committee which would have practically unlimited authority to fight the strikers and accept such agreement as may be satisfactory to the companies. This committee would work with similar committees from Indiana and Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 2.—The mining situation in this district to-night is decidedly mixed. Although the Pittsburg Coal Company and eight independent concerns to-day signed the scale agreeing to give the 5.55 per cent. advance, Patrick Dolan, who is resisting deposition as President, notified the local unions in the district this evening not to go to work until they got instructions from headquarters. As a result his followers, or about half the men employed in the mines for which the scale was signed, will not go in to-morrow, and they declare they will take the other men out with them and tie up

MR. STORER'S ODD POSITION.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

VIENNA, April 2.—The diplomatic situation resulting from the return of Mr. Storer to Vienna may be recommended to the attention of writers of satirical farce. The Foreign Office can communicate only with Mr. Storer, who is still the accredited Ambassador, while Washington can communicate only with First Secretary Rives, whom it placed in charge until the arrival of Mr. Storer's successor.

Mr. Storer and the First Secretary, who is recognized to have behaved with great delicacy and tact in an exceedingly difficult situation, sit therefore day by day under the same roof and embody a dead-lock.

This dead-lock precludes any such solution as a letter of recall by cable. Assuming the improbability that the Austro-Hungarian Government would sanction a telegraphed letter, the United States Government knows only Mr. Rives, to whom such a letter would presumably be addressed, but the Austro-Hungarian Government knows only Mr. Storer, to whom the letter could not be delivered pending the arrival of the new Ambassador. The dead-lock seems likely to continue.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The State Department has no disposition to make any issue with the Austrian Government over the status of Mr. Storer. It has arranged to have Mr. Francis, the newly qualified Ambassador, present the letters of recall of Mr. Storer, and the former, in deference to the wishes of the department, will sail on the 22d inst. from New York.

In the meantime, in view of the fact that there is little or no business of a diplomatic nature requiring prompt treatment at Vienna, it is regarded as immaterial whether or not Mr. Rives is recognized as Chargé.

MRS. DUDLEY ASKS $100,000.

Seeks Damages from Mrs. Vanderpoel for Loss of Husband's Love.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 2.—Mrs. Marie Dudley, wife of a Philadelphia lawyer, who is equally well known to New York society, has sued Mrs. Elizabeth Battelle Vanderpoel of Saugerties, N. Y., for $100,000 for alienation of her husband's affections, and the case is on the calendar of the term of the Supreme Court which opened here this afternoon.

Until the case was called this afternoon the only intimation of the Dudley-Vanderpoel differences was the announcement last November that Mrs. Dudley had sued her husband for a divorce and named Mrs. Vanderpoel as co-respondent, which statement Mrs. Vanderpoel then indignantly denied.

According to a statement made in open court by Mrs. Dudley's attorney, Carroll Whitaker of Saugerties, the ramifications of the case extend not only to American cities, but to some of the principal cities of Europe and to China. Mrs. Vanderpoel divides her time between her Summer home, Meadowside, on the banks of the Hudson River, at Saugerties, N. Y., and New York City. At present she is in New York, where she has been spending the Winter.

Mrs. Vanderpoel's husband died several years ago. She obtained a divorce from him, and later he settled Meadowside and $125,000 in cash and securities upon her.

MUTUAL LIFE RESIGNATIONS.

Several Predicted as a Result of the Truesdale Report.

It was learned yesterday that members of the Committee on Expenditures of the Mutual Life Insurance Company had expressed a good deal of indignation at the way in which that committee was singled out for particular censure in the report of the Truesdale Investigating Committee, which was made public on Saturday. As a result some further resignations from the Mutual's board are looked for.

The members of the Expenditures Committee are Robert Oliphant, Chairman; James C. Helden, and Charles E. Miller. Mr. Helden is Senior Trustee of the Mutual Life and is President of the National Safe Deposit Company, which has offices in the Mutual Building and is controlled by men who were close to the old Mutual administration. Mr. Miller is a lawyer. He has been in ill-health for some time.

Coupled with the reports of coming resignations were others that the Second and Third Vice Presidents of the Mutual would soon resign. Their work also came in for censure by the Truesdale Committee, that of Second Vice President Lloyd on the ground that he performed merely nominal duties, and that of Third Vice President Fonda on the theory that he was responsible for the lax way in which the home office building of the company has been run. It was said in their behalf that they did not intend to resign at present.

HURT WHERE FATHER DIED.

Tobins, Both Firemen, Were Injured in Same House Seven Years Apart.

Three alarms were sent in soon after daybreak yesterday morning for a fire which wrecked the three upper floors of the five-story building at 308-310 West Fifty-ninth Street. In fighting the blaze Fireman John Tobin narrowly escaped death. The other firemen recalled that young Tobin's father, Capt. Edward Tobin, was killed in a fire in the same building in 1899. Twenty-three other firemen were injured at the same time.

A stairway gave way while young Tobin was mounting it yesterday, and he fell several feet. He was unconscious when picked up and carried from the reach of the flames. Upon being revived he insisted on returning to work. The fire was out in an hour, with a loss of $20,000.

The building, which was occupied by two motor car concerns and a physical culture school, is in the rear of the Majestic Theatre; but a fire wall prevented the spread of the flames to the theatre building.

QUICKSAND ENGULFS TRACKS.

ASHTABULA, Ohio, April 2.—A section of track 150 feet in length on the Franklin Division of the Lake Shore Road, near Hadley, Penn., suddenly sank into the ground late last night, and traffic on the line was tied up to-day.

It is supposed that quicksand caused the trouble. The disappearance of the track was discovered just in time to flag a fast passenger train, which was nearing the spot.

MR. GUGGENHEIM TELLS VAST PLANS FOR ALASKA

Investors to Build Railroads, Smelters, and Towns.

TO MINE GOLD BY WHOLESALE

The Territory Is Now a Rich Man's Camp, He Says—Undeveloped Coal Mines Near By.

The Guggenheim copper interests, which during three generations in the industry have grown to be among the largest in the country, contemplate the development of the Alaskan mineral fields on a scale larger than anything that has been undertaken in the States.

THE TIMES printed yesterday morning a dispatch from Tacoma, Washington, which told of purchases by Guggenheim companies in the Klondike district. The properties acquired, according to the Tacoma dispatch, covered practically all of the alluvial gold deposits in the famous Bonanza Creek district, where the first rich strikes of the early gold rush were made.

Daniel Guggenheim was asked by a TIMES reporter yesterday to tell something of his plans for this, the first entrance of Guggenheim capital into gold mining.

Alaska, Mr. Guggenheim said, would become, he thought, the greatest mineral producing part of United States territory. The reports of competent engineers show immense copper districts, and iron and coal are also plentiful. The country's geographical situation, however, makes it very difficult of development, and the mineral fields will require very heavy expenditures of capital for their development. For this reason, Mr. Guggenheim said, Alaska is a rich man's camp.

Even in the gold fields the days are past when a miner with his pick and washing pan could pick up a small fortune.

"After the forty-niners left the gold-bearing streams of California seemingly worked out," said Mr. Guggenheim, "modern apparatus was employed in the same territory and took many times more gold out of the country than that which made the millionaires of the early days.

"The newest dredging and hydraulic apparatus makes it possible to work at a profit gravels which yield no more than 6 cents to the cubic yard. The known fields of Alaska are in very much the same condition in which the forty-niners left California. The day has now come for the steam dredge and hydraulic operations requiring the investment of millions of capital in building reservoirs, canals, and sluiceways. Alaska has yielded more than $100,000,000 in gold under almost primitive methods. With scientific development the fields will give up many times that amount."

The Guggenheim interests have several large dredges in course of construction for use on the Alaskan waterways. The higher-lying gold fields will be worked by hydraulic monitor operations, and plans are under way to develop the necessary water power, which the Guggenheims already control on Bonanza Creek.

The copper-mining operations contemplated by the Guggenheim interests have not been formulated as yet with sufficient definiteness to admit of discussion in detail.

"Alaska is a new country," said Mr. Guggenheim. "I should like to be one of those to bring it to its destined place in American affairs. It is not altogether a matter of money; there is some sentiment in an enormous undertaking of this sort.

Railroads, Smelters, Towns.

"We want to go into the territory and build railroads and smelters and mining towns and bring men there and populate the country where it is habitable, and do for it what the earlier figures in American railroad building did for sections of the great West.

"Some of the copper districts of Alaska have already been prospected, and sections, the Copper River, for instance, have seen some development. But the mines in that country cannot be worked until railroads have put them within reach of the seacoast and until smelters and concentrating plants are in the field to turn the ore into metal for its economical transporation to the consumer.

"If the plans we have made tentatively for the building of a road into the Copper River district go through the American Smelting and Refining Company will build works at some point on the coast, probably Valdez.

"There are valuable coal deposits in Alaska, the engineers say, which may be depended upon to furnish cheap fuel. These mines have not been developed, however, and if they should fall short of expectations California fuel oil will be used in the reducing works.

"What Alaska most needs now is a stable government. The development is bound to come. The United States could not help the West more than by doing all that is possible to hasten the building up of Alaska. It is the country that will have to depend upon the States for practically all the necessaries of life, and the faster it grows the faster the commerce of the Pacific ports will increase."

Plans Are Immediate.

That the Guggenheim plans are immediate is borne out by the fact that Daniel Guggenheim's eldest son, M. Robert Guggenheim, who has just returned from a honeymoon abroad, will start within thirty days for San Francisco, where he will take up the work of expediting the Alaskan project, and at the same time supervise the building of a large smelting works at St. Bruno Point, outside of San Francisco. Young Mr. Guggenheim is a graduate of the Columbia School of Mines, and has had practical training for two years in the American Smelting and Refining Company's plant at Perth Amboy.

In his excursion through the Far West Mr. Guggenheim had many opportunities of sounding the extent of the country's prosperity. He said that he found the Western cities doing more business than they have ever known and making bigger profits. But in the silver States, he said, there were grumblings against the Government for its attitude in the matter of silver coinage.

"The silver men think that the Treasury Department is not giving them a square deal," he said. "It refuses to buy silver bullion for subsidiary coinage, and Secretary Shaw, they say, is advocating the proposed law permitting the recoining of worn-down silver dollars instead of supplying the constant demand for new small coins by purchases of bullion in the open market. The Westerners attribute to our Government's policy in this matter the recent decision of the German Treasury to convert its silver thalers into small coin, substituting paper in their circulation for the heavy silver."

He thought that there was some justice in the contentions of the silver men that the Government's action in refusing to buy silver for coinage purposes was a bad example to Europe and Mexico. He predicted that if the Treasury Department of this country and of Germany bought their silver for subsidiary coinage in the open market the price of the metal would advance perhaps 10 per cent. or more.

Outside of the plaints of the silver miner, Mr. Guggenheim found only one flaw in the situation in the West, and that was the scarcity of labor.

"If Horace Greeley's advice to the young man to go West were ever sound," Mr. Guggenheim said, "it is sound now. The opportunities for labor of all classes in the West to-day are unexampled. All industry in the West is handicapped for want of workmen.

"In fact, it would seem that Chinese labor is coming to be a necessity at least in the lower grades of employment in the West.

MISSOURI MAY SEIZE MINES.

Gov. Folk Says They Will Be Leased or Confiscated, if Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 2.—Gov. Folk of Missouri, who attended a banquet at the Iowa Democratic Club to-night, made the following statement:

"Arrangements have already been made in the event of the coal strike becoming effective in Missouri for the State to lease the coal mines. The mines, if necessary, will be operated by the State, and the penitentiary and all State institutions will be supplied. The men in these mines will be paid under the scale of 1903.

"In Missouri the mines are a necessity to us. If we could not get coal we would have to turn our prisoners and inmates of State institutions out upon society. This would no do. One big mine from which the institutions are principally supplied has agreed to lease to the State, but in case such arrangements could not be made we would confiscate the mine. Railroads confiscate coal, and so would the State of Missouri."

NO WIRELESS TO IRELAND.

London Company Officials Deny That Any Message Was Received.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 2.—The officials of the British branch of the Atlantic De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company say that the story published last week in New York that 500 words had been successfully transmitted by wireless from Manhattan Beach to a station in the south of Ireland is a yarn, the origin of which is a mystery to them.

The story published in New York on the authority of officials of the American De Forest Company was that the words were transmitted to a station on the estate of Lord Armstrong, in Southern Ireland. Lee De Forest is now a guest of Lord Armstrong, who is the President of the British branch of the company. The 500 words, the story given out here said, were received through apparatus placed on top of Lord Armstrong's castle.

PRAY FOR CARNEGIE MONEY.

Atlanta Ministers Formally Resolve on Such an Appeal for Funds.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 2.—"I move that the members of the Ministers' Evangelical Association pray that Mr. Carnegie, who is to come to Atlanta in a few days on a visit, will donate a liberal sum to the International Medical Missionary College and Training School for Nurses," said Dr. T. P. Cleveland this afternoon, following an appeal made by Dr. George D. Dowknott to the Ministers' Association for aid for the Medical Missionary College and Training School of Atlanta.

Dr. Cleveland said: "Mr. Carnegie, who is to visit here shortly, is interested in all medical missionary schools, so I move that we try the power of prayer in loosening his pursestrings. I believe strongly in the efficacy of prayer, and I move again that the ministers of this association, through that agency, try to induce Mr. Carnegie to give to this school."

Amid a chorus of "Amens!" the ministers resolved to see what effect prayer would have on Carnegie's pursestrings.

KILLED IN AUTO UPSET.

Rope Across Road Overturned Machine—Man Dead, Wife Dying.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—While riding in an automobile through Haverford, a suburb, to-day, E. O. Gowing, a member of the firm of Adams Brothers & Co., wholesale meat dealers of this city, was killed and his wife so seriously injured that her death is expected. Mr. Gowing failed to observe a rope that had been stretched across the road near where a building is being built.

The rope tore the glass shield of the automobile from its fastenings. This startled Mr. Gowing, who was manipulating the steering gear, and caused the machine to swerve. It crashed into a telegraph pole and was upset, crushing its occupants. Mr. Gowing died in a few minutes. His wife is unconscious at a hospital with concussion of the brain and internal injuries. Mr. Gowing was formerly Philadelphia manager for Swift & Co.

A. R. KELLER ARRESTED.

Charged with Misappropriating Books by the Gibbie Company.

Augustus Ralph Keller, President of the A. R. Keller Company, with offices in the Fuller Building, was arrested yesterday charged with being a fugitive from justice. Later he was released on $5,000 bail after a controversy over the Magistrate's right to admit a prisoner to bail when application for his extradition had been made by the authorities of another State.

The charges against the prisoner were based on the complaint of George Gibbie, President of the Gibbie Publishing Company, and alleged that Keller had misappropriated $10,000 worth of books and other property of the Gibbie Publishing Company. A bench warrant was issued by Judge Wilson of the Philadelphia Court of General Sessions. He was arrested on his arrival in this city yesterday morning.

ROBBED TWICE IN 48 HOURS.

Post Office Burglars Got $5,000 Saturday and $500 Yesterday.

Special to The New York Times.

DANBURY, Conn., April 2.—Professional burglars early this morning blew open Postmaster C. N. Hatch's private safe in the Bridgewater Post Office and secured $500 in cash.

The burglars entered the same window this morning through which burglars went two days before and cracked Hatch's safe with nitro-glycerine in the same manner the Post Office safe was blown open on Saturday morning.

While the burglars were at work this morning a Secret Service detective was in Bridgeport in conference with the police, making plans for the capture of the burglars who did Saturday's job. They got $5,000 Saturday and stole Postmaster Hatch's horse. It is believed one gang did both jobs.

CROKER LEADS FIREMEN IN CLASH WITH POLICE

The firemen and the police clashed at a bad fire under the Brooklyn Bridge last night. Fire Chief Croker led what was really a revolt. The police had a more humble representative in the person of Patrolman Apfel of the Oak Street Station.

The fire started in Bridge Arch No. 2, just east of the Franklin Square station of the Second Avenue elevated railroad. It has three floors and a basement, and eight feet of solid masonry separate the ceiling of the top floor from the roadways of the bridge. It is rented by the United Trucking Company, and every inch of space was packed with waste paper and cardboard in bundles.

Policeman O'Neil saw smoke filtering through the cracks around the iron shutters of the windows at 6:50 o'clock. He sent in an alarm. As soon as the firemen found the sort of material they had to deal with they notified Chief Croker.

He arrived just after 7 o'clock and sent in a second alarm. The reserves of the Oak Street Police Station were called out, and fire lines were established to keep back the large crowd which quickly gathered from the neighboring tenements.

Ladders were run up to each window, firemen swarmed them, and the shutters were thrown open. Then the windows were smashed, and as soon as the truckmen had dragged out enough paper with their hooks to make room for their bodies they squeezed through the second-story windows.

The smoke became thicker, and soon a muffled cry for help arose above the din of the engines. It was John C. Licdice of Engine 31 who called. Connor of No. 31 and Hardy of No. 29 sprang up a ladder and were dragging Licdice over the window sill when such a hot blast of smoke gushed forth that they had to shield their faces with their helmets. They got Licdice out, but he was unconscious. Dr. Tomes of St. Gregory's Hospital restored him.

In quick succession these firemen, half suffocated, were carried down the ladder: Lieut. McGowan, Lyons and Bracken, of Engine 32; Neil of Truck 1, Woods and John O'Rourke of Engine 32, John Walsh and Dwyer of Engine 31, and Harry Knapp of Engine 9.

Fireman John O'Connor of Engine 9 was the last taken down the ladder. He was limp, and gasped hard for breath. A few minutes prior to this Chief Croker had declared:

Policeman Apfel, without awaiting the Fire Chief's sanction, had summoned ambulances from the Hudson Street and St. Gregory's Hospitals.

Dr. Williams was in charge of the Hudson Street ambulance. When the unconscious form of O'Connor was laid on the sidewalk a few feet east of the arch, Dr. Williams and the ambulance driver pulled out a stretcher. Chief Croker was then engaged in directing the men, and did not witness the preparations to take the man away.

Capt. Rush of Engine 33, who had heard his Chief say that his men were not to be taken to hospitals, did observe the preparations. He told Croker. The Chief strode down to the ambulance. The surgeon shoved the stretcher back into the ambulance, and he and the driver half dragged, half carried O'Connor from the truck on which his comrades had placed him to the vehicle and hoisted him to the step, while the crowd at the lower fire lines shouldered each other to get a glimpse of what was going on.

"Get that man out of that ambulance!" roared Chief Croker. "You're not going to take him to a hospital. He isn't in bad enough shape for that. Put him back on that truck."

"No," replied Policeman Apfel. "He's going to the hospital. We're going to take him there."

"He's in pretty bad shape," said Dr. Williams, "and I'm going to take him."

"No, you're not," shouted Croker; then to Apfel: "Arrest that man," indicating Dr. Williams.

Croker then summoned half a dozen firemen and shouted:

"Take that man away from that ambulance."

The firemen seized O'Connor by the coat collar and dragged him ten feet. Before they could go further Policeman Apfel and three or four onlookers yanked O'Connor, still unconscious, bodily away from them.

Croker called half a dozen more firemen, and Roundsman Smith summoned two or three policemen, and between them they got O'Connor away from Apfel and the outsiders. The latter were forced outside the fire lines. O'Connor remained unconscious, and was at last taken to St. Gregory's Hospital.

Dr. Toms, who was there with the ambulance, declared that it was by Chief Croker's orders.

When the Chief was asked about this he disclaimed the order, and reiterated over and over again that he didn't think O'Connor's condition was serious enough to warrant taking him to a hospital.

Capt. Rush was asked if he knew anything about it. He said that Croker had ordered that any man who appeared to be badly enough off was to go to the hospital. The question had not been definitely settled at midnight, but Croker was still declaring that he didn't think O'Connor was in a serious condition.

The Fire Chief talked a bit after the incident.

"I am here in charge of the firemen," he said. "The police have no right to summon ambulances. They are here to maintain the fire lines and keep back the crowd. If we need ambulances we will ask for them, and we can get them just as quickly as the policemen can."

"Is there any rule about who shall summon ambulances?" the Chief was asked.

"An agreement for the firemen to do it was entered into by ex-Police Commissioner McAdoo and ex-Fire Commissioner Hayes," was the reply.

Chief Croker then muttered something about reporters making the firemen too conspicuous, and something that sounded like, "If I had my way they wouldn't be allowed inside the lines."

The fire was under control at 10 o'clock. At that hour Trucks 8 and 20 were summoned to relieve two weary companies.

Chief Croker said the fire might smolder for two or three days.

Trolley cars on the bridge were blocked for an hour.

Has Aged Five Years in a Few Months, Says a Lakewood Neighbor.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 2.—Wearing a gray suit, John D. Rockefeller strolled from his house to the middle gate on his estate this morning. He was accompanied by a thick-set man with a smooth face and double chin and wearing a high-crown brown derby and gray suit, who was taken to be John D. Archbold. Mr. Rockefeller appeared to be greatly interested in pointing out to his visitor the new roads he is building on his estate.

A man who thus saw Mr. Rockefeller at close range declares that he has aged at least five years since last Fall. His back was bent, said this man, and his face was pale and drawn.

TALK OF TRUST INDICTMENTS

Pervades the Federal Building, but Goes Unconfirmed.

While the Federal Grand Jury did not meet yesterday, there was a persistent rumor about the Federal Building that indictments had been drawn against the American Sugar Refining Company and the New York Central Railway Company under the Elkins anti-trust law.

The Grand Jury has been closely investigating the alleged rebating practices of the refining company and the railroads. The rumor had it that the indictments had been drawn against officials of the two companies specified as individuals.

It was utterly impossible to obtain confirmation or denial of the rumors.

ALL UNION MEN LOCKED OUT.

Thirty Charlotte (N. C.) Factories Declare for the Open Shop—600 Idle.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 2.—In accordance with a notice given ten days ago, thirty furniture and glass factories to-day locked out all their employes who belong to labor unions.

About six hundred men and boys are idle and some of the factories are considerably handicapped, although none was forced to shut down.

The factories received about fifty applications for work from new men to-day. There is no sign of trouble.

LEADERS SHIFT ON HEARST.

Decide Overnight Not to Press the Recount Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Because the Republican leaders underwent a change of heart at the eleventh hour to-night the Raines-Murphy Recount bill was not acted upon in the Assembly, but went over to to-morrow.

The original programme was to recommit the bill and allow it to sleep for the balance of the session. Murphy of Kings, introducer of the bill, said he would fight such a move. He got enough support to force the leaders to change their plans. State Chairman Odell changed his mind overnight on the question.

GIVES THE GIRLS A REGIMENT.

Crefeld Belles Told the Kaiser They Had No Dancing Partners.

CREFELD, Germany, April 2.—When Emperor William visited Crefeld in 1903 a group of girls complained to him that they had no dancing partners, and begged him to send a regiment of cavalry here. The Emperor promised to do so, and to-day a regiment of hussars arrived from Duesseldorf, and with it came the Emperor, who had decided to take part in the regiment's reception.

The young women of the city acclaimed the soldiers enthusiastically and handed the staff officers heaps of floral offerings for the Kaiser. The latter, replying to the Mayor's speech of welcome, said:

"I have kept my word. To-day I have given the town its garrison and the young ladies their partners."

The Emperor's remarks were greeted with cheers.

BURNED IN WEST SIDE FIRE.

Woman May Die of Injuries She Received Early This Morning.

Three persons were burned—one, a woman, so badly that she may die—in a fire in the four-story boarding-house at 276 West Tenth Street, at 12:30 o'clock this morning. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp on the second floor. Thomas Valelly and his wife Kate were on the third floor.

Mrs. Valelly was badly burned on the face and body. She was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital in an unconscious condition, and it is believed she will not recover. THIEF WHO GOT $100,000 TAKEN AFTER LONG CHASE

Slickest Criminal in the Country, the Police Called Him.

HE ROBBED IN MINNEAPOLIS

Looted a Mansion and Safe Deposit Box—Traced Through Three Cities and Caught in Nick of Time.

In the capture here last night of a man only 28 years old, who already boasts half a dozen aliases, but is believed to be Thomas J. Wainwright of Boston, the police of this city and Minneapolis feel certain that they have caught one of the greatest crooks of recent years. In a single robbery laid at his door the plunder amounted to $100,000, and the police say they have evidence of many other crimes of which he has been guilty.

Wainwright was arrested soon after 6 o'clock last night, just as he was about to enter a cab to take his departure from a boarding house in Fifty-eighth Street, near Sixth Avenue. His trunk and suitcase were already on the cab, and in two minutes he would have been gone.

The capture was a dramatic climax of a clever piece of detective work that ran through three cities and required nearly a month to complete. Detective Sergt. Murphy of Police Headquarters and Supt. Dougherty of the New York office of the Pinkerton Agency made the arrest, after playing hide and seek with the man all over New York for almost three weeks and at a moment when they were almost ready to give up the chase.

Dr. Nicholas J. Pinault, a member of an old French family and possessor of one of the finest residences in Minneapolis, spends his Winters in the South when he does not go abroad. Last Winter he went to Pass Christian, Mississippi, leaving as caretaker in his Minneapolis residence a young man who said he was Thomas J. Wainwright, a graduate lawyer temporarily out of practice.

Toward the end of last February Dr. Pinault was astonished to receive at Pass Christian from his Minneapolis bankers a letter asking why he wished to sell certain valuable stocks and bonds just offered through a Minneapolis firm of brokers. The doctor knew that he had left the securities safely locked up in his safe deposit vault, and he also knew that he did not wish to sell them. He started at once for Minneapolis.

Dr. Pinault found that his caretaker had disappeared and so had nearly everything of value in the Pinault mansion, as well as the contents of his safe deposit box. The list of stolen valuables included diamonds, rubies, an immense quantity of silverware, several almost priceless antiques, among them a gold watch once owned and carried by Cardinal Richelieu, costly laces and furs, and several valuable oil paintings, one "The Quarry Workman," by Boilly, and another a portrait by Teniers.

Among the jewels was a diamond brooch valued at $10,000, an antique cross worth $1,000, a pearl antique cross worth $500, a bracelet set with diamonds and rubies and valued at $500, and a pearl pendant valued at $300. These last have all been found in New York, Minneapolis, and Boston pawnshops.

The police say that after leisurely stripping the Pinault mansion of such of its contents as he thought he wanted, Wainwright forged Pinault's name to an order on the safe deposit company and thus gained access to the doctor's safe, from which he abstracted such securities as he considered negotiable. Then on March 2 he started for New York.

The Minneapolis police on receiving the alarm immediately notified the New York and Boston police, the latter city having once been Wainwright's home. At the same time the Pinkerton Agency, called in by Dr. Pinault, went to work.

In this city Inspector McLaughlin detailed Detective Sergeant Murphy of the Central Office on the case. The police and the Pinkertons found that the trunks of the fugitive had arrived here on March 7 and had been immediately rechecked from the Grand Central Station to Boston.

Supt. Watts of the Boston police was notified, and soon told the New York police that the trunks were checked back again to this city. They reached here the second time on March 10.

By means of the trunks, Wainwright was traced from one boarding house to another, but he always managed to get away from each one a few hours ahead of the detectives on his trail.

On March 24, however, they found that he was in a boarding house in Forty-sixth Street, near Fifth Avenue, but the nearest they got to him was a bundle of linen he had left at a laundry. Finally it was learned that he had rented a safe deposit box from a trust company in Forty-second Street, and that he had left a lot of antiques on sale with Wrone & Wrone, dealers, in Forty-second Street, near Sixth Avenue.

Detective Lawrence of the Minneapolis police force, and George Frenault, Superintendent for Dr. Pinault, came here to assist in the hunt and identify Wainwright if he should be caught, but the hope seemed slim.

In payment for some of the antiques left with Wrone & Wrone, and sold by them, Wainwright, who was known to the firm as "James A. Stewart," had received a check for $100 payable to his order, and drawn on the Northwestern National Bank. This check was traced to the Nineteenth Street branch of the Corn Exchange Bank, through which it had been cashed by a customer whose acquaintance Wainwright had made. Through this check the detectives learned that the fugitive had moved to a boarding house in Fifty-eighth Street, near Sixth Avenue. The detectives watched it, but could not see him.

Wainwright soon decided to change his boarding place. Just before 6 o'clock last night Detective Murphy and Supt. Dougherty were about to start downtown, when one of them suggested that they take another turn through Fifty-eighth Street.

As they walked along they almost ran into Wainwright. They passed him and then from a doorway saw him enter a house near Sixth Avenue. Soon he emerged and walked across the street to a cab. He talked a minute or two with the driver and then returned to the house with him. In about five minutes the cabman came out carrying a trunk. Then came Wainwright, a suitcase in his hand.

Before he could do more than throw the suit case into the cab he was seized by the detectives, one of whom rapidly searched him. The search revealed a completely filled cartridge belt fastened around the prisoner's waist under his vest. In the belt were two new revolvers, both loaded. One was a 44 and the other a 38 calibre self-acting.

"What the devil does this mean?" Wainwright demanded indignantly.

"Oh, we want you for that little job out in Minneapolis," replied the detectives. "You know."

The prisoner's face paled a little, but he kept his nerve.

"Well, you got here just in time," he retorted. "In two minutes more I would have been gone."

He was bundled into the cab and taken to Police Headquarters. On the way down, according to the detectives, he was exceedingly communicative.

"Now that you have got me," Inspector McLaughlin says he told his captors, "I'll do what I can to help you get back the stuff. But I bet I worked a new game on you. I was working from three furnished rooms at once. As fast as you got too hot on my trail I would jump from one of them to another, leaving my trunks if I had to. You were blamed lucky to have been around to-night when you were."

When searched at Police Headquarters Wainwright had in his possession three valuable gold watches, two of them of the kind carried by women; two gold watch chains, a diamond stud, two antique cameo pins, and a check book and bank book showing that he had $220 on deposit in the Corn Exchange Bank in the name of W. P. Cheney. He was identified by Detective Lawrence.

In their search for him the detectives learned that he had used the following names in the various boarding houses at which he stopped after he arrived in New York: James A. Stewart, James A. Williams, W. P. Cheney, Louis P. Chute, and W. Perry.

His loot included a diamond necklace, in two parts; two rivers of Indian diamonds, ten diamonds in each; an emerald bague ring, surrounded by diamonds; a sapphire ring, surrounded with diamonds; an antique watch, studded with diamonds; an amethyst and a brilliant cross, a pearl necklace, and a pair of pendent earrings in black pearls.

Supt. Frenault said last night at the Astor House that Wainwright had blown open the door of the safe in Dr. Pinault's home in Minneapolis and got all the silver in it. In addition he got $80,000 worth of jewelry out of the safe deposit vault on the order he forged. He has not had much chance to dispose of any of the stocks or jewels, as his trunks have been kept moving.

FOR BANKING INQUIRY.

Assembly Passes Resolution for All Information.

ALBANY, April 2.—Just before the Assembly adjourned to-night at 11 o'clock Mr. Rogers threw a bomb into the chamber by making a sensational attack on the Governor and the Republican majority in the Senate for their attitude on the banking investigation. As a result, a resolution was passed calling on the Governor to submit to the Assembly all the information which he had about the Banking Department, and which he sent to the Senate when that body caused the resolution for an investigation to be sidetracked and framed up the Andrews-Parker bill.

Minority Leader Palmer called up the resolution. He said that the Senate had seen fit to turn down the resolution passed by the Assembly for an investigation by a joint committee of both branches, and that if it had any reason for doing so and it was contained in anything the Governor had sent the Senate, then the Assembly, which is now considering the Senate bill, should know what it was.

Mr. Burnett agreed with Mr. Palmer, but thought the information should go to the committee on Ways and Means, which now has the Senate bill before it.

"This question of a banking investigation is one of the most serious that came before the Legislature," said Mr. Rogers. "It cannot be trifled with. A great department of the State has been accused of incompetency or worse. While I may not be in sympathy with the charges that have been made, I think it is the duty of the administration to treat the matter honestly, especially as we were told at the beginning of the session that everything was to be reformed.

"A serious matter like this should not be batted and booted around from one house to the other with occasional interviews from the Executive. It should not be disposed of by whispers and innuendos and orders from 'higher up.' That is neither right nor fair. We should have all the information on the subject here. The people want to know about this department and they won't be sidetracked.

"I resent the imputation from the Executive or from any other source that this House has decided upon something that it ought not to do. That is unfair and untrue."

There is little chance, it seems, now that the Andrews-Parker scheme, originating in the Senate Finance Committee will pass the Assembly, in spite of the expressions from the Governor that he favors it. The plan is now to sidetrack it and put any investigation up in the air. If there should be any attempt by the administration to put the present bill through, there will be a wild howl from the Assembly.

Ignores Mrs. Brodie L. Duke.

The District Attorney refused yesterday to go into the allegations of Mrs. Brodie L. Duke that the divorce recently granted her husband in this city had been obtained by fraud. She said before leaving the office that she would try to have the case reopened on the ground that the papers had not been properly served on her.

HIGGINS RAPS TRUSTEES; POLICY HOLDERS WARNED

Signs Bill Ousting Officials—Failed in Their Stewardship.

HE HINTS AT A NEW PLOT

Policy Holders Should Be on Guard Lest a Hungry Horde of Adventurers Obtain Control.

ALBANY, April 2.—The first of the ten bills prepared by the Armstrong Committee as the result of its investigation of life insurance methods and conditions is now a law. Gov. Higgins this afternoon affixed his signature to the bill which postpones until Nov. 15 the annual elections of the New York Life, Mutual of New York, Mutual Reserve of New York, and Security Mutual of Binghamton—the four purely mutual life insurance companies incorporated under the laws of this State. It does not affect the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which is a stock company.

In signing the bill the Governor issued a memorandum sharply criticising the officers who are thus legislated out of office.

Gov. Higgins, after summarizing the provisions of the bill, says:

"The bill is a useful one. It takes the control of certain companies from the present Boards of Directors, members of which have been discredited by the poor account given of their stewardship to the investigating committee. Some were careless, some selfish, and few proved so loyal to the interests of policy holders as to justify their being continued in office, except by the exercise of the enlightened franchises of such policy holders.

"On the other hand, the policy holders must now act with calmness, and intelligence, lest their last condition be worse than their first; lest, under the new régime, an anxious and hungry horde of adventurers, of self-guaranteed integrity, obtain, by loud assurances of good will, the misplaced confidence of those who blindly seek refuge from existing ills. The bill provides that no proxy executed prior to Sept. 15, 1906, shall be valid. Each policy holder affected by this act should think carefully and inquire cautiously into the motives of those who solicit his vote, before giving his proxy.

"Organization is inevitable, but the control of the companies should pass to wise and conservative financiers, and not to energetic and plausible promoters."

Other Bills Advanced.

The Assembly to-night advanced to third reading six others of the ten bills originally introduced; the three Penal Code amendments relative to perjury and falsification of records and entries, and to rebating, the legislative law amendment which would require the registry with the Secretary of State of all corporation legislative agents, and fees paid them, and the corporation law amendments forbidding campaign contributions by corporations and relative to acquisition of real property.

The remaining bills, which were consolidated and amended by the committee, could not be reached in either house, even on second reading, before to-morrow, and could not be passed before Thursday in any case without an emergency message from the Governor.

Under the provisions of the act which Gov. Higgins signed to-day, and which takes effect immediately, the present Directors and Trustees of the four companies concerned will continue in office until Nov. 15, and their terms of office will then expire, no matter for how long they may have been elected, and notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the respective charters or by-laws of the mutual companies. On that date the annual meetings must be held by all of the four companies, and an entire new Board of Directors shall then be elected. The elections shall be under the supervision of the Superintendent of Insurance, who shall appoint at least three policy holders of each corporation to act as Inspectors.

One of the most important effects of the act is that it invalidates every proxy hitherto secured, whether by the companies themselves, by Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, or any one else, the act providing that "no vote shall be cast at any such election under any proxy executed prior to Sept. 15, 1906, and all proxies executed heretofore or prior to said date authorizing any vote to be cast at any election of Directors of any domestic mutual life insurance corporation shall be void."

Brackett's New Bill.

Another bit of insurance legislation was projected in the Senate to-night by Mr. Brackett. No one seems to know to-night, and that includes Senator Brackett, just what the effect of his bill would be if it becomes a law. Senator Armstrong said that it was a phase of the situation that the Investigating Committee did not go into.

The bill seeks to strike from the general tax law the exemptions under which the life insurance companies are relieved, and especially that part of the law which limits the tax on mutual companies to $100,000 on personal property.

It is understood that the life insurance companies are taxed under a special law, but Senator Brackett said he knew nothing of this and wanted the exemptions in the general tax law stricken out. This is the matter he wants eliminated, and which exempts "accumulations in any domestic life insurance company held for the exclusive benefit of the insured, other than real estate and stock now liable from taxation, personal property in excess of $100,000 of a mutual life insurance corporation incorporated in this State prior to April 10, 1840."

Senator Brackett when asked about the bill, said that as far as he could see it meant to tax the life insurance corporations like other corporations, and that the question of whether the outstanding policies were a liability would have to be determined judicially.

the district until the whole situation is cleared up.

The scales should properly be signed by the district President and Vice President, and it is for this reason that Dolan sent out his strike notice this evening. The result is the workers in the district are divided against themselves.

At Windber a thousand union men from surrounding towns marched into the town shortly after daybreak this morning and demanded that the men employed by the Berwind-White Company join with them and remain idle until the scale is signed for all. The Berwind-White mines are non-union and the union officers have heretofore had no success in getting them into the organization. Three thousand of the 5,000 men employed by the company promptly joined with the strikers and together they paraded through Windber and several adjoining towns. They declare they will take all the men out of the mine to-morrow and serious trouble is threatened.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 2.—Information received so far at the National headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America would seem to indicate that the strike of soft-coal miners will not be extensive for any length of time, many operators already having expressed a willingness to grant the increased wages asked by the Miners' Union.

The prospective situation in the various fields, as given out by the miners' officials to-night, follows:

Indiana.—Nearly all operators in the south end of the State and many in the centre will sign the advance wage scale, according to the miners; but the operators' Chairman says only a few will grant the advance. All mines are idle to-day.

Ohio.—Six coal companies have declared their willingness to pay the 1903 scale. These companies control one-sixth of the total output of the State. A number of other operators have intimated that they may pay the 1903 scale. Ohio Executive Board of Miners' Union meets to-morrow to decide whether individual contracts shall be signed. State President Green says he will urge favorable action, and probably at least half of the Ohio mines will soon resume operations.

Illinois.—Many mines will be in operation to-morrow. Operators all over the State have expressed a willingness to sign the 1903 scale. Illinois operators will meet to-morrow.

Western Pennsylvania—Almost all bituminous coal mines in Pennsylvania will grant the 1903 scale and resume operations soon.

Central Pennsylvania—Meetings will be held to-morrow with prospects of favorable settlement.

West Virginia—No strike on.

Iowa—Operators and miners meet to-morrow, when, it is expected, an agreement will be reached to open mines at once.

Michigan—Operators and miners meet to-morrow with good prospect of settlement.

Kentucky—No strike.

Southwest District—All the coal mines of Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Arkansas, Indian Territory, and Oklahoma are idle, the 25,000 miners having struck. It is expected that numerous operators will sign the scale soon, although none has done so yet.

ANTHRACITE REGION IDLE.

Miners Suspend Work Pending Result of To-day's Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—There was a complete suspension of mining operations in the anthracite region to-day, in accordance with the order issued last week by President Mitchell of the Mine Workers of America and the Scale Committee of that organization, with the solitary exception of the Oxford Colliery, a small independent operation near Scranton, which employs about 500 hands, with a daily capacity of about 1,200 tons. This mine was kept in operation during the strike of 1902.

Every colliery was open as usual and in readiness for the workers, but there was no response to the blowing of the whistles other than the appearance of the engineers, firemen, pumpmen, and others whose presence at the mines is necessary to preserve them from injury, and who were exempted in President Mitchell's order.

The best of feeling between operators and miners is reported from all sections, and the hope that a satisfactory agreement may be reached at the conference in New York to-morrow is expressed on both sides. There is no apparent attempt on the part of the operators to import non-union laborers, and this the miners regard as a favorable sign.

In the vicinity of Scranton most of the washeries were operated to-day, and it is said more will be worked in various sections to-morrow. The washeries produce only steam sizes from coal already run through the breaker and screened, and it is not likely that there will be any opposition from the miners to the operation of these washeries as their production is considered by them insignificant.

MARK TWAIN LETTER SOLD.

Written to Thomas Nast, It Proposed a Joint Tour.

A Mark Twain autograph letter brought $43 yesterday at the auction by the Merwin-Clayton Company of the library and correspondence of the late Thomas Nast, cartoonist. The letter is nine pages 8vo, is dated Hartford, Nov. 12, 1877, and is addressed to Nast. It reads in part as follows:

> Hartford, Nov. 12.
> My Dear Nast: I did not think I should ever stand on a platform again until the time was come for me to say "I die innocent." But the same old offers keep arriving that have arriven every year, and been every year declined—$500 for Louisville, $500 for St. Louis, $1,000 gold for two nights in Toronto, half gross proceeds for New York, Boston, Brooklyn, &c. I have declined them all just as usual, though sorely tempted as usual.
>
> Now, I do not decline because I mind talking to an audience, but because (1) traveling alone is so heart-breaking dreary, and (2) shouldering the whole show is such cheer-killing responsibility.
>
> Therefore I now propose to you what you proposed to me in November, 1867—ten years ago, (when I was unknown,) viz.: That you should stand on the platform and make pictures, and I stand by you and blackguard the audience. I should enormously enjoy meandering around (to big towns—don't want to go to little ones) with you for company.

The letter includes a schedule of cities and the number of appearances planned for each.

RUSSIAN MASSACRE PLANNED.

The Zionists Hear of a Proclamation Against the Jews.

At the installation of the newly elected officers of the Zionist Council of Greater New York in Clinton Hall last night the installation officer, Dr. J. L. Magnes, who is Secretary of the American Federation of Zionists, read in Yiddish a copy of a proclamation issued in Russia against the Jews. He said it practically meant another massacre of Jews in the Town of Ekaterinoslav.

TELLS REGULAR JURY TO TAKE UP INSURANCE

Goff Says No Other May Usurp Its Powers.

IS THIS WAR UPON JEROME?

The Recorder's Charge Follows a Letter from Judge O'Sullivan, Whose Adviser Goff Is Said to Be.

In charging the April Grand Jury, when it convened in Part I. of General Sessions yesterday, Recorder Goff told that body that it must not let the powers vested in it by law be usurped by any other body and that it must call on the District Attorney to present all the evidence on the insurance question which he, according to his statement to the preceding Grand Jury, has in his possession. This charge, following two days after the calling of a Special Grand Jury by the Supreme Court, at the request of the District Attorney, to investigate insurance matters exclusively, was generally viewed in the Criminal Courts Building yesterday as an open declaration of war against Mr. Jerome by the Judges of General Sessions.

The direct cause of the charge was a letter written by Judge O'Sullivan, in his official capacity, to the colleague succeeding him in charge of the Grand Jury and calling the attention of this successor, Recorder Goff, to the fact that the March Grand Jury, after asking for instructions on certain points relating to insurance, had failed to make an investigation of the matter. This letter revived a previous rumor that Recorder Goff acted as adviser to Judge O'Sullivan from the moment the latter decided to take a position on the insurance question differing from that of the District Attorney.

The Recorder's charge was one of the longest delivered to an incoming Grand Jury in years. Its deliverance occupied the better part of an hour, and during all that time some of the Grand Jurymen had to stand up, as the present arrangements in court provide only eighteen seats, while the Grand Jury always numbers from twenty to twenty-four. The standees looked very tired before the charge came to an end.

District Attorney Jerome was not in court, but many of his assistants were, evidently expecting something to happen. Later in the day Mr. Jerome refused to make any comment on the charge of the Recorder, pleading that he had had no time to read it. As far as could be learned, no demand was made by the Grand Jury for the insurance evidence.

After the Recorder had read Judge O'Sullivan's letter he said:

"It is my duty to direct your attention to those matters in order that justice may be done."

With evident reference to the reason offered by Mr. Jerome in applying for a Special Grand Jury, the Recorder said that the number of cases awaiting action by the Grand Jury was only 126 this month, or 32 less than the monthly average of 158 made last year.

"There appears, therefore, at the present time," he went on, "no good reason why you are not in a position, as far as time is concerned, to apply yourselves to the consideration of any question that might arise. You have the power to do it. There is only one Grand Jury in this county, and that is the body now before me. That Grand Jury has exclusive power, exclusive of all other agencies, to inquire into every crime committed or triable in this county. No other or subsequent Grand Jury can do your duty. No other or subsequent Grand Jury can have or possess any more power than you now possess. It is your duty to inquire into every crime committed or triable in this county."

Having quoted the sections of the Criminal Code relating to the Grand Jury and reviewed the safeguards placed by law about the personal liberty of the individual, the Recorder said:

"With that power which you exclusively possess and exercise in proper cases, there is no law, no court, no Judge, no official of any character or description who can interfere with you in its exercise or deprive you of the exclusive right which you now possess.

"The very essence of our laws is the principle that they apply to all men without distinction; that their application shall be felt by every man no matter who he is or where he has violated the law.

"In the matter which I give to you now in charge, you may—and indeed it is your duty to—call the District Attorney before you and ask him to produce whatever evidence may rest in his possession or within his knowledge touching the commission of a crime. It must be presumed, gentlemen, that the Grand Jury, when it made its presentation to Judge O'Sullivan, spoke the truth, and that the District Attorney did speak the truth when he told them that there was reasonable ground to believe that evidence was available to show the existence of certain transactions in this county.

"It is not necessary, nor do I intend, to forestall any action of yours, or any expression of opinion. I have no right to do it. There is nothing before me now but to advise you. And I am sure that in the prosecution of your duties you will be aided by the learned District Attorney of this county."

Daniel F. Treacy, a piano manufacturer of 1,907 Park Avenue, is the foreman of the new Grand Jury.

This morning Mr. Jerome will file his brief with Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court, giving authorities to prove that the papers on which the warrant for George W. Perkins are based were drawn in accordance with the practice established by precedent and rulings for the criminal courts. It is not known when Justice Greenbaum will make known his decision on the writ of habeas corpus granted Mr. Perkins after his arrest last week.

FATHER AND SON ROBBED BANK OF NORTH AMERICA

The Elder Turney Got $100,000 Back in the 70's.

$10,000 BAIL FOR THE SON

The "Edna" of the Note Teller's Letters Is Identified—She Is Held Absolutely Blameless.

After Joseph A. Turney, note teller of the National Bank of North America, who is charged with embezzling $35,000, had waived examination in the Tombs Court yesterday on the charge of forgery in the third degree, there came from the shadows of the past the story of a greater defalcation in the same bank before it became a National bank, the defaulter then being the father of the prisoner of now.

This is the report of the bank examiners, printed in THE TIMES on Feb. 13, 1878, of the defalcation of Augustus Turney, the father:

"The paying teller [Turney] made up his cash and added up his entries, day after day, without supervision. As his embezzlement increased he concealed it, now by reporting a larger amount of legal tenders than actually on hand, now by altering the addition of his daily balance book. When examinations were made by the Directors he appears to have had no difficulty in hiding it, until it reached the sum of $65,000 in 1874. He then asked and received the assistance of the second teller in the concealment. The latter lent his co-operation not only the first time, but again and again thereafter, while he saw, meanwhile, $35,000 added to the sum previously abstracted. On Dec. 15 last $19,000 was taken, making then $100,000, a figure easily carried on the books.

"Your Examiners entered the bank on the morning of Saturday, Feb. 2, without notice, and, proceeding to the tellers' desks, took possession of their cash. The paying teller had reported the legal tenders on hand the day previous and that morning as larger than the fact. Seeing that they were to be counted, he perceived the hour of discovery had come. He proceeded almost immediately to the President, and acknowledged the deficit, saying that it was between $75,000 and $100,000. Later in the day, when our figures were put together, we found it to be exactly the last-named sum, and that there was also a deficiency of $600 in the petty cash.

"The rest is known. The defaulter was placed under surveillance. Through his assistance $16,000 were within three days recovered from certain of his creditors."

The report also said that the defalcations by Turney were caused by losses in mining speculations.

Another development in the second Turney defalcation in the bank came yesterday with the identification of the mysterious "Edna" named in letters to the prisoner. She is Miss Edna Leonard of 358 West Forty-sixth Street.

Vice President Lee of the bank, accompanied by a Pinkerton detective, went to her house yesterday afternoon. They consulted with the young woman for some time.

"I am thoroughly satisfied," said Mr. Lee as he left the house, "that Miss Leonard knew nothing of the thefts of Turney, and that she is a strictly honest young woman."

Miss Leonard runs the West Forty-sixth Street house as a furnished room house. She is only about 21 years old, but is said by the lodgers to be a hard-working, capable business woman.

"Turney looked after her business interests for her," said Mr. Lee yesterday. "He had known her since she was a girl of 15."

Miss Leonard and the occupants of her house met a swarm of reporters with a reception which verged on the violent. One photographer, who appeared as if he intended to make an entrance through the chimney if necessary, was struck with an egg as the front door flew open and closed again with a bang. Miss Leonard declined to let a reporter into her house and sent word to them that she would have nothing to say.

When Turney was arraigned his wife was in the rear of the courtroom. She did not talk with him there. He was held in $10,000 bail.

FOOD.

BACK TO NATURE

Natural Food for the Old Dame's Use.

"For 8 months Grape-Nuts was my almost sole food," writes a New York City woman.

"I had become a complete wreck, so to speak, had no appetite or relish for any kind of food, lost flesh, dreaded the simplest daily tasks, and was dragging out a most wretched existence.

"The Grape-Nuts food took hold of me at once, renewing all the vigor of my nature, and my work became a pleasure to me instead of a hardship. This was 4 years ago, and this happy condition has remained, except when, at times, I have left off Grape-Nuts. Whenever I did so, Nature speedily brought me back to the health-giving diet—back to Grape-Nuts and the joy of renewed health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BALLOON SAILS OVER RIVER.

Three Men Land Safely After Fifty-Minute Flight.

Waving a small American flag with one hand and pointing a camera earthward with the other Dr. Julian P. Thomas of 172 West Seventy-second Street, with Count Henry de la Vaulx and Charles Levee, made a splendid balloon ascension at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the Central Union Gas Works, near the foot of East 138th Street, in the Port Morris section of the Borough of the Bronx.

"It's my first lesson in flying through the air," said Dr. Thomas as his wife, who was bitterly disappointed that she could not accompany her husband, and their 6-year-old boy, Odon, looked on as 20,000 cubic feet of gas per hour were forced through a big pipe connected with a gashouse across the street.

Dr. Thomas is one of the recent amateur converts to the delights of ballooning, and the ascension was conducted under his auspices. The Aero Club of America turned out a good delegation and several women went up to the unpicturesque gas works in the afternoon in automobiles. Among these were Mrs. Cortlandt Field Bishop and Mrs. Newbold Leroy Edgar, both of whom made ascensions in Paris last Summer with Count de la Vaulx.

The start was made so late in the day and the wind was so adverse to a long flight, carrying the balloon southeast, which would have taken the occupants over the Atlantic Ocean in short order, that Count de la Vaulx, who was the pilot of the party, advised a descent as soon as the marshes back of Coney Island came to view. Just fifty minutes after the start the three men in the wicker basket found themselves on solid earth again in St. James Park, a residential locality of Middle Village, a part of Newtown. The balloon crossed the East River, reaching Long Island over Bowery Bay, and then sailed in very light wind over North Beach and Elmhurst.

It took exactly two hours to fill the monster balloon. Leo Stevens, Augustus Post, Cortlandt Field Bishop, A. M. Herring, Charles Levee, Paul Nocquet, and a few other aeronautic sharps superintended the attaching of the basket, which carried an anchor, four bags of sand weighing thirty pounds each, some rope, three life preservers, a barometer, and other instruments. A number of grimy-faced gas men were called into service to hold the balloon down when the 150 sand bags that had been attached to it during the inflation were cast off.

Three attempts were made to get up in the air, but the wind had died down nearly to a zephyr. Count de la Vaulx threw out four bags of sand and Dr. Thomas heroically cast out a life preserver. Finally the Count cried out sharply, "Up! up!" The men holding the basket jumped back, and with a bound the great yellow ball, with its three enthusiasts, leaped high into the air, sailing gracefully toward the southeast. A minute later the fluttering Stars and Stripes were lost to view, but the reflection of the setting sun made the ascending silk-covered ball shine like gold. It was a pretty sight and a magnificent ascension.

Before the crowd began to pour out of the gas yard, Mr. Bishop, with a party of friends, darted off in his automobile, and he was quickly followed by Augustus Post and Leo Stevens in Dr. Thomas's automobile. Mrs. Thomas was also in the party, [illegible] was anxious to be the first to greet her husband. The automobiles crossed the ferry to Astoria, and as it had been possible to keep the balloon in sight, the cars were on the spot almost as soon as the balloon came to earth.

Dr. Thomas's automobile was first on the scene. Mrs. Thomas greeted the aerial navigators effusively, but there was little time for congratulations, for a crowd of several hundred men and boys gathered, and, despite the efforts to keep them back from the disheveled balloon, it was in imminent danger of being damaged. Some of the number constituted themselves guardians, and one of these volunteers came into conflict with William Ohlman of John Street, Middle Village.

Cortlandt Field Bishop came up about this time, and he took Count de la Vaulx home with him.

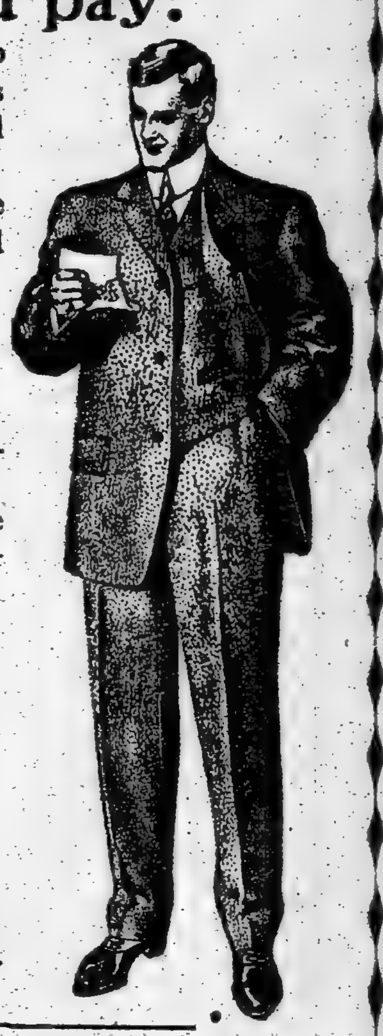
Kuppenheimer suits for Easter and 15.50 all you pay.



WE want to make this offer a direct appeal to the man who is particular as to his clothes and who wishes to look faultlessly attired, and would rather pay a fair price than have anything lacking. The price, 15.50, would have been far too low for the right kind of clothing a few years ago, but the world progresses. Let us give you a few facts:

These 15.50 suits are exact reproductions from our high-class Fifth Ave. tailors' models. The coats are cut extremely long, are form-fitting, have close-fitting necks and broad, athletic shoulders.

Another feature as regards reproducing merchant-tailoring is our very deep side and centre vents. The waistcoats are cut differently than during the past few seasons—and our trousers are cut semi-peg-top, with side buckles and belt-loops. Second Floor.

15.50 We don't know of anybody in this town who is able to produce this garment at 15.50. They are of the newest materials—exclusive patterns—most fashionable grays—in fancy cheviots, beautiful silk worsteds, in the new granites and slates—also in the new two-tone effects.

Our blue serge and black thibet suits, at the same price, are worthy of particular attention.

In this large assortment we fit men of every build, and no matter what your tastes may be we can positively give you a suit to your liking.

ZION DEPOSES DOWIE ON POLYGAMY CHARGE

VOLIVA NOW HOLDS PROPERTY

Even Dowie's Bed Transferred to Overseer—Founder of Sect Warned Not to Fight.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Charged with having taught polygamy, John Alexander Dowie, head of the "Christian Catholic Church in Zion," was to-day deposed as a religious leader, suspended from membership in the church he founded, shorn of his temporal possessions so far as they are located in Zion City, the home of his church, and warned to accept the situation quietly lest worse things befall him.

Behind the charges that he has taught pologamy are Mrs. Dowie and ther son, Gladstone. The latter said to-day that if necessary they will be made over the signatures of his mother and himself.

The active revolt against the leadership of Dowie was foreshadowed yesterday, when Overseer Wilbur Glen Voliva, who had been placed by Dowie in charge of the church while he sought health in Jamaica and Mexico, announced that he would no longer accept the orders of Dowie, who had, he declared, grossly mismanaged the afafirs of the church. The members of the church, including the wife and son of Dowie, voted to stand with him.

Overseer Voliva holds a power of attorney from Dowie. In company with several other officers of the church, early to-day he hastened to Waukegan, the county seat of Lake County, in which Zion City is situated, and filed a warranty deed transferring to Alexander Granger all the real estate held by Dowie in Zion City. He also executed a bill of sale to Deacon Granger putting him in possession of all the personal property of Dowie, including his horses and carriages, books, and even his bed.

Granger later conveyed the property to Voliva to be held in trust for the people, and at nightfall the Overseer brought from Australia by Dowie had not only succeeded him as head of the church, but was the holder of all his property as well.

This message was then sent to Dowie, informing him of the change in the situation:

Dowie, Ocotlan, Jalisco, Mexico:

Telegram received here and Chicago. Practically all, including Cincinnati representatives, indorse Voliva's administration, Speicher's reinstatement, and Granger's retention, emphatically protesting against your extravagance, hypocrisy, misrepresentations, exaggerations, tyranny, and injustice. You are hereby suspended from office and membership for polygamous teaching and other grave charges. See letter. Quietly retire. Further interference will precipitate complete exposure, rebellion, legal proceedings. Your statement of stupendously magnificent financial outlook is extremely foolish in view of thousands suffering through your shameful mismanagement. Zion and creditors will be protected at all costs.

W. G. VOLIVA, General Overseer.
WILLIAM H. IPER, Overseer for Chicago.
H. E. CANTEL, Overseer for United Kingdom.
H. D. BRASEFIELD, Vice President Zion University.
JOHN EXCELL, General Ecclesiastical Secretary.
JOHN G. SPEICHER, Overseer for Zion City.

After sending the telegram to Dowie, Overseer Voliva discussed the proceedings of the day.

"I have acted in this matter under the power of attorney which I possess," he said. "What has been done I believe to be for the good of the church in Zion City and for its creditors. Legal counsel has been retained, and everything was carried out in accordance with their advice. We shall go ahead and put the affairs of Zion City in good order. If further steps are taken it will depend on what is done by Dowie. The situation is up to him as it stands."

Regarding the polygamous teachings mentioned in the message to Dowie, Overseer Voliva declared that he would issue a statement regarding them later, when Dowie had had an opportunity for reply.

"The teaching of polygamy was not made in public," he said, "but was done privately."

"Will Dowie be received in Zion City if he cares to come back?" the Overseer was asked.

"Never as a leader. He must behave himself if he comes back, or he will have to look out for himself."

All of the men now prominent in the management of the affairs of the Zion City church, with the exception of Overseer Voliva, are men with whom Dowie has quarreled in the past. He dismissed Deacon Speicher from all of his appointments in the church, and compelled him to leave Zion City. In a long message received yesterday by Voliva he ordered the instant dismissal of Deacon Granger, who is now all-powerful in directing the affairs of the community at Zion City.

Deacon Speicher, who before he became a convert to the faith of the Zion City church was a physician, declared to-day that Dowie is a very sick man, suffering with pulmonary trouble, paralysis, and dropsy, and occasional delirium.

It is generally believed by the officers of the church that the deposed leader will make a fight to recover his lost power. If this is done, they declared to-day, the matter would go to the courts. His wife and son are supporting Voliva.

Dowie's project for the establishment of a colony in Mexico will be abandoned by the new administration. An allowance will be given to him sufficient to maintain a residence in Mexico if he so desires, or he will be received by the new officers of the Church as a common citizen should he elect to return and take up his residence in Zion City.

No action will be taken against Dowie on account of the funds he is alleged to have wasted. If he becomes obstreperous it is said that his son, Gladstone Dowie, is prepared to make startling revelations.

STERILIZED BETTING TO BEGIN AT AQUEDUCT

The Rev. Dr. Slicer Says Reforms Will Then Be Evident.

MORE POOLROOMS THAN EVER

Clergyman Will Not Tell His Plan for Suppressing Them—Backers Do Not Seem Worried.

More poolrooms were in operation yesterday than at any time for months, but the fact is causing the Legislative Committee of the State Conference of Religions no uneasiness. Its members, including the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer, are satisfied with the outlook. They say that as soon as racing shifts to Long Island there will be a great change in conditions.

The agreement entered into between the Conference of Religions and The Jockey Club, which resulted in the withdrawal of Dr. Slicer's support from the Cassidy-Lansing anti-racing measure, now deceased, is still intact. Its effect, Dr. Slicer says, will begin to be seen on Carter Handicap Day at Aqueduct.

Dr. Slicer is authority for the statement that The Jockey Club agreement stands. He is also on record as saying that this agreement will make it harder for the average citizen to place a bet on a race than it ever has been, and that the bookmakers will operate on metropolitan tracks at a greater disadvantage than ever before. It was his idea, according to an interview with him several weeks ago, that the agreement would go into effect at Benning.

The only changes apparent to the naked eye when Benning opened have had nothing to do with the betting ring. Jockeys' valets are uniformed and the number of clubhouse commissioners has been reduced, but the bookmakers at the Washington track are posting their odds in the same old way, and the emissaries of the poolrooms are having no difficulty in obtaining the advance information necessary to the conduct of their business.

There was some uneasiness among the big poolroom men, before the opening at Benning, because they did not know just what the racing authorities intended. As soon as the start was made in the first race, however, and it was seen that things were about as they had been since the Western Union abandoned its racing service, which included the gathering and distribution of racing news, they went ahead, and every day has witnessed the opening of new poolrooms.

Yesterday poolrooms were running in full blast from the Battery to the Bronx. There was no trouble about getting first and second betting and the results. The only hitch was in the accuracy of the "call." The horses which were announced as leading at the different stages of the different events at Benning and in the West were often back in the ruck, but this made no difference in settling bets. The backers of the winners were paid off with little delay.

When Dr. Slicer was informed of this condition of affairs he was unperturbed.

"The more poolrooms that are exposed," he said, "and the more publicity given to the fact that poolrooms are in operation throughout the city, the more I am pleased. It is in the poolrooms that the immature and irresponsible gamble."

"But where is the plan agreed to between The Jockey Club and yourself, by which the poolroom evil was to be abated?" was asked.

"Everything is all right," was his reassuring reply. "There has been absolutely no change in the attitude of the racing authorities."

"But some weeks ago," the reporter said, "you announced that the changes which you said had been agreed to by the Board of Stewards of The Jockey Club, and indorsed by Mr. Belmont were to go into effect at Benning."

"I know, but the adoption of the plan arrived at was postponed. It was at my suggestion. I thought it would be better to wait until we got closer to home before trying it. Let everybody suspend judgment until racing begins about New York."

"Are you prepared yet to give the details of the plan for curtailing betting and the poolroom evil?"

"No. I can say nothing further now. Those who are interested will have to wait and see."

In the meantime, the poolroom men with bankrolls are making hay while the sun shines. They are not uneasy about the outlook.

Despite the fact that the rooms are operating with unusual openness there have been fewer raids by the police within the past few weeks than for some months past. The attitude of Police Commissioner Bingham, further than he has already expressed it in general terms, is difficult to arrive at.

"Nothing to say," is his reply when asked if there is anything new in the premises.

TAFT HOPES CANAL PLAN WILL SOON BE DECIDED

Work Can Then Be Pushed More Vigorously, He Says.

MR. SHONTS AGAIN ELECTED

He Continues as Head of Panama Railroad—Its Earnings and Expenses Both Increased.

Secretary Taft came to this city yesterday from Washington to attend the annual meeting of the Panama Railroad Company, which was held at the offices of the company. At the meeting of the holders of the company's stock, practically all of which is owned by the Government, W. Leon Pepperman was elected a Director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation some time ago of William Barclay Parsons, who retired from the Directorate of the Panama Railroad Company when he withdrew from the service of the Government as advisory engineer to the Panama Canal Commission. Mr. Pepperman is the assistant chief of the office of Isthmian Canal Affairs. All the other Directors were re-elected. T. P. Shonts was re-elected President, and John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, was elected Vice President.

After the meeting Secretary Taft talked freely of the work in the canal zone and of the results of the year on the Panama Railroad. He laid stress on the urgency of deciding in the near future upon the plans for the actual construction of the canal itself. He said:

"The report of the Panama Railroad for the year past shows that it has made great progress. Its earnings have greatly increased and in fact the road is quite unable to cope with the business which is being rushed over the line. The road, which is about forty-seven miles in length is being double-tracked at the present time for a distance of about thirty-five miles. When the double-track system is completed for that distance it will greatly facilitate the business of the company.

"What is now greatly needed is some definite plan in relation to the construction of the Panama Canal. The affairs of the Panama Railroad Company show progress, and in fact the general conditions, as far as the Government work on the Isthmian canal is concerned, shows progress in every respect.

"We have got to a point now when it is very necessary that some plan be adopted for the construction of the canal. When some definite plan of construction is adopted, then the work can go ahead with new vigor. We all hope that some plan will be passed on very soon by the Government.

"In the town of Panama the commission has made another very desirable improvement, which will add greatly to the improved sanitary conditions there. Aside from the new system of sewers the commission has caused to be laid along the main street in that place a very fine pavement of vitrified brick.

"The offices of the commission have been removed from Panama to Culebra. The location is preferable to Panama owing to the fact that it is at a higher altitude."

"What is the prospect of electrifying the Panama Railroad?" Secretary Taft was asked.

"Well," he replied, "that will depend to a large degree upon the plan which is chosen for the construction of the canal. With one of the plans submitted it would be possible to obtain great water power by means of a dam, to be at Gamboa, and by such power a large amount of electricity could be generated to operate the road and also to supply electric light for the Isthmus."

The report of the Panama Railroad for the ten months ended Oct. 31 last shows gross earnings of $1,912,552 compared with $1,610,348 for the corresponding period in 1904. Expenses of operation, however, showed a heavy increase, so that despite the increase in gross earnings the net income of the road showed a large falling off. The net for the ten months' period was only $698,942, compared with $797,001 in 1904. The net earnings of the steamship line for this period, during most of which the affairs of the Panama Railroad were directly under Government supervision, also showed a heavy falling off. They amounted to only $58,730, compared with $103,517 the year before.

President Shonts in his report says in regard to the commissary department of the railroad:

"The company's commissary department, which was temporarily transferred to the Isthmian Canal Commission, but later transferred to this company, has been much enlarged in capacity and scope. All necessary food supplies and material are furnished employes of the railroad and commission at a slight advance on invoice cost, while easy payment is provided for through coupon books issued under proper authority to such employes in advance of regular paydays. It is provided that the coupons may be accepted by resident merchants and traders, and the company agrees to redeem them on presentation at its offices."

In reference to the contract made with J. E. Markel for the operation of hotels along the line of the road, which was afterward canceled, President Shonts says that this contract was entered into at a time when the company's facilities for housing its employes and those of the Canal Commission were urgently deficient, but that improvement in conditions soon made possible the cancellation of the contract.

Car-Overcrowding Ordinance Void.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Judge Mack, in the Circuit Court, to-day, decided that an ordinance passed by the city last October

A Series of Plain Preachments

CONTEMPLATING

Distinctiveness: Its Sources

RELATIVE TO READY-FOR-SERVICE CLOTHING FOR MEN

Of Which This Is Number Two

Do one thing at a time if you would do it well. Our system demands it in practice. It is the most vital phase which we borrow from the merchant tailor. One garment at a time is cut.

The two sides of a coat, the two sleeves, the two legs of a pair of trousers, and so on, are laid under a pattern and they stay with each other as a specific garment.

This is not a common practice. Yet it is vital, since it insures absolutely true proportions. Further than that, if the fabric be a plaid or a stripe, the pattern on the sleeves, pockets, cuffs and trousers will meet and match the body of the garment.

Such is the source of distinctiveness in our ready-for-service garments for men.

BARNES'S APPOINTMENT ANGERS WASHINGTON

"White House Strong-Arm Methods," Says a Local Newspaper.

SENATE MAY HOLD IT UP

New Postmaster Characterized as a Carpetbagger—Citizens Say Selection Is an Insult.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The President's selection of Benjamin F. Barnes, his assistant secretary, to be Postmaster of Washington has raised a storm. It is being criticised as a "carpetbag" appointment, Barnes being a New Jersey man. Members of the House and Senate criticise it, and it is reported that an effort will be made to defeat the confirmation.

The feeling on the subject is shown to-night in the appearance of The Evening Star, the Administration's strongest supporter in the city press. The Barnes matter breaks out all over the paper. First, there is a cartoon representing the President handing the District of Columbia an April fool cigar, which explodes, the face of Barnes appearing in the smoke, while the President shouts "April Fool!" Next there are three columns of interviews with prominent citizens of the District and members of Congress, all condemning the appointment.

The leading editorial article is devoted to the subject, and says that the President has rewarded "his tactless and too strenuous bouncer" by giving him the Washington Post Office at double his present salary. The Star says:

"There remain, logically, to be rewarded at the expense of the District, the policeman who shared with Mr. Barnes the honors in the Morris drag-out. What shall their harvest be—a local Judgeship, Commissionership, or Superintendency of Police?"

The Star prints a string of clippings from other papers ridiculing the appointment. Then, all over the editorial page are scattered detached paragraphs like these:

> The application of White House strong-arm methods to the local Postal Service may relieve the patrons of the office of the necessity of licking their own stamps.
>
> Much as Oyster Bay approves of the President it would rise in indignation if he used his influence to supplant its local men in local offices.
>
> The April Fool wag becomes less violent as the years go by. His style of humor is but seldom exploited to any shocking extent. The recent appointment of a Postmaster for Washington offers a contrary argument, but it is only one of those exceptions which prove the rule.
>
> When in future your letters seem to have been hit by a cyclone, passed through a train wreck, and run through a sausage machine you will know that they have come out of the Washington Post Office. But don't go to the Post Office to complain unless in need of exercise. Ladies should observe extreme caution in this matter.
>
> Some of the President's local proteges are as enthusiastic for Mr. Barnes as they were for the whipping post not long ago.
>
> There is a strong feeling that in the matter of appointments Niagara Falls has very much the better of the transaction.

The last reference is to the transfer of Postmaster Merritt to Niagara Falls to make room for Mr. Barnes. Finally The Star prints letters from citizens to the editor protesting against the appointment.

Among the interviews with prominent citizens is one with R. Ross Perry, a leading lawyer, who says: "Apparently the President thinks this district should be governed as the Romans governed a conquered province." D. William Oyster calls it "an insult to our community." Mason W. Richardson says: "We seem to have no rights that are worthy of respect." John Ridout says, "in view of the temperament of Mr. Barnes, as disclosed in the Morris incident, the prospect for satisfactory interviews between him and citizens acting in the exercise of their right to criticise the administration of his office is not encouraging."

CRUISER MISSED THE DEWEY.

The Tacoma Reaches Gibraltar Too Late for the Drydock.

GIBRALTAR, April 2.—The United States protected cruiser Tacoma arrived here to-day from Alexandria, Egypt, expecting to meet the dry dock Dewey. The Tacoma is awaiting orders from Rear Admiral Sigsbee, commander of the Second Cruiser Squadron, now at Alexandria.

The Dewey passed Gibraltar March 23, and was last heard from March 26 by a wireless message received by the commander of the United States Navy tug Potomac at Gibraltar, saying the Dewey was about thirty miles east of Gibraltar; that she was encountering bad weather, and that the vessels towing the Dewey were making only three knots an hour.

TRAINMEN'S CAMPAIGN WINS.

House Passes Employers' Liability Bill—Cannon Warned It Must Pass.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The House to-day passed the Bates "employers' liability" bill, for which the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and other organizations of railway employes throughout the country have been making a hard campaign. Nearly every such organization in the United States has sent to Speaker Cannon a telegram or letter asking or commanding him to pass the bill. Some of them assured him that the railroad men knew he had the power to kill or pass any bill as he liked, and warned him that he must put this one through.

DR. NEWTON PRAISES McCALL.

Says He Deserves a Memorial Like That Erected for E. M. Brown

At the auction rooms of Brown & Seccomb, 81 Beach Street, yesterday afternoon, the members of the fruit trade held a memorial meeting and unveiled the bust dedicated to the memory of Edward March Brown, late of the firm of Brown & Seccomb. Mr. Brown died on Dec. 1, 1903.

Among the speakers were the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton, ex-Commodore S. Nicholson Kane of the New York Yacht Club, and Victor L. Zorn. Other members of the New York Yacht Club were present.

Mr. Brown was for years Commodore of the New York Yacht Club and was one of its most active members, being the owner of several vessels.

In the address made by the Rev. Dr. Newton he referred to the late President of the New York Life Insurance Company as being one of the most honest and upright of men, and said that a similar memorial should be erected to his memory.

"John A. McCall," he said, "did not get the credit he deserved."

The presentation was made by S. Saitta, a prominent fruit dealer, and was accepted by Thomas Rawlinson, of Brown & Seccomb.

ANTI-RENT STRIKE PARADE.

Tenants Also Hire a Lawyer to Fight Dispossess Proceedings.

The tenants of 367 and 369 East Tenth Street, who are on strike against their landlord, gathered in front of the Fifth District Municipal Court, on Clinton Street, yesterday morning to protest against the dispossess proceedings brought there by their landlord, Samuel Weidhorn.

Thirty-six families, men, women, and children, cheered when it was learned that their lawyer had secured a delay in the proceedings until April 5. They considered this a temporary victory over the landlord, who is demanding a 20 per cent. increase in the rents. The strikers paraded to their homes, singing and cheering. When they reached their houses they hung flags from their windows, those not having flags using quilts and ribbons.

Nine of the families were ordered to move by the first of this month, and they are still in their rooms. Fourteen families have been served with dispossess notices and five have been given five days' notice. Pickets will go on duty to-day to warn off scab tenants.

"SHRINERS" AT THE CIRCUS.

Special Programme Arranged by the Management in Their Honor.

Last night was "Shrine Night" at the Barnum & Bailey Circus. All the centre seats in Madison Square Garden were reserved for Mecca Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, and over two thousand members of that lodge and their families were present. The clowns, under the direction of Steve Miaco, arranged a special programme in which there was a burlesque initiation. The Mecca brothers, who are well known in Masonic circles, were also very much in evidence. This was the fourth annual Shrine night since the return of the Barnum & Bailey Circus from Europe.

While the afternoon performance was in progress yesterday Miss J. Depew of Port Richmond, Staten Island, who was visiting the circus with her 6-year-old daughter, was taken ill and was assisted from the auditorium. She was taken to one of the ante-rooms by the circus attendants and Dr. R. H. Iyers, the circus physician, was sent for. He succeeded in reviving the patient and she was sent home.

BIG PIER LEASES AWARDED?

International Mercantile, Cunard, and French Lines May Have Them.

A report was current yesterday that the leases of the new piers in what is known as the Chelsea improvement section had been awarded to the French and Cunard Steamship Companies and the International Mercantile Marine Company. Walter Savage, Secretary of the Dock Department, when asked about the report, said that while negotiations had been pending for some time between the department and the steamship lines, he did not know that the piers had yet been leased. George H. Higbee of the International Mercantile Marine Company and Lawson Sanford of the Cunard Line, while admitting that their companies had been negotiating for the piers, said they knew nothing of the reported awards.

RODGERS AUTO KILLED NEW ROCHELLE WOMEN

Chauffeur Surrenders — Party Lost Heads, Elder Rodgers Says.

HE CURSES AUTOMOBILES

"I Hate Them," Says the Contractor, Whose Son's Machine Killed Mrs. Kuchler and Her Sister.

It came out yesterday that the automobile which on Sunday struck down Mrs. George J. Kuchler and Mrs. Alvina Stein at New Rochelle belonged to John C. Rodgers, Jr., of 10 St. Nicholas Place, a son of the well known contractor, and that the party, who did not stay to see what injuries had been inflicted, consisted of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rodgers, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Collins, George H. McNabb, and a young woman, with John Johnson as chauffeur.

Mrs. Kuchler died yesterday afternoon, surviving Mrs. Stein by less than 24 hours. Specialists were summoned from New York, but she had sustained a compound fracture of the skull, and the case was practically hopeless from the first.

Johnson, the chauffeur, surrrendered himself yesterday morning to the New Rochelle police. He gave himself up voluntarily, and was accompanied by both the Rodgers. John J. Cronan was engaged as his counsel and was ready to offer bail. The prisoner was arraigned before Judge Van Auken on a charge of manslaughter, but when Coroner Van Patten heard of the second death resulting from the accident, he objected to the acceptance of bail yesterday. Johnson was locked up for the night and will probably be released to-day by County Judge Platt at White Plains on $10,000 bail put up by John C. Rodgers, Sr.

Efforts were made yesterday to hide the identity of the automobile party and to make out that Johnson took the machine out on his own responsibility, but last night John C. Rodgers, Sr., said at his house, 10 St. Nicholas Place:

"No one regrets the matter more than myself, and indeed I am most reluctant to discuss it. But the accident was quite unavoidable, and the only thing for which my son can be blamed is having driven away without waiting to see what injury had been done. But this was simply a case of stage fright. They lost their heads, and when people have lost their heads they cannot be expected to do the right thing.

"As soon as I heard of the accident I communicated with my lawyer, and by his advice took Johnson up to New Rochelle this morning. I shall go up again to-morrow and try to bail Johnson out."

When Mr. Rodgers had finished telling about the accident he burst out with:

"Curse these damned automobiles, though my son owns one!" I hate them! There should be a law against them having power to go more than ten or twelve miles an hour. Then there'd be none of these damned accidents."

Miss Sadie Scott, who was just behind the women when they were struck down, said yesterday that the noise of the automobile frightened the horses of the milk wagon so that they were unmanageable. She declared that the machine stopped within twenty feet of the place where the accident happened. All those who were near the bridge say that until the milk wagon blocked the way the automobile was moving at a high rate of speed.

As a result of the accident the regulations against speeding will be enforced in the New Rochelle district more stringently than ever. A good many automobilists have been arrested on Sundays, but a watch will now be set for weekdays as well.

CAROLINA PERFECTO

CAROLINA
HAVANA

Actual size.—See that the band has the word "PERFECTO" across the medals. Price 25 cents everywhere.

This cigar has long been recognized as the standard of value in fine imported Havana cigars. The sale of Carolina Perfectos has increased a million and a half during the past year in the United States, making more sold than all other Imported Perfectos combined. Carolina Perfecto is a guarantee of uniform quality, full weight, and superiority of workmanship. Made of ripe, mellow, perfectly cured tobacco. The reputation of this cigar tempts some retailers to offer substitutes instead of the genuine Carolina Perfecto.

For value insist on having the Carolina Perfecto.

SPECIAL NOTICE—The long-continued heavy rains during last December and January destroyed more than half of this year's tobacco crop in Cuba. This will not, however, affect the high quality of Carolina Perfectos, as the Havana Tobacco Company holds a sufficient supply of fine, ripe, perfectly matured tobaccos to continue its output of Carolina Perfectos for two years.

TRAVEL FOR "STAY-AT-HOMES."

Lack of Time, Lack of Health, Lack of Funds, need no longer prevent your enjoyment of foreign travel.

THE UNDERWOOD TRAVEL SYSTEM

enables any person to experience all the visual and mental sensations that would occur in actually seeing the show places of the world. It provides the intellectual value of travel, that is none the less real because it is not accompanied by all the expense and discomforts of an actual journey.

If you are unacquainted with the scientific development of the stereoscope you can hardly imagine with what realism scenes are made to live before your eyes. In every respect (except color) the objects appear as they actually are—height, breadth, even depth, are exactly as you would see them if you had spent your time and money in a wearisome pilgrimage to the spot.

The system includes a series of patented maps which have been invented for the sole purpose of adding the "sense of direction" to the other realisms of stereoscopic travel and a set of descriptive travel books which are as far ahead of the ordinary guide book as the stereographs are superior to ordinary photographs.

Andrew Carnegie, Thomas A. Edison, Thomas W. Lawson, August Belmont, Sir A. Conan Doyle are only a few of the well known men of both America and England who are patrons of the Underwood Travel System.

the article entitled

A Nation Kneeling at the Cannon's Mouth,

BY THE GREAT RUSSIAN NOVELIST,

VLADIMIR KOROLENKO,

Being an open letter to State Councillor Filonoff, who was assassinated shortly after its publication. Korolenko is now under indictment for inciting to the murder of Filonoff. This document is paralleled only by Zola's famous "J'accuse," and reveals as no cable dispatches can the tragic situation of the Russian people.

CZAR'S AGENTS AT POLLS DISGUISED AS PEASANTS

Exhort St. Petersburg Electors to Vote for God and the Emperor.

RUSS. NEWSPAPER, SEIZED

Rumor of General Amnesty for Political Prisoners as an Imperial Gift for Easter.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 2.—The result of to-day's elections in this city cannot be known till to-morrow, but the Constitutional Democrats claim victory.

They succeeded in getting all the electors at the landowners' primary elections in the districts of St. Petersburg and Moscow, which was a far greater surprise than would be a sweeping victory in this city. Moreover, they won every electoral vote in the provincial town contests yesterday.

To-day's proceedings were carried out in a businesslike fashion. The qualified voters number about 130,000, of whom over 80,000 are officials. Business was almost completely suspended. The poll was heavy. The voters evidently took a serious view of their duties, this being in striking contrast to the attitude of the workmen, most of whom abstained altogether.

Everybody realizes the immense importance of the St. Petersburg city elections in their influence upon the final State Douma elections throughout the empire.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 2.—Great precautions were taken to prevent disorders and possible bomb throwing during the elections to-day. A cordon of police surrounded each pooling place, and no one without a certificate was permitted to enter.

At several polling places peasants attired in old Russian costumes accosted voters and pleaded with them to the accompaniment of many signs of the cross not to turn out the Emperor. "Vote for God and the Emperor," was the burden of their appeal. The general impression was that they were "stage peasants" picketed at the polls to influence the lower class in favor of the Conservatives.

It is rumored that Emperor Nicholas's Easter gift to his people will be a proclamation granting general amnesty to political prisoners. In the midst of the present repression, however, it is difficult to understand how it is possible to open the doors of the overcrowded prisons.

M. Annensky, a well-known writer, and M. Oriehkoff, President of the Railroad Congress, which ordered the railroad strike of last Fall, have been exiled to Archangel by administrative order.

NATAL NATIVES EXECUTED.

Shooting Called "Bloodthirsty Murder" in the House of Commons.

LONDON, April 2.—The twelve Natal natives condemned to death for the murder of policemen during the uprising in February against the collection of the poll tax, the postponement of whose execution led to a dispute between the Imperial and Colonial Governments, were shot this morning, and in the House of Commons this afternoon the announcement of the execution was received with angry cries of "Shame!" from the Irish Nationalist and Labor benches and from some Liberals.

One Ministerialist, amid cheers and some protests, described the executions as "bloodthirsty murder," and James Ramsey Macdonald, Secretary to the Labor Representation Committee, promptly moved an adjournment of the House, to discuss the manner in which martial law was being applied in Natal and "to the imminent and great danger to which the native subjects of the Crown are involved in its administration." The motion, which was largely supported, came up for debate this evening, but no new features developed.

PLOT TO KILL ALFONSO.

Anarchists Planned to Wipe Out the Spanish Royal Family.

MADRID, April 2.—The Spanish authorities have discovered an Anarchists' plot at Lebrija, twenty-nine miles from Seville, the notorious centre of the Black Hands, to assassinate the royal family during the visit of King Alfonso, the Dowager Queen Christina, and the sister of the King, the Infanta Maria Teresa, to Seville during Holy Week.

Chinese Move on Russians.

MOSCOW, April 2.—The Russkoe Slovo has received a sensational telegram from its correspondent at Harbin, Manchuria, saying that hostilities are imminent between the Russian and Chinese troops.

The correspondent intimates that the Chinese, influenced by Japan, are moving forward; that the situation is so tense that the Russian demobilization of troops has been stopped, and that Gen. Grodekoff, the Russian Commander in Chief, has issued instructions to prepare for eventualities.

FOOD.

"COFFEE JAGS"

The Doctor Named Them Correctly.

Some one said "Coffee never hurts any one." Enquire of your friends and note their experiences.

A Phila. woman says:

"During the last 2 or 3 years I became subject to what the doctor called 'coffee jags' and felt like I have heard men say they feel who have drank too much rum. It nauseated me, and I felt as though there was nothing but coffee flowing through my veins.

"Coffee agreed well enough for a time, but for a number of years I have known that it was doing me great harm, but, like the rum toper, I thought I could not get along without it. It made me nervous, disordered my digestion, destroyed my sleep, and brought on frequent and very distressing headaches.

"When I got what the doctor called a 'coffee jag' on, I would give up drinking it for a few days till my stomach regained a little strength, but I was always fretful and worried and nervous till I was able to resume the use of the drug.

"About a year ago I was persuaded to try Postum, but as I got it in restaurants it was nothing but a sloppy mess, sometimes cold, and always weak, and of course I didn't like it. Finally I prepared some myself, at home, following the directions carefully, and I found it delicious. I persevered in its use, quitting the old coffee entirely, and feeling better and better each day, till I found at last, to my great joy, that my ailments had all disappeared and my longing for coffee had come to an end.

"I have heretofore suffered intensely from utter exhaustion, besides the other ailments and troubles, but this Summer, using Postum, I have felt fine." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

POWERS MAY ABOLISH SLAVERY IN MOROCCO

Justice to Jews Also to be Urged Upon the Sultan.

PLAN RAILWAY EXTENSION

Mr. White Intimates That Recommendations Are Not Well Received and May Cause a Hitch.

ALGECIRAS, April 2.—To-day's sitting of the conference on Moroccan reforms, though primarily devoted to the framing of the protocol, assumed importance owing to various delegates moving resolutions directing the attention of the Sultan of Morocco to the necessity of internal reforms.

Mr. White, the chief of the American delegation, with the support of the Duke of Almodovar, President of the conference, directed attention to the unfavorable situation of Jews in Morocco.

Sir Arthur Nicolson, the British delegate, and M. Revoil, the first French delegate, advocated the abolition of slavery in Morocco.

Herr von Radowitz, the principal German delegate, made an appeal for the establishment of lighthouses on the coasts.

Count Bolesta-Kozlebrodzki, the second Austrian delegate, urged the importance of the publication of commercial statistics of the country.

The construction of railways was advocated by the Duke of Almodovar.

The conference requested the Italian Minister to Morocco, Signor Malmusi, to proceed to Fez and communicate to the Sultan the fact that the conclusions reached by the delegates have been unanimously approved.

The revised text of the agreement will probably be signed on Saturday.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—There is just a suggestion in reports to the State Department received from Ambassador White that a hitch may occur at the last moment of the Algeciras Conference through the refusal of the Sultan of Morocco to accept the programme for the administration of the affairs of his Government that has been arranged for him by the powers, particularly as it appears that he has not been placed in a position to profit by the creation of the International Bank.

The State Department is now obliged to find some way to dispose of the single share in this bank which has been allotted to America. It has been decided that the United States Government cannot itself subscribe for the share, so it is understood that a proposition will be made to some of the great financial firms of the country to take it up. The amount of money involved is not large, being probably about $150,000, and the investment is not regarded as being a particularly desirable one, but the officials have little doubt of their ability to place the share.

GIFT TO ISAAC GUGGENHEIM.

Fellow-Directors of Sydenham Hospital Present a Loving Cup.

Isaac Guggenheim, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and William I. Spiegelberg, President of the Board of Directors of the Sydenham Hospital, with their co-Directors, were guests of honor last night at a dinner given by the medical board of the hospital at the Harmonie Club, 10 East Sixtieth Street.

Mr. Guggenheim, whose generosity made possible the founding of the hospital, received a loving cup from his fellow-members in the Board of Directors, which he accepted in a brief speech of thanks.

Mr. Guggenheim, it was said unofficially, by Dr. Robert Kunitzer, has it in mind to do a great deal more for the institution, and added that at the last meeting of the board Mr. Guggenheim had promised, at the proper time, to duplicate his previous gift of $250,000 to the hospital.

Among those present at the dinner were Dr. Parker Syms, L. M. Bloomingdale, Levi Spiegelberg, Tax Commissioner Strasbourger, Congressman William Sulzer, Ludwig Englander, Dr. H. Baruch, Dr. D. D. Goldstein, Dr. A. N. Strouse, Gustav Kraus, and Joseph P. Day.

MR. ST. GAUDENS BETTER.

Sculptor Probably Will Serve on Macomb Statue Commission.

Augustus St. Gaudens, the sculptor, who has been ill for some time with sciatica in a hospital in Brookline, Mass., probably will be able to come to this city and serve on the commission of experts which is to choose a model for the statue of Major Gen. Alexander Macomb, to be erected in Detroit. The decision was to have been made in Detroit, but the models were sent to New York, at the request of Mr. St. Gaudens, and were stored in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Besides Mr. St. Gaudens, Charles F. McKim, and Daniel H. Burnham of Chicago will act as members of the commission.

Although the decision will be made in New York, it will not be announced at once, but will be sealed and sent to Detroit, where it will be made public.

Many sculptors have submitted models for the statue, which is to cost $10,000. A number of condemned cannon have been furnished by the United States Government, the metal in which will be used for the statue.

Murder for Chance Blow.

Michael McKenna, who lived with his sister, Mrs. Thomas Delaney, at 554 Third Avenue, was stabbed to death yesterday afternoon by Giuseppi Deboast, of 306 East Thirty-fourth Street, who was locked up in the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, charged with the murder.

McKenna accidentally struck Deboast, and laughingly pushed him away when making an angry protest. Deboast then drew a stiletto and stabbed McKenna. Deboast denies the charge.

Couldn't See the Mayor.

James G. Wentz, who has been working at the head of a committee to get the buildings off the piers at the foot of West Seventy-ninth and Ninety-sixth Streets, reported to the West End Association at the Hotel St. Andrew last evening that he had called at the Mayor's office many times, but he could not see him.

CLUBWOMEN CELEBRATE JEFFERSON'S BIRTHDAY

MEN KEPT IN BACKGROUND

The Woman's Democratic Club the Hostesses at a Banquet Marked by Witty Speeches.

The Woman's Democratic Club of the City of New York gave a dinner last night at the Hoffman House in honor of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, the last candidate for President on the Democratic ticket, was to have spoken but pleaded business engagements elsewhere.

Mayor McClellan was another speaker whose presence had been counted upon. Addressing Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, the President of the Woman Democrats, as "Dear Sir," he begged off by letter on the plea of pressing work. Herman A. Metz was also unable to attend.

The absence of any man or set of men, however, was powerless to detract from the success of the dinner. The "Madame President," as she was addressed by those who responded to toasts, with her sister Democrats, was amply able to save the situation. The club, which has been in existence but a few months, now has a membership of over four score, and there were few absentees. The dozen or so men who occupied seats in the dining hall were inconspicuous.

All of the women who were in attendance were not Democrats. There were some who reveled in their Republicanism. Others were both Democrats and Republicans, and still others were neither. None of them had any hesitancy about proclaiming her political convictions.

At the guests' table with Mrs. President Crosby were Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Belle de Rivera, the President of the Federation of Women's Clubs of New York City; Mrs. Charlotte B. Wilbur, founder of the Sorosis Club, and others of equal note.

Among those who were at the other tables were Mrs. John Irving Adams, Miss S. S. J. McCaffery, Mrs. Michael Wheelan, Mrs. J. Berry, and Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease. Mrs. Phyllis Leveridge, Chairman of the Dinner Committee, was everywhere at once. She responded to the toast "The Woman's Democratic Club" in verse:

You may not infer it, just from our looks,
That we are experienced, versatile cooks;
We can stew you a broth of war or of pea(s)e
And give you an entree as fine as you please;
We can give you a souffle, or give you an ice,
And also a toast so crispy and nice.

In fact our talent you cannot deny,
Why not let us mix your political pie?
Our pie would be free of mugwumps and such,
Reformers and googoos we don't favor much;
We'd grind them to mincemeat and then bake them brown,
And only true Democrats would rule our town.

Mrs. Lease, whose versatility as a speaker is known the country through, told a few stories when she was called upon. There was a violin solo by Miss Rogers and solos were sung by Miss Edith Hirschmann and Mrs. Margaret McKennon Cooke. Then came the programme of fixed speeches

Miss Lucy Yendez, author of "Preston Papers," spoke on "Jeffersonian Women." She declared that women really wrote the Declaration of Independence.

"Since the day of Adam," she averred, "a man can't even go out into the garden and eat an apple unless a woman recommends it."

It made little difference that she did not always appear to wield the sceptre. Women, she said, were often the powers behind the thrones, and it was much better to be a queenly woman than an unwomanly queen. Women were little up on economics, she admitted.

Indeed, she expressed the fear that in these days, when offices were a matter of barter, a woman would hunt around until she found a Presidential bargain sale and buy a President marked down to $1.99. Miss Yendez was frequently interrupted by applause. Before she concluded she presented the President, on behalf of the club, with an ivory gavel.

Mrs. Rivera spoke on "Justice." She admitted that she was neither a Republican nor a Democrat, saying that this condition of affairs was largely due to the fact that neither party had expressed undue anxiety to claim her as its own.

A woman's idea of justice, she said, was often what the particular woman wanted. She was a Democrat in that she believed in the greatest good for the greatest number, but the greatest number, in her estimation, was frequently No. 1.

She spoke seriously of the achievements of Jefferson, but expressed the fear that if he were to return to earth and see the woman's clubs he would seek again the shelter and quiet of the grave, inasmuch as he had expressed himself as opposed to women office holders and business women.

"To-day," Mrs. Rivera said, "women have invaded every walk of life, and if they all gave up the positions held by them, the centres of trade and commerce would be shaken to their circumferences."

Mrs. Wilbur remembered the story of a wayfarer who rode up to an inn. A man responded to his call, and he inquired if he was speaking to the proprietor.

"You are," was the response. "My wife died last week."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt spoke on "The Ballot," and Mr. Crosby, husband of the President of the club, read the Declaration of Independence. There were two men who filled up the gaps of oratory—William H. Wood, who told of "Jefferson as a Lawyer," and John Quincy Adams, whose subject was "Jefferson as a Statesman."

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Has for Thirty Years been Recognized by the Medical Profession as an Invaluable Remedy in Bright's Disease, Albuminuria of Pregnancy, Renal Calculi, Gout, Rheumatism and all Diseases Dependent upon a Uric Acid Diathesis. Time adds to the Voluminous Testimony of Leading Clinical Observers.

"THE MOST VALUABLE MINERAL WATER IN USE."

Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, of New York, Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital: "In all cases of BRIGHT'S DISEASE of the KIDNEYS I have found BUFFALO LITHIA WATER of the greatest service in increasing the quantity of urine and in ELIMINATING the ALBUMEN. In certain cases of Melancholia, accompanied by excessive elimination of URATES and URIC ACID, it is often the only remedy necessary. In GOUT and RHEUMATISM it is highly beneficial. I have long regarded BUFFALO LITHIA WATER as the most valuable mineral water in use."

"ESPECIALLY BUFFALO LITHIA WATER OF VIRGINIA."

Samuel O. L. Potter, A. M., M. D., M. R. C. P., London, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, San Francisco, in his handbook of PHARMACY, MATERIA MEDICA and THERAPEUTICS, a text book in many of the leading medical colleges of the country, under the head of ALBUMINURIA, page 600, 7th edition, in the citation of remedies, says: "BUFFALO LITHIA WATER of Virginia is highly recommended." Under the head of "CHRONIC BRIGHT'S DISEASE," page 601, same edition, in the citation of remedies, he says: "Mineral waters, especially the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER of Virginia, which has many advocates."

"A VERITABLE ANTIDOTE."

Dr. Wm. H. Drummond, Professor of Medical Jurisprudence, Bishop's University, Montreal, Canada: "In the Acute and Chronic Nephritis—BRIGHT'S DISEASE—of Gouty and Rheumatic origin, as well as in the graver Albuminuria of Pregnancy, I have found BUFFALO LITHIA WATER to act as a VERITABLE ANTIDOTE, and I know of NO OTHER NATURAL AGENT POSSESSING THIS IMPORTANT QUALITY."

"NO REMEDY SO ABSOLUTELY SPECIFIC."

Geo. Halsted Boyland, A. M., M. D., of Paris, Doctor of Medicine of the Faculty of Paris, says: "There is no remedy so absolutely specific in all forms of ALBUMINURIA and BRIGHT'S DISEASE, whether acute or chronic, as BUFFALO LITHIA WATER, Spring No. 2, accompanied by a milk diet. In all cases of Pregnancy where Albumin is found in the urine as late as the last week before confinement, if this Water and a milk diet are prescribed, the Albumin disappears rapidly from the urine and the patient has a positive guaranty against Puerperal Convulsions. Used as a substitute for ordinary water during the period of Gestation, it will be found invaluable as a preventive of Puerperal Convulsions and other disturbances incident to this condition. It is also an undoubted tonic to both mother and child, allaying at the same time Nausea and Vomiting."

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is for sale by Grocers and Druggists generally.

Town to Dine Railroad Officers.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 2.—That the town of Cranford does not distrust railroads as many towns do is shown by the fact that a dinner is to be given in the Cranford Opera House to the officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, and Harlan & Hollingsworth of Wilmington, Del.

SAY GOSLIN ORIGINATED RECENT BIG SWINDLES

Seton and Dunn Accuse Him of the N. & W. Forgeries.

SCHEME INVOLVED $4,000,000

Confessions Say Fugitive Also Invented Imperial Trustee and Hanover Bank of Boston Frauds.

Confessions obtained yesterday by the District Attorney from Charles M. Dunn and Charles Augustus Seton connect Alfred R. Goslin, now a fugitive from justice, with two of the biggest and boldest swindles exposed here in years. The disclosures, adding to the already phenomenal record of Goslin, came as a complete surprise. They have increased the anxiety of the police and the District Attorney to bring him back into custody.

One of the criminal transactions with which Goslin's name was not connected until yesterday was the audacious scheme, engineered principally by Seton, who is now a prisoner in the Tombs awaiting sentence, to float 500 forged 100-share stock certificates of the Norfolk & Western Road. The money involved in that scheme was $4,000,000. The certificates were printed by the Hamilton Bank Note Company on the order of Seton. They were equipped with forged signatures and indorsement by Seton and three accomplices, all of whom are now in the Tombs, and two of whom have already added their pleas of guilty to Seton's.

The other set of swindling operations on a large scale traced to the master-mind of Goslin yesterday was the establishment of the closely connected institutions known as the Imperial Trustee Company of Jersey City and the Hanover Bank of Boston. Both were closed some time ago by the Federal authorities after the principal visible promoters—William D. Leary, John L. White, and Foster Hopper—had been lodged in jail. Their trials have not yet taken place. A score of wholly worthless certificates of deposit for $1,000 each, issued by the bank and warranted by the allied concern, were palmed off on trusting victims before the swindle was exposed.

It appears from the statement made yesterday by Seton to Detective Sergeant McConville that the entire plan for the marketing of the forged Norfolk & Western certificates was originated by Goslin and that Seton was acting all the time under the direction of his silent partner.

Seton was convicted about two months ago of swindling the promoters of the Galveston & Houston Interurban Railway out of $6,800. While his trial was pending, Col. T. C. P. Cholmey, alias "Kid Murray," was tried and convicted for selling a worthless railway bond to a New York contractor. By confessions of two persons used as tools by Cholmey and Seton, the District Attorney was able to connect both with the Norfolk & Western swindle. Cholmey finally gave evidence so damaging to Seton that the latter decided to plead guilty. When all four were brought before Recorder Goff, in General Sessions, to be sentenced, Cholmey suddenly refused to plead guilty to the new charge. His trial was set for this month, and the other three were remanded to the Tombs to be used as witnesses against him. All four will be lined up against Goslin, if he can be caught again.

The circumstances linking Goslin to the Hanover Bank and Imperial Trustee Company swindle are more involved. In this case, too, he seems to have been the moving and directing spirit, leaving to others to do the open work and take the risk. Though the confession of Dunn, his long-time accomplice in many exploits, is now corroborated by other evidence, it would have been next to impossible for the District Attorney without the confession to penetrate Goslin's cleverly masked operations or to grasp the value of the material already in his hands.

Some time ago a man named Bernhard Uhran acted as agent for Mrs. Margaret Keller Leary in the purchase of the property at 1,018 Degraw Street, Brooklyn, from Mrs. Frances J. Cosgrave. Part of the purchase price was paid with three $1,000 certificates on the Hanover Bank. As soon as the name of Mrs. Leary had been affixed to the contract of sale, it was filed, together with another document, assigning the property to Anna Irene Magher of Brooklyn. Miss Magher has been the stenographer of Goslin for years. The "Mrs. Leary" whose name appeared on the contract and the assignment is the wife of William D. Leary, the President of the Hanover Bank, who is now in the Tombs awaiting trial. Uhran shared an office with Goslin in the Morton Building at 160 Nassau Street, running a real estate concern, which he named the Manhattan Realty Associates.

According to the statement made by Dunn to Assistant District Attorney Lockwood, the name of Mrs. Leary was signed to the two documents by Goslin in his presence. Evidence bearing out Dunn's confession was found in plenty when Detectives McConville and Flood descended on Goslin's former office last Saturday, armed with a search warrant. Another valuable link was found in a note taken from Goslin's pocket at the time of his arrest. This note bore the name, among others, of Miss Magher.

Mr. Lockwood said yesterday that when Leary and his associates got into trouble with the Federal authorities they turned over to Goslin 65 of the 100 certificates of deposit for $1,000 issued by the Hanover Bank. Of the other thirty-five, some were used to swindle three prominent jewelers in this city out of $2,875 in all by purchasing valuable gems and paying with the certificates. It was this game which led to the arrest of Leary, on a complaint made by Thomas H. Kirkpatrick of 334 Fifth Avenue.

As an illustration of the forethought of Goslin and his fellow-swindlers in laying their plans, Mr. Lockwood said that plans had been prepared to float the Hanover Bank certificates in Texas and that a scheme had been devised to use those and the forged Norfolk & Western certificates in such a way that one set of worthless papers would guarantee and promote the sale of the other set.

The next step by the District Attorney against Goslin and his accomplices will be taken, this afternoon at the examination before Magistrate Wahle in the West Side Court of Cristo Cosmides, the Greenwich Street fruit merchant, on a charge of being implicated with Goslin and Dunn in the theft of a ten-thousand-dollar stock certificate of the United States Steel Corporation from the brokerage firm of De Coppet & Doremus of this city. Mr. Lockwood will place on the stand a real estate man from Boston with whom Cosmides shared offices when he went to Boston as agent for Goslin to hypothecate the certificate stolen by Dunn under Goslin's direction.

Mr. Lockwood said yesterday that Cosmides established himself at Boston under the name of Burroughs and opened an account with the Beacon Trust Company. In that way he obtained references enabling him to hypothecate the stolen certificate for $7,500 with a Massachusetts bank.

Two judgments for $1,000 each were entered yesterday by the District Attorney against the $2,000 cash bail put up for Goslin by his counsel, W. J. Lippman.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 2.—A field of eighty-seven players started in the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the sixth annual united North and South championship tournament to-day. The weather was perfect and keen play was the rule, the feature being the brilliant rounds of George T. Brokaw of the Garden City Club, who led the field with 150 strokes, each of his eighteen-hole rounds being done in 75. Brokaw's score is an amateur tournament record for the new course, and it won for him the gold medal offered for the best score. Edwin A. Freeman of Montclair, N. J., and C. L. HARLEM REGATTA OFFICIALS.

List of Rowing Races for the Annual Decoration Day Event.

A special meeting of the Regatta Committee of the Harlem Regatta Association was held last night at Pabst's Harlem, to complete the details for the annual Decoration Day regatta. There was a full attendance with R. Sturcke in the chair. To avoid the possibility of a repetition of last year's unpleasantness over the quarter-mile dash, it was decided to start the event under any water conditions which may prevail when the event is reached on the programme. The suggestion to add a senior four-oared gig race was voted down and an intermediate double substituted. Committees were appointed and the following officials for the regatta selected:

Referee—Clement B. Wood, Commodore Schuylkill Navy, Philadelphia. Starter—James Pilkington, President National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. Timers—H. T. Burke, Malta Boat Club, Philadelphia; J. H. Abeel, Nassau Boat Club; Fred R. Fortmeyer, Passaic Boat Club. Judge—James G. Tighe, Sheepshead Bay Boat Club.

MORE BASEBALL GROUNDS.

Inter-City League Secures Seven Fields in Bronx and Brooklyn.

The organized effort being made by the Inter-city Baseball Association to foster the interests of amateur and semi-professional baseball clubs in the neighborhood of New York and to improve and develop the facilities for playing the game is beginning to bear fruit. As a result of the visits to the Park Commissioners in the Bronx and in Brooklyn assurances have been received that five more fields will be laid out in the Bronx and two more in Brooklyn, and it is hoped that further concessions can be secured. To this end a committee consisting of Managers McGrath of the Websters, Nimphius of the Bronx Baseball Club, Belder of the Monaice Club, Becket of the Sylvanias, Scanlon of the All Tremonts, Kelly of the St. Mary's Catholic Club, Mauser of the Young People's Society, and O'Connor of the Belmonts has been named to call on the Commissioner this week.

The efforts to secure grounds in Manhattan in the park system will be made through Borough President Ahearn this week. A committee of prominent men interested in baseball and athletics has been named, who will visit him and devise plans to that end. C. C. Hughes of the Amateur Athletic Union, the Rev. Father F. J. Sullivan, the Rev. John Talbot Smith, President F. D. Baldwin, William Halpin, Morris Featherstone, James J. Frawley, and J. D. Parsons have been invited to serve. Another committee will visit the Managers' Protective Association at its meeting in Brooklyn next Thursday night in an effort to secure its collaboration in the work undertaken or the coalition of the two organizations.

Eight new clubs were admitted to membership last evening, bringing the total number enrolled up to 177. They were Harlem Athletic Club, Laurel Hill Baseball Club, Original Bergens, Fearnots, Suffern Field Club, Putnam Athletic Club, Bay Park Athletic Club, and Sybil Field Club. Nine applications were received to be acted on at the next meeting. A cup has been offered for competition within the first new league organized within the association in order to encourage league development.

Police Stop Marlborough Bouts.

Police Inspector Walsh and Capt. Zimmermann of the West Forty-seventh Street Station last night put a stop to the bouts at the Marlborough Athletic Club, Forty-fourth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. Fully 2,700 spectators had gathered to witness the boxing. When "Kid" Carter and Frank Rose, two 110-pound boys, began their bout Inspector Walsh and Capt. Zimmermann entered the ring and placed the two boxers and Referee Charlie White under arrest. "Al" Allen and "Hoboken" Tommy Murphy, 130-pound boxers, were also arrested. The principals were held in $500 bail, and they will appear in the West Side Court this morning.

Early Pick-Ups on the Diamond.

The world's championship flag, which will be raised at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, June 12, when the New Yorks, the holders, play the Cincinnatis, will be a mammoth, but an attractively designed affair. It will be a solid piece of blue bunting, bordered with gold, and with this inscription in gold letters and figures: "New York Baseball Club, 1905. Champions of the World." Upon what part of the ground the flag is to fly has not been decided.

Only three more games are scheduled for the champion New Yorks before their return home. They play at Columbus, Ohio, to-day and to-morrow, and meet the West Virginians at Wheeling on Thursday. That night they leave for New York, arriving here on Friday morning. On Saturday they play Yale at the Polo Grounds.

American League Park shows no ill-effects of the Winter. The ground is a little spongy at present, but by Saturday it is expected to be in fit condition for playing. The rather contracted runway adjoining the clubhouse is being demolished to make room for a more substantial and wider one, while the carriage entrance has been removed further along toward centre field. It is the intention of the club officials, after the opening games with Boston on April 14 and 16, to immediately proceed in resodding the diamond and placing other portions of the park in perfect shape. "American League Park always was pretty," said Secretary Nahon yesterday, "but we shall make it prettier than ever this year."

The Greater New Yorks are expected home a week from to-morrow, when they are scheduled to meet the Providence team, the Eastern League champions. The balance of the games on their trip includes one to-day with Georgia Institute of Technology. They rest on Wednesday, and on the next three days play the Atlanta nine. Their last game will be with the nine at Lynchburg, Va., the home of Pitcher Orth.

Catcher Kling has at last accepted the terms of the Chicago National League Club, and will report at the training headquarters of the team, Champaign, Ill., to-day. Kling was very bitter against the management a short time ago, declaring that he would quit the game if his salary was not increased.

When the Boston Americans arrived at Nashville, Tenn., Manager Collins was asked about his trip South. "No more of it for mine," was his reply.

Manager Dunn of the Providence team has made an attractive offer to the Brooklyn Club for Third Baseman Batch, who has been supplanted by Casey from Chicago.

NO matter how carefully furs are packed away in cedar chests or in moth preventives, the weight of the garment itself, to say nothing of those on top of it, crushes and mats down the fur.

This crushing down in itself is enough to spoil any fur, but what about the accumulated dust or moth-eggs that may have been deposited in the garment? The dust destroys the brilliancy and fluffiness of the fur, the eggs will hatch into moth worms, and a valuable garment will be ruined forever.

We have every facility in our new cold storage rooms to overcome these difficulties. That they do overcome them, our patrons already know to their profit.

After a thorough cleansing by the vaccum process, the furs are carefully hung in the cold storage rooms—each garment on a separate hanger. This avoids any matting of the fur and keeps the garment in shape. A constant circulation of dry, cold air prevents the existence of all insect life, keeps the furs free from dampness and gives them new life, bringing out their natural softness and brilliancy. These rooms are constantly under the supervision of experienced furriers.

The cost of storage covers insurance against theft, fire and moth, and is less than you would expect to pay for the cleansing process alone.

Even if you don't entrust your furs to our care, to read over our booklet "The Proper Care of Furs" costs nothing and will be to your interest.

May we have the pleasure of sending it to you?

PILGRIM FOOTBALL TEAM WILL PLAY HERE AGAIN

Association Eleven Plans a Return to America in August.

ALL-ENGLAND TEAM MEMBERS

Important Match of Tour Will Be Played in New York—Milnes Is Captain Again.

The Pilgrim Association football team of England will visit the United States again next Fall and play a series of matches in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburg, Chicago, and St. Louis. According to present plans, the team will leave England on Aug. 11 for Canada, where it will play in Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, and other cities.

The team will be captained by Fred H. Milnes, who filled the same position during last year's trip. He expects to bring over most of the first Pilgrim eleven. Several important additions will be made, which will strengthen the team, and as the tour will be concluded before the English Cup ties begin, he will be able to secure several players who are members of the All-England eleven. Last year three members of the Pilgrim team were representative British players, while the remainder of the eleven were members of the leading English clubs. The team lost but two matches out of twenty-five played—one in Canada and the other at Chicago.

The visit last year, which was an experimental one, proved to be an unqualified success. Headed by Charles H. Murray, Sir Alfred Harmsworth's personal representative, and Sir Ernest Cochrane, the team was launched under the most favorable auspices.

The formation of the Intercollegiate Association Football League was largely due to Capt. Milnes, who donated the championship trophy for which the teams from Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Haverford, and Harvard and Swarthmore will compete. It was to stimulate the interest in Association football that induced Capt. Milnes to offer the cup. It is intended to arrange matches between the Pilgrims and the colleges in the Intercollegiate League, and, if possible, to play one game against a combined intercollegiate team, in which event it will be played in this city.

The schedule will be increased by about ten games, many of which will be played in the East. The Pilgrims will reach New York about the middle of September and will play two games in this city. The first will be against All-New York and the second will be the final match of the tour, and will be against a team selected from the leading clubs in the United States. The players will be the best in Philadelphia, Boston, Fall River, Chicago, Paterson, and New York, and the contest will be the most important of the series.

The missionary work of the first Pilgrim team has left its mark on association football in this country. Several new leagues have been organized in New York, while many clubs have sprung up all over the country. The game has become very popular in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, and other Western cities, and leagues have been formed as the outcome of the visit of Capt. Milnes and his band of Pilgrims.

The visiting Britishers will find the American clubs harder propositions this year than during their first trip. The game has been more thoroughly taken up and played this Winter and the scientific and technical details thoroughly mastered. To meet these improved conditions Capt. Milnes will strengthen his team in those positions which showed any weakness last year.

Court Tennis Championship To-day.

The National court tennis championship will begin this afternoon at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club. Six of the best players in the United States have entered, and the contest promises to be keen and exciting. Young Jay Gould, the seventeen-year-old son of George J. Gould, will meet J. J. Cairns of Boston in the first match. Gould recently defeated Charles E. Sands, the present National champion, and is expected to win the championship. The second match will bring together Austin Potter and George R. Fearing, both of Boston. Joshua Crane, Jr., of Boston won the championship in 1901 and 1904, while Sands won last year.

New York Amateurs to Box in 'Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—The boxing tournament for the National amateur championship, to be held under the auspices of the Olympic Club on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, will have 115 contestants. Three of these are from New York, and the candidates were subjected to such a rigid physical examination by the club's corps of physicians that a number of them were refused permission to enter the bouts. All the Eastern boxers have arrived, including T. Stone and Charles Mayer of New York. The contestants will weigh in on Wednesday evening and then draw for places.

FAST HAND TENNIS MATCHES.

Naething Beat Burke in Three Sets for N. Y. A. C. Finals.

By spirited contests all of the semi-final brackets of the handicap hand tennis tournament at the New York Athletic Club were filled yesterday afternoon. The winning players were Charles F. Naething, handicapped at 5 aces; W. A. Hines, 8 aces; C. R. Shaw, 6 aces, and the previous winner of the place, W. D. Bourne, scratch, fill the brackets. Two of the matches were continued for three sets, Naething and Shaw being forced to play their top game, while Hines defeated Dr. G. H. Mallett in straight sets.

The best match of the meeting for the semi-finals was that in which Naething defeated W. A. Burke. Both played from scratch, as they had a handicap mark of 5 aces. From the opening service hand they fought the points out at the net. Each hit the ball hard, and it was a continuous rally and volley until the end. Burke kept on even terms with Naething in the first set up to the last service.

Burke played unsteadily in the second set, but by forceful stroking for place shots he was successful in turning the tables on Naething, and balanced the score at one set all at 25—24. Naething was much the stronger of the pair in the final and deciding set. The summary:

Handicap Singles.—Second Round—Dr. G. H. Mallett, (7 aces,) defeated W. A. McKenna, (6 aces,) by default.

Third Round—Charles F. Naething, (5 aces,) defeated W. A. Burke, (5 aces,) 25—24, 24—25, 25—18; W. A. Hines, (8 aces,) defeated Dr. G. H. Mallett, (7 aces,) 25—16, 25—16; C. R. Shaw, (6 aces,) defeated James F. Haslin, (7 aces,) 20—25, 25—7, 25—18.

EIGHTEEN PAGES

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

The Massachusetts men who are pledged to promote revision of the tariff, having been rebuffed by the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, have determined to call in the cooperation of all friends of revision from the different sections of the country and to demand a Republican caucus on the question.

These gentlemen, whether from Massachusetts or other States, are between two fires. If they do not do something substantial or at least definite to secure revision, they will have to face angry constituents next Summer. There is not the slightest doubt that in New England, in the Middle West, and in the Northwest there is a serious demand for a change in the tariff. In New England this has gone so far that even Senator Lodge, the most stiff-necked and perverse of the opponents of change, has been forced to yield to it. In the Northwest the feeling proved strong enough to compel Secretary Shaw to modify the regulations as to duties on imported grain for export as flour in such way as practically to repeal those duties, and this in direct defiance of the protests of the extreme protectionists. One of the influences, probably the strongest, that defeated the regular machine in Wisconsin and sent Senator La Follette to the upper house was the popularity of his demand for revision. Undoubtedly there is a considerable number of Congressmen who would have a hard time of it if they went back to their districts next Summer with nothing to show in support of revision.

On the other hand, there is practically no hope that they can secure any action whatever from a caucus, if they are strong enough to call one. The machinery is set against them. The leaders see, perhaps, that there is some risk in "standing pat," but they think that there is more in trying revision. It is not chiefly a matter of public opinion, but of the sinews of war, for which they are dependent largely on the protected interests. A vast organization has grown up, with minute ramifications in all parts of the Union, extending into every doubtful district, which holds under its control the political life of a great many men. The men who run this organization will not yield until they are absolutely forced to do so. At present there is no sign of their yielding. The revisionists do well to make their record. It is probably all they can do.

THE LATEST RATE AMENDMENT.

We now have another amendment to the Railway Rate bill which removes all difficulties—in the minds of its proposers. But, alas! this description, like similar promises on behalf of preceding amendments, was good only long enough for the other side to disavow it, and to declare that the situation is worsened rather than improved by every proposal clarifying the intent and effect of the law. "No thoroughfare" is writ large over anything which both sides understand. It is all very well for the House to approve anything which can command a majority, but it is different in the Senate, where laws are read before they are enacted. Under such conditions it is well to recognize that there is no formula which can express both the affirmative and the negative of the same proposition. It is indeed possible to pass a phrase which shall exactly express the President's proposition, because he has made so many that some one of them will fit any enactment. But the attempt to find a combination of words which shall both submit the rates to the revision of the courts and withhold them from revision may as well be abandoned first as last. Either may be done, but not both in the same law.

In all this turmoil it is well not to allow the dust kicked up to obscure what after all is the main point. In the words of President Roosevelt's message, "Above all else we must strive to keep the highways of commerce open to all on equal terms, and to do this it is necessary to put a complete stop to all rebates. Whether the shipper or the railroad is to blame makes no difference—the rebate must be stopped"—and so on in elaboration of the idea which is the pure milk of the word, and which is approved by all. But we grieve to say, in Senator Foraker's words, that in all the Hepburn bill there is not one line that even professes to afford any remedy whatever against these evils. We would not minimize the importance of a suitable review clause. It is indeed essential. But on the other hand, whatever view be taken of the review controversy the disputants should recognize and remember that the omission remarked by Senator Foraker goes to the essence and substance of the bill as a whole. What avails it to have, however perfect, a review clause when the law contains not one word designed to abate the evil which President Roosevelt says is the greatest of all?

A CONTRAST.

The Judiciary Committees of the Assembly and the Senate have reported favorably a bill to require publicity as to political contributions, to forbid corporations to make such contributions, and to punish corruption at the polls. Nothing in these directions has been done in Washington. The bill is in a sense a compromise between the proposals of two organizations agitating the subject. It is not, in our judgment, by any means complete, but will do a lot of good and in the future is sure to be changed for the better, not for the worse. Indeed, it is quite possible that the bill may be improved by amendment during its consideration by the Legislature.

It is the fruit of public sentiment largely aroused by disclosures as to political contributions by the big insurance companies. Why is this feeling not recognized at Washington as well as at Albany? The insurance companies' gifts went into the National treasury of the Republican Party. They went to swell the funds of the Chairman of the Republican Committee, who is now Postmaster General in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt. They were offered and accepted and expended to promote the election of Mr. Roosevelt, though it is practically certain that Mr. Roosevelt would have been triumphantly elected without them. The President has denounced the whole system of which these gifts were a part. He has urged on Congress the passage of legislation to put an end to it. But nothing is done. Why? Is Congress indifferent to the wishes of the President? Do the representatives of his party think they can safely ignore or in substance defy his recommendations in this direction? Perhaps they can. Does any one know what would happen to them if they did? If the Railway Rate bill were in question, one could guess.

TAXING THE LENDER.

It is confidently predicted from Albany that a law imposing a recording tax on mortgages, at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent., will at the present session supplant the present law. A tax, in the nature of a stamp duty, to be paid on all mortgages once for all, is probably the least mischievous form of taxation which in any form hampers, so far as it goes, that transfer of credit which the law should in every way facilitate.

Mr. Wade, struggling mightily with the law of supply and demand, has introduced an amendment "limiting interest charges" with the view, as he puts it, of making the lender pay the tax. Poor Mr. Wade! He may be sure that he will never succeed in making the lender accept less than the market rate of interest, and sure that the lender will secure that rate of interest "net." Francis Bacon, three centuries before Mr. Wade's time, pointed out that "since men are so hard of heart as they will not lend freely, usury must be permitted." And then, fixing his prophetic eye on Mr. Wade, he goes on: "Some have made suspicious and cunning propositions of banks, discovery of men's estates," meaning, as we should now say, inquisitorial taxation, "and other inventions. But few have spoken of usury usefully." Among those few it is too sadly clear that Mr. Wade is not to be enumerated.

TWO PENSION THEORIES.

Mr. Carnegie has just written a letter regarding a pension for a former chief of his which affords an interesting contrast with the Standard Oil pension scheme as outlined in The Times's interview on Sunday. At sixty years of age the corporation allows an employé, after twenty years of duty, half pay for five years and quarter pay till death. Mr. Carnegie's personal pensioner is a superannuated pension clerk, for whom the United States will do nothing. Mr. Carnegie puts his old boss upon his list as from the "time when he must give up."

It will be remarked that in neither case is anything done in the name of charity. The pension is accorded as a quasi claim upon the giver, and not so far as appears because of distress, except as money in pocket is relief to distress of anybody's mind. The corporation pensions its old hands to keep its staff young, without injustice to the employé. We might expect this shrewdness from the shrewdest of the world's business enterprises, but it is accompanied by a benevolence that has not heretofore been associated with the trusts, either specifically or generically. It seems to be a modern paraphrase of the old maxim that honesty is the best policy, for it cannot be doubted that loyalty is promoted by such a policy.

Mr. Carnegie has no such motive when he discharges a duty to his own conception of the responsibility which wealth like his entails, nor does he attach an age limit to his pension. His beneficiary is pensioned as from the time when he must give up, and, adds Mr. Carnegie, "it is better to postpone that day as long as possible, for men retire to languish and die." The Oil Trust pays its men not to work, thus enabling it to get better work from others. Mr. Carnegie, for the sake of auld lang syne, pays a gratuity to a man when he is unable to work. Enlightened selfishness is the corporation's motive, and fidelity to his own conception of duty to himself is Mr. Carnegie's apparent impulse. Neither theory is consistent with the prevalent idea prominent in the "shame" writers' screeds to the effect that this is a mercenary age and Nation, and that benevolence is a decaying virtue.

AMITY.

Secretary Root, in seeking to establish closer relations between Canada and this country, would find no finer and more appropriate entering point than the negotiation of a treaty to safeguard that park of both nations of which Niagara is the endangered centre. Since the disruption of the Joint High Commission in the unfortunate Alaskan dispute many questions gravely affecting our welfare and Canada's have been neglected.

We are gratified to learn that it will be the earliest endeavor of Secretary Root, with the assistance of Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, the British Ambassador, and with the co-operation of a representative of the Canadian Government, to effect an arrangement whereby this sublime and beautiful spot on our frontier shall remain as an enduring sign and monument of restored international good feeling.

JUNIPER SWAMP.

President McGowan, whose desire that the Connecting Railway franchise shall be all in the favor of the city has already attracted attention, has pursued his inquiries into the subject with results alarming to himself. The project, it seems, is "stupendous," and involves the alteration of 400 acres of land into a terminal:

Just think of it! In fifty or a hundred years from now the city will probably all be built up there, and right in the middle of it will be a train yard 400 acres in extent.

It may surprise President McGowan to learn that not everybody shares the alarm with which he views this prospect. The four hundred acres at present are what is called Juniper Swamp, and the surrounding owners are much more hospitable to the railway devastator than is President McGowan. If the company gets its franchise the fate which Mr. McGowan foresees for that neighborhood is quite likely, and well within the period which he allows. But if the franchise is disallowed through Mr. McGowan's efforts the swamp is likely to remain a swamp for several unnecessary generations. Mr. McGowan is mistaken in thinking that he is making votes by baiting this corporation. People thereabout want to sell their property and to see it made accessible, and the city needs the population which accessibility will attract from New Jersey and elsewhere.

There is no demand for the preservation of Juniper Swamp, but there is a demand for Aldermen who will put two inhabitants in the place of one. Mr. Campbell-Bannerman has given an example of the manner in which illustrious statesmen may reverse themselves with advantage to themselves and their constituents, and the example is directed to Mr. McGowan's intelligent attention.

CASTRO'S CRISIS.

Internationally, Castro has long been past a joke. There are gratifying indications that he is passing that limit domestically. His "Government" seems to have seriously depressed all the industries of the country, except agriculture. Doubtless a fair poll would result in his defeat by a great majority. The measure of his iniquities is in fact full. A sentimental grievance he has just given his countrymen in rushing off to a fandango instead of staying for the funeral of the former Minister of War, who was not only a popular favorite but a most helpful ally of his own, seems to have excited more public disgust than his irregular methods of acquisition.

Perhaps none of these things moves Castro. It is to be supposed that he is able to repeat about Venezuela the saying imputed to a North American General about a North American city, that "that lemon was well squeezed." It is also to be supposed that he has disposed safely of the produce of his squeezings. Bad South Americans—and he is one of the worst—go to Paris before they die, and transmit enough of their swag thither in advance to make their declining years comfortable. Presumably he has already imitated this prudence, and exile is for him robbed of its terrors. It is true that it is to France that he has made himself especially obnoxious, and perhaps sunny Italy would suit him better.

Still, the announcement that a stock company has been formed here in New York, with connections in Paris and London, and a capital of five millions, to beard him in his capital, to depose, and, if practicable, to kidnap him, excites some apprehension that our esteemed contemporary The World, which makes the announcement, has discovered a mare's nest. According to its pleasant tale, a force of 5,000 volunteers in "8,000 cotton shirts" is shortly to sail from Europe to invade Venezuela and make its way to Caracas. The profits of the enterprise are to come in the form of "quarterly installments, within the first year of Castro's successor's administration," and are to be "guaranteed by the Venezuelan customs duties"—albeit understood to be already largely hypothecated for the satisfaction of foreign creditors—" and by the salt monopoly."

It is, in truth, quite in accord with the spirit of the age that filibustering should be reduced to a regular financial basis. But it is to be feared that Governments may resent the invasion by private joint-stock companies of their monopoly and even treat it as piratical. At any rate the stock of the Castro Kidnapping Company is as yet unlisted.

In Chicago's election to-day a majority must decide the proposition to take over the street railways by the city; an affirmative vote of three-fifths is required to adopt the Mayor's plan of municipal operation. Certificates for purchase will then be printed, but they will not be marketable until declared valid by the Supreme Court, involving two years' litigation and delay. Moreover, in case of failure and foreclosure no recourse is allowed investors save to the lines themselves, which are in bad shape. Nevertheless Mayor Dunne valiantly announces to Chicago and the world that immediate municipal ownership "will win another great victory at the polls."

The fares paid during 1905 on the street surface, elevated, and Subway lines exceed a billion by one hundred and seventy-one millions, an increase over 1904 of 93,500,000 nickels paid to the companies. The Subway drew from elevated and surface receipts in Manhattan 43,719,462 fares, while creating new traffic of 56,247,982 fares. The cars on all lines traveled an aggregate of 28,664,543 more miles than in 1904, the entire mileage being 230,249,455. About one passenger in four transferred, though a notable decrease in transfers issued in the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond was recorded, with a more than counterbalancing increase in Brooklyn and Queens.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Form and Size of the Newspaper.

As newspapers "find fault" a lot themselves, of course they have no right to complain because they are themselves the objects of endless harsh criticism, but some of it is just a little unreasonable and therefore irritating. For instance, one of our readers—a very kindly one, by the way, and evidently a little apprehensive as to the reception of his advice—suggests that the newspapers could be read more easily if their pages were of smaller size. "Why not," he asks, "get up all the daily papers in more convenient form for handling—in such form, for example, as your Saturday Review of Books or The Army and Navy Journal—more like a book, that is. The present 'blanket sheets' are unwieldy, especially in a crowded street car; they take up too much room, and the loose sheets, when unfolded in a draughty car, are extremely annoying to yourself and your neighbor and provocative of language not looked upon favorably in Sunday school. Now that Mr. Carnegie, Dr. Funk, and other wise men are reforming our spelling, why not reform the form of the daily papers, wherein so much spelling is constantly done?" There are not a few reasons, some of which ought to have revealed themselves to a person with no knowledge of the difficulties, mechanical and other, under which the modern newspaper is produced. Of course a newspaper cannot be read as conveniently as a book can, but, on the other hand, the newspaper, which nowadays usually contains as much reading matter as the average book, and often contains much more, is not a product of weeks or months of work, but of a few hours, and instead of costing from one to four or five dollars it sells for as many pennies. These two considerations stand first in determining the form of newspapers. And, as a matter of fact, people with memories running back fifteen or twenty years know that papers are much smaller than they were then, and, by comparison at least, no longer deserve the name of "blanket sheets." Whether their size will be decreased in the future depends on many things, but, as newspapers eagerly "strive to please," they will certainly do so if the reduction becomes practicable. For the present it is not. But while the petty inconveniences to which our correspondent referred undoubtedly exist, he must be aware that when he buys, say, The Times, he gets an amazing amount for his penny—more, according to the highly authoritative Mr. Carnegie, than any other expenditure of a penny will get him.

No Dowieism Without a Prophet.

There is difficulty in understanding just what has happened in the Zion City that seemed to be the private property of the remarkable Dowie, and one cannot help thinking that if the canny prophet is not too far sunk in years and ill-health he is likely to return from Mexico some fine Spring morning and cause trouble for the rebels who are making so free with his little kingdom and the goods and chattels thereof. Dowie is no ordinary humbug. He has, or at least had, something of the personal force and executive ability that marked the early Mormon leaders and has not wholly departed from their successors, and, though his pretensions have always been ridiculous enough, he combined with them a business talent that enabled him to do more than merely exploit the dupes of his mystical side. Now his underlings and lieutenants have seized the reins—and the effects—of Zion and are disregarding the formal orders of the man who recently kept them in such respectful submission. But if Dowie deserves from his sometime followers the harsh words they are now applying to him there is no longer any excuse for Zion City, and if he can be deposed his successor should be a receiver appointed by the nearest competent court. The fact that Mrs. Dowie and the unkissed Gladstone are numbered with the malcontents is evidence that things have gone very far, and that the end is probably near. It is to be hoped that an accurate history of this strange episode in American life can and will be written. It would have great social and economic value, and the attempt should be made while the "documents" are available. There is a general tendency to date the beginning of Dowie's downfall from his ill-advised visit to New York, where he was subjected to the cruelly effective erosion of skillful ridicule, long maintained. This is probably a superficial view of the case. Dowie came to New York because he had "worked" all the possibilities of Chicago and its vicinity, and if he had stayed away the downfall would have come just the same. His experience here undoubtedly hastened the deterioration in himself and weakened the faith of his followers, but it did nothing more. The present purpose at Zion City seems to be to continue the socialistic or communistic element of Dowieism, without its religious element, or at least with the latter much modified in the direction of common sense. Almost certainly the plan will not succeed.

Killed and Then Ran Away.

Sunday's automobile accident in New Rochelle will attract wide attention because it illustrated very strikingly the tendency of some automobilists to evade responsibility for their acts if they possibly can. The occupants of the car that ran into the two women knew what they had done, for they stopped long enough to learn that the victims had been very seriously injured, if not killed outright, but, this ascertained, they hastened away and did their best to escape recognition. This will much increase the just anger of the public against them, and will do not a little to revive the antagonism against automobilists that had seemed to be steadily decreasing of late. Automobilists themselves, therefore, should be especially eager for the removal of such mystery as still clings around the terrible and outrageous affair, and to bring to punishment the persons who showed themselves to be so brutal as well as so reckless. It is fortunate that there is no doubt as to just what happened. An intelligent and quick-witted witness, whose testimony cannot be impugned, saw it all and took the number of the car. Nothing can be denied except the intention to kill. For the cowardly flight from the scene everybody in the car has a heavy share of responsibility, and the weight of it each should be made to realize.

RAPID-FIRE IMMIGRATION.

Forty-five Seconds Devoted to Determining an Alien's Qualifications.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Tuesday of last week, with a desire to ascertain how aliens were examined at Ellis Island, I visited there, leaving New York at 9 in the morning and remaining until 3:30 in the afternoon.

Five thousand one hundred immigrants were examined by twenty-one Inspectors in the record-breaking time of less than five hours. That such a feat could be performed in that short space of time shows how carelessly the officials examine aliens whose only passport is the manifest of the steamship companies who sold the tickets for the immigrants to come here.

There are twenty-two questions that the steamship companies ask of the alien at the port embarked from. Those questions pertain to their moral, physical, mental, and financial condition, their destination, &c. Quite naturally they are always favorably answered, even though the defect would be noticed by the blind. Those questions and answers are supposed to guide the examining Inspector in the admission of the alien, and by proper questioning through the interpreters the truth of the answers might be obtained. At the rate of speed—they were really shoved through the lines—it would be impossible for one of those Inspectors to even partially question the alien or to ask three of the twenty-two questions that are on the manifest.

It requires more time for an alien to send a telegram, buy a railroad ticket, have his money changed at the "exchange," (as the officials of those respective concerns will not permit careless mistakes,) than is required in the examination of aliens, either on the line or by the Boards of Special Inquiry, as they have admitted aliens on examination that consumed just forty-five seconds.

Can an American register at his election district in that time, even though he had been born in that district, resided there all his life, even had a personal acquaintance with the several members of that election board? No, indeed, he could not. The several questions asked by Americans of Americans consume several minutes. A visit to Ellis Island will show any one just the reasons that a more rigid immigration law is asked for. If the present law was but partially enforced there would be no need of a stronger one.

Robbing the Poor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For various reasons the temptation is to refrain from comment on your leading article in last Friday's issue, "Robbing the Poor." Yet the fact that you find it no jest that the poor think they are being robbed is at least of some encouragement.

Surely the subject deserves more serious consideration than you gave it. If the poor use the word "robbed" in characterizing certain results it is for want of a better word, as when one says "sold," not being in a condition of slavery, but having simply been cheated. To erect and demolish a man of straw on the literal words heading your article scarcely convinces.

The poor policy holder who received no rebate on his life insurance premium, while his richer fellow did, has not suffered highway robbery; he has merely been cheated, and is poorer than he should be; his fellow, richer. Take the question of personal tax. A certain proportion of the well to do or rich "swear off" or otherwise evade payment, without shame and without fear—with the usual result. The poor become poorer and the rich richer. Corporations no doubt do the same, and afterward merge at figures which astound.

The foregoing serve as illustrations; they do not complete—the point being that the poor become poorer, &c., not alone consequent on the operation of natural economic law, but through some act of dishonor or injustice on the part of the individual or corporate rich.

This age has no quarrel with wealth, merely as such, but resentment is felt against wealth when immoral, unscrupulous, aggressive, and unjust; against wealth which seeks to deny to the poor such protection which the laws intend to give. To-day more than ever the "poor" should be the favorites of the law.

CONSTANT READER.

Brooklyn, April 2, 1906.

An Explanation That Doesn't Explain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why all this nonsense about postage stamps? Stationers find no difficulty in making envelopes that stick in Winter and don't get sticky in Summer, and they don't use different gum for different seasons, either. Why should the Post Office Department find any more difficulty? Isn't it a case of a contractor furnishing bad material, simply?

The Post Office Department need only consult any decent manufacturing stationer as to gum to save us from the intolerable nuisance of sticky stamps in hot, muggy weather and non-adhesive stamps in cold weather.

"Diplomatic Illness."

From The London Chronicle.

At one of the last sittings of the Algeciras Conference Herr von Radowitz was ill and confined to his room. In the old days, when a diplomatist fell ill, the invariable question asked was, "What does he mean?" and, indeed, "diplomatic illness" has passed into a proverb. Bismarck was a master at the art, and whenever any of his subordinates resigned, as they so often did, it was always "for reasons of health," though "happiness" would have been the better word. But Bismarck himself frequently fell ill—in reality—owing to the burden of his worries and his work, and it may charitably be assumed that Herr von Radowitz has inherited the physical frailties as well as the diplomatic finesse of his master.

PRESENT DAY UNREST.

Is the Current Agitation to Result Merely in Changing Bosses?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was interested in the comments under "Topics of the Times" made upon my letter of March 27.

I am neither an optimist nor a pessimist; certainly not the latter. I confidently believe that there are influences at work making for better conditions in the lives of us poor, struggling mortals, but I also see clearly that we do not always understand just what those influences are or in what they are likely to result. It seems to me that the seriously thoughtful person has of necessity his moments of "depression and apprehension," especially if he be a student of the forces that work through what is called public opinion.

Because the "people can laugh at the humors of political degradation and of financial brigandage" is assuredly no proof that the "country is going to the bow-wows," but it does raise the question in one's mind as to whether or not things may not take a bit of a hitch in that direction if the time ever comes when they cease to laugh. It is easy to laugh over evils when one is prosperous and comfortable, but adversity breeds less good nature.

Who can fail to see the present tendency toward a socialistic order of things? It is not necessary here to consider the respective merits of the individualistic and the socialistic theories; much can be said on both sides. But I think that even those who differ in theory would agree that in practice the sudden and ill-considered change from one condition to the other would be attended with much of danger, if not of disaster.

Is it so certain that society is getting even "a little better, and wiser, and decenter with each of the years that pass"? May it not be that we are simply getting accustomed to the lack of wisdom, the lack of decency, even to the point of being able to laugh at our deficiencies?

We are said to be in the "midst of a great public moral awakening" at the present time, to quote a popular expression, and in the late elections to have "given a great blow to bossism," but how much truth is there in the statements? Hasn't there been as much hypocrisy as "moral awakening," and isn't it possible that instead of having rid ourselves of bosses we have merely swapped some for others?

I think I have asked some pretty tough questions, and I don't expect they are going to be answered conclusively. I am waiting to see what is to happen, and I believe I shall see interesting developments. I have plenty of courage and faith, even though sometimes I do "cringe" at possibilities; but it certainly is a good time to do a little real thinking, and (to repeat my former words) "there is a heavy responsibility somewhere, and it behooves some of us to reflect in season."

H. W. S.

New York, March 30, 1906.

For Parkway on Morningside Heights.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was with much pleasure that I read your article "Land for Grant's Tomb" in yesterday's (Sunday) edition. That petition of the patriotic societies to the Board of Estimate, asking for the ground between 116th and 122d Streets and Riverside and Claremont Avenues, should certainly be granted. And not alone for the sake of the Grant Monument should this be done, but also in consideration of the greater monument that lies opposite Grant's Tomb. I refer to Columbia University.

As they are situated now the college buildings stand out most prominently when seen from the river or even from the Jersey side. Should apartments be built on the lots between Riverside Drive and Claremont Avenue these imposing and beautiful buildings would be shut off from sight as you go along Riverside Drive; the view from the college "quad" would be entirely spoiled, and the picturesque scenery of the Jersey shores would certainly be missed by hundreds of Columbia students, who daily, like myself, speak of the beauty of the Hudson and the Palisades.

Already they are beginning to excavate. Soon it may be too late. Let those who are trying to make this, our New York, a city beautiful, come to aid this timely petition and help to turn into a beautiful parkway what may otherwise become a row of ungainly, horrid, crowded apartments.

A STUDENT.

Mrs. Matthews and the Gilbert Statue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the issue of your paper of the 29th inst. I was greatly surprised to find an attack made upon Mrs. St. John Matthews by an Italian, who makes the statement that he made the statuette of Mrs. Gilbert and other work, which I, and many other persons who are frequent visitors to Mrs. Matthews's studio, can truthfully say is false.

I have seen Mrs. Matthews at work upon the statuette and have also seen her tear down the work to again create what to her seemed more fitting. I am sure that no word of mine is necessary to substantiate the fact that there is not a question of doubt in regard to Mrs. Matthews's status as an artist-sculptor and an idealist in her work.

Mrs. Matthews was a member of the International Jury of Awards on sculpture at the St. Louis Exposition, and was chosen for this most important position from among a large number of applicants on account of her ability as an artist.

I trust that no one will for one moment doubt that Mrs. Matthews is as fair and pure in her dealing with people and the art that is her heritage as was Mrs. Gilbert.

Mr. Jerome's Duty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Jerome's interview in to-day's Times shows a fundamental error as to the duties of a District Attorney. His opinions are not infallible. Beside the great machinery of the law his opinion is insignificant. No one man's opinion is final in our system of jurisprudence. The District Attorney should not arrogate to his opinions the conclusiveness of the opinions of the Grand Jury, the petit jury, the trial Judge, and the Appellate Courts.

The people know that the most conscientious, the most intelligent, and the most learned official may be mistaken, and in matters of human rights and wrongs they feel secure in the protection of the great system of jurisprudence which does not leave to any one man's finger the setting in motion of the inexorable machinery of justice. Hence the Magistrates, the Grand Juries, the petit juries, and the Judges themselves.

In a case where grave offenses have been committed which in the District Attorney's opinion are immoral, and he is in doubt as to whether they are criminal under the law, it is his duty to submit the facts to the Grand Jury.

Whence Those Osprey Feathers.

From The London Chronicle.

The "osprey" feathers, the wearing of which Queen Alexandra has joined in denouncing as cruel, have, of course, no connection with the real osprey. Few words have been more loosely bandied about than this bird-name. Pliny's "ossifraga" (bone-breaker) has been identified with the lammergeyer, a vulture that is reputed to break up bones too big for it to devour whole by dropping them from a height upon rocks. But both "ossifrage" and "osprey," a newer form, came to be applied to quite another bird, the fish-hawk, which is now the true "osprey." Yet the "osprey" feathers—more properly egret feathers, or aigrettes—do not come from this bird, but from the egret, or lesser white heron. It is suggested that there has been a confusion between "osprey" and "spray."

ADVICE FOR 'WEARY WAKENER'

Numerous Suggestions, from Gum-Chewing to Avoiding Laziness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Weary Wakener's" experience was mine for years. The trouble progressed from weariness to dullness of intellect. I couldn't concentrate the mind on anything. Finally the eyes swelled, and there was pain around the socket upon pressure. Thinking the difficulty lay in the eye, I saw an oculist, who discovered that the optic nerve was much inflamed, which he explained was occasioned by indigestion, and was of the same nature as gout in the toe. He sent me to my family physician with this news, and by dieting and treatment I improved. But my real recovery I owe to a systematic chewing of gum after each meal.

Of the ten doctors (I can name them all) I employed in ten years of my trouble, not one discovered the cause or gave me relief. They were not interested in such trifling ailments. There was nothing they could jab at with a lancet. Doctors want something worthy of their steel. If "Weary Wakener" has gout in the head he has not seen the end of his sleepiness.

NOW A REFRESHED RISER.

Brooklyn, March 31, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Weary Wakener" is lazy and stingy. Too lazy to wake up and stay awake, if he is well; too stingy to consult a doctor, if he is sick. We have "been there," and know all about it, and suggest fetching up at a doctor's, or taking a day off and sleeping it off.

Brooklyn, March 31, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If "Weary Wakener" will join some gymnasium class and attend regularly at least three nights a week, work hard and strenuously, get well tired out, take a hot shower and a cold plunge thereafter, and then walk a mile, no less, in the fresh night air, as briskly as possible, drink a glass of milk, and tumble into bed about midnight, and get up next morning at 6 o'clock and walk another mile before going to work—it will nearly kill him at first, but after he has kept it up a week or two he'll experience "that tired feeling" only when he has to retire with the chickens or when he rises at 7:30 A. M. Try it—it's fine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Weary Wakener": Open your bedroom window at night, not on a crack, but at least six inches at the top and the same at the bottom, so that plenty of fresh air circulates through the room all night.

Cover up well, and don't be afraid of catching cold, because the air will not hurt you. The writer has done this all Winter, and don't have any more of those "tired" feelings.

For Better Street Car Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent complaints from correspondents to The Times of the wretched street car service of New York simply state facts that every New Yorker is quite familiar with. It is clearly the policy of the company to make all the money it can, without any regard for the comfort of the public. We are ready to bear patiently with crowding during the rush hours, if that is unavoidable, but every passenger has a right to a seat when it is physically possible to run a sufficient number of cars to supply the demand. The passenger pays for a seat, and it is nothing less than robbery for the company to refuse it.

The question is, What is to be done about it? Are we to suffer this injustice forever, tamely, without hope of redress? What we need is vigorous law, vigorously applied. To the writer's mind, (which is not yet fully committed to any course,) the only proposition, so far, which gives any promise of redress is the municipal ownership idea.

Mail Horses Badly Treated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I refer to the letter in to-day issue of The New York Times by a "Friend of the S. P. C. A." in regard to the manner in which the horses drawing mail wagons in this city are treated. Most of the drivers seem to be inexperienced young men, who do not know how to care for horses, and consequently they are (as stated by S. P. C. A.) a bag of bones. The lash is applied to these horses continually from the time they start out from the General Post Office, and half of the time the load they are compelled to draw is twice too heavy.

Since the United States is such a great country, why do not the men who have the mail department in charge take some means to benefit the condition of the poor horses which do their work?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just finished reading your editorial comment on the seventieth anniversary of The Philadelphia Public Ledger. I would like to say that I believe your paper embodies all of the complimentary features you ascribe to your contemporary, and it is a pleasure and relief to have a daily newspaper come to one's home whose columns are filled with the news of the day and without the "scare" headlines of all that is vulgar and sensational.

RATE BILL HINT SEEN IN SUPREME COURT RULE

Brewer Points Out That Congress Cannot Delegate Powers.

NOT RELEVANT TO THE CASE

Remarks Just Injected Into a Decision Upholding the Michigan Corporation Tax Law.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In a decision handed down in the Supreme Court to-day is a passage that some observers believe was written with the Hepburn Railroad Rate bill in mind. It is an expression of opinion by Justice Brewer, speaking for the court, that Congress has no power to grant legislative functions to any executive officer or board.

One of the points made against the Rate bill by Senator Foraker and others has been that the making of rates as proposed by the Hepburn bill is a legislative function, and that Congress has no authority to delegate its powers. Senator Bailey and others have replied to this argument by citing decisions of the Supreme Court upholding railroad laws of States drawn on lines similar to those of the Hepburn bill.

The decision to-day was handed down in the Michigan taxation cases, involving the validity of the act of 1901.

Justice Brewer declares the Rate bill had no relevancy in the present case, because there had been no delegation of powers, but, and curiously, in view of the excitement over the Rate bill, he said on the general subject:

"In the Nation no one of the three great departments can assume or be given the functions of another, for the Constitution distinctly grants to the President, Congress, and the judiciary separately the executive, legislative, and judicial powers of the Nation. It may, therefore, be conceded that an attempted delegation by Congress to the President or any ministerial officer or board of power to fix a rate of taxation or exercise other legislative function would be judged unconstitutional.

"But does it follow that a State is subject to the same restraint? Crimes against the Nation must be prosecuted by indictment, yet a State may proceed by information. Suppose a State by its Constitution grants legislative functions to the executive, or to the judiciary, what provision of the Federal Constitution will nullify the action?"

Further on the Justice made this reference to delegation of powers:

"It may be laid down as a general proposition that where a Legislature enacts a specific rule for fixing a rate of taxation by which rule the rate is mathematically deduced from facts, and even this occurring within the year and created without reference to the matter of that rate, there is no abdication of the legislative function, but on the contrary a direct legislative determination of the rate."

The obiter dictum of Justice Brewer has been discussed by some Senators who have learned of it. Champions of the Hepburn bill declare it has no bearing on that measure. They hold that no legislative power would be delegated to the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Under the proposed law it must decide what shall be a reasonable rate, and it is declared that the decision of the question of fact as to reasonableness in a given case involves no legislative power.

ROOSEVELT AND KNOX BREAK.

Senator Is No Longer Spokesman for the White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The President has broken fairly and squarely with Senator Knox on the rate question. From this time forward the Pennsylvania Senator will not be recognized or regarded as in any sense the spokesman for the White House in the Senate or elsewhere.

The two have found that they are on opposite sides of the issue notwithstanding their apparent harmonious collaboration for over a year or more, both while the Senator was in the Cabinet and while he has been in the Senate. Senator Knox has placed himself in well-defined opposition to the legislative remedies that the President has asked shall be placed on the statute books and the President has acted accordingly.

The result was openly discussed about the Capitol to-day. The effect was apparent in the attitude of Senators who have been acting in full accord with Mr. Knox.

As Senator Tillman expressed it, "Some of the opposition Senators have been very nervous to-day, and they are very hot under the collar from some cause. It cannot be on account of anything coming from Senators who are supporting the Rate bill, and we can only imagine that it is because of the President's action in sending us an amendment which utterly repudiates all that other Senators have said and done thus far in the consideration of the bill."

The break with Mr. Knox is all the more remarkable because it was only a few weeks ago that the statement was made public that the President would make Mr. Knox his "trustee in charge of the proposed court review amendment during the debate."

When, finally, it became apparent to the President that Senator Knox was out of touch with him, and that his case had been undermined, he decided to act. His action came in the form of the amendment that emanated from the White House last Saturday, three days after Mr. Knox spoke on the Rate bill.

President Roosevelt's Court Review Amendment bill was introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator Long. Owing to the pressure from other Senators Mr. Long had no opportunity to make the speech he had prepared.

Senator Bailey, who has come back from ten days' absence because of the death of his father, has prepared himself for a great effort to annihilate the arguments of Senators Spooner and Knox. He told Spooner to-day that he would disgrace that Senator before the American bar.

President Roosevelt and Senator Elkins, Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Committee, had a conference to-day about the President's amendment. After his conference Senator Elkins said that some misapprehension had existed regarding his position on rate legislation.

"I have intended," said he, "to vote for the pending Hepburn bill, provided that a proper rate review amendment was added to it. The action of the President in acceding to such an amendment suits me perfectly, and I will support the measure with that amendment to the best of my ability."

UNTERMYER CHAUFFEUR FREE

Magistrate in Doubt Whether He Drove Too Fast, as Charged.

Though Patrolman McNally of the Kingsbridge Station insisted in Morrisania Court yesterday that he was driving an automobile twenty-two miles an hour, Magistrate Breen discharged Gabriel Salori, a chauffeur employed by Samuel Untermyer, the lawyer. Salori was arrested by McNally Sunday afternoon at Riverdale Avenue and 261st Street. Mr. Untermyer was not in the machine, but his two sons were. They appeared on behalf of the chauffeur.

"I timed this man going twenty-two miles an hour in a measured part of the avenue with my stop watch," said McNally. "The limit there is fifteen."

"The officer must be mistaken," said young Mr. Untermyer. "We were in the machine, and we know that we couldn't have been going at any such speed."

"It doesn't seem to me that the automobile could have been going so fast up a grade," said Magistrate Breen. "There seems to be some doubt about the speed, and I will give the chauffeur the benefit of it. He is discharged."

HAMMERSTEIN GETS MELBA.

The Prima Donna Signs a Contract to Sing in New York.

Oscar Hammerstein fired another big gun in the war he has declared on the Metropolitan Opera House when in a cablegram from Paris he announced yesterday that Mme. Nellie Melba had agreed to return to America next season and to be at his Manhattan Opera House only. The contract for her engagement was signed in Paris yesterday, but its terms were not made known.

When he determined to rival the Metropolitan Mr. Hammerstein set his heart on having for his first season at the Manhattan Jean de Reszke and Mme. Melba. M. de Reszke agreed to come two months ago, but Mme. Melba declined to enter into negotiation by letter or cable, and Mr. Hammerstein got no satisfaction until he himself saw her in Paris.

It is said by representatives of Mr. Hammerstein in New York that there was lively competition between him and a representative of the director of the Metropolitan. Mme. Melba's terms had been such that the Metropolitan management for several seasons had not felt inclined to meet them, but it is said that with the knowledge that Mr. Hammerstein was in the field a large offer was made to her. Mr. Hammerstein went it one better.

Mme. Melba has not sung in New York for five years. When she went away after her last operatic engagement she is said to have declared that she would not be heard in America again.

GRAND OPERA IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The Metropolitan Opera Company opened the season of grand opera with the presentation of Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba" to an audience which filled the Auditorium to overflowing. The majority of those who appeared in the cast were strangers to Chicago, but their greeting was none the less cordial. Miss Walker as the Queen of Sheba and M. Van Rooy as Solomon especially made a favorable impression.

The advance sale has been exceedingly heavy, more than $80,000 having been taken in before the curtain rose for the first performance.

NOT NOW A "THRILLER" HOUSE

The Third Avenue Theatre Is a Home for Vaudeville.

The Third Avenue Theatre is no longer the place of "thrills." No longer will its walls re-echo the shrill shouts and piercing whistles of small boys rejoicing at the triumph of virtue and the overthrow of vice.

After many years of melodrama the east side house last night made a complete change of policy, when an excellent vaudeville bill was presented under the general management of J. Austin Fynes.

'COLLEGE WIDOW' HERE AGAIN

Ade's Comedy Back in the Garden Theatre for a Short Run.

George Ade's American comedy, "The College Widow," began a return engagement at the Garden Theatre last night. The cast was practically the same as in the original production. Dorothy Tennant, who created the title rôle here last season, but who has been playing the part this year in the West, was again seen as Jane Witherspoon with her old associates. She received a cordial welcome. Others of the old favorites were Gertrude Quinlan as Flora Wiggins, Frederick Truesdale as Billy Bolton, Frederick Birton as "Bub" Hicks, and Edwin Holt as Hiram Bolton.

SOME DEFTNESS IN EXECUTION

Caxton Coulter	Herbert Carr
Howard Beasley	Edgar Selwyn
Jack Dobbins	Herbert Sleath
Archibald	Master Pincus
H. C. Watts	George Adams
Bill Stubbs	Charles Mason
Andrew	Charles Dowd
Mrs. Coulter	Maud Hosford
Winifred Coulter	Mary Faber
Flora Beasley	Louise Closser
Miss Hackney	Carolyn Lee

Edgar Selwyn's three-act farce, "It's All Your Fault," seen for the first time at the Savoy last night, has the merit of brevity. The final curtain fell before 10:30, which, for a New York first night, is a sort of record-breaking achievement. In the meantime, however, a company containing a number of very competent actors had succeeded in extracting some merriment from a series of complications arranged with the precision and exactness one might use in laying trains of gunpowder for a Fourth of July celebration. The apparent object in writing of "It's A.. Your Fault" was to provide at least one detonation of laughter at the end of each act. This much Edgar Selwyn accomplished neatly, deftly, and with rather unusual skill for a new maker of farce. Incidentally, numerous minor explosions kept his audience in a good humor.

Having said so much in commendation of Mr. Selwyn's farce, there really remains little to occasion comment. The piece is built along familiar lines, with the inevitable prevarication as its starting point and an accumulation of lies carrying the story and the fun forward through the three acts. The first fib, told to deceive a doting father-in-law into the belief that he is a grandfather, at once implicates the best friend of the fictitious parent in a tissue of falsehoods, in which, in his effort to extricate himself, he involves half a dozen people as innocent as himself. Mr. Selwyn's farce has one essential difference, however, from its many forbears, in respect to the fact that for once no one of the liars has any facility in the art. All lack glibness; in consequence, all alike share in the troubles that result from the primary deception.

Howard Beasley, for instance, having blundered into the mistake of deceiving Caxton Coulter, his wife's father, with respect to their offspring, lacks the cool assurance required to carry off the deception, even when accident places the means, in the form of an escaped truant, ready to his hand. His friend, Jack Dobbins, having agreed to help him out, also lacks the nerve requisite to the task, and blunders out an explanation. But it is, of course, one of those explanations which does not explain, its only effect being to eventually plunge the whole Coulter household into gloom, the head of the establishment himself falling under suspicion when the parentage of the child ultimately becomes a matter of general speculation.

In the general mix-up an ancient and respectable governess, whose husband had deserted her years before, becomes an object of suspicion, and the familiar expedient of mistaken identities, employed with no little adroitness in an amusing situation in which every man in the house draws a woman other than the one he had hoped to meet, brings the laughter to its highest point.

Mr. Selwyn's farce suffers chiefly from its obviousness and from occasional lines, innocent enough in themselves, that provide the cue to guffaws on the part of persons greedily sensitive to every suggestion of a possible double entendre.

Mr. Selwyn, as the original cause of all the trouble, played with commendable directness and naturalness, although he makes the mistake by no means uncommon in the case of young actors of giving to scenes of farcical seriousness the same kind of tragic sincerity which is employed advantageously in weightier plays. Herbert Sleath, too, sharing in this mistake, was otherwise graceful, easy, and agreeable. Maud Hosford played the heavy, wronged wife with about the proper amount of farcical dignity, and Louise Closser contributed her talent and experience to a fragmentary juvenile rôle, which her skill served to make amusing whenever opportunity afforded. This, by the way, was not often.

The audience was apparently much amused at Master Pincus, a former newsboy, who provided a touch of vulgar realism and translated the patois of the streets to the Savoy stage with about the success that might have been expected.

"LEAH KLESCHNA" AGAIN.

Mrs. Fiske Seen in a Favorite Role in the Academy of Music.

Mrs. Fiske began a Spring season in New York last night, bringing back "Leah Kleschna" this time to the Academy of Music. Although this actress has played in many New York theatres, this is said to be her first appearance on the stage of the Fourteenth Street playhouse.

"Leah" is already familiar to local theatregoers. The piece was given last season, and during the early weeks of the Fall at the Manhattan Theatre. Mrs. Fiske has made much of Mr. McLellan's study of the girl thief redeemed by the sure sympathy and human faith of a good man, who happens also to be a nobleman. It is already accepted as one of her most popular rôles.

The cast last night was the same as that of last Fall, and, with the exception of Frederic de Belleville, who replaced Mr. Cartwright as Kleschna, substantially that of the original production. A large audience welcomed Mrs. Fiske and her company with a will. The usual curtain calls followed the big scenes of the robbery, the explanation, and Leah's flight from her father.

John Mason, George Arliss, Frederic de Belleville, W. B. Mack, Emily Stevens, Belle Bohn, and the rest were all warmly applauded in their now familiar rôles. The final scene of sunlit lettuce fields produced its never-failing effect. "Leah" is to be continued through the first two weeks of Mrs. Fiske's stay.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commander of the Department of the East, United States Army, with Mrs. Grant and a party of friends, are to occupy boxes for the performance of "Lincoln" at the Liberty Theatre to-morrow night.

AMERICAN MUSIC HEARD.

Second Concert of the New Music Society at Carnegie Hall.

The second concert of the New Music Society of America, given last night at Carnegie Hall, served to bring forward those American compositions new to New York. A concerto for violin, in D minor, by Henry Holden Huss of New York; two contrasted pieces, "Il Penseroso" and "L'Allegro," by David Stanley Smith of New Haven, and an orchestral fantasy, "The Mystic Trumpeter," by F. S. Converse of Westwood, Mass. There was also on the programme George W. Chadwick's dramatic overture, "Melpomene," which has been played here two or three times before.

Of the three new works only Mr. Converse's fantasy gave promise that it might secure a permanent place in concert repertory. It is a tone poem which attempts a musical paraphrase of that section of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" called "From Noon to Starry Night." It revealed Mr. Converse as a composer with many musical ideas and a good mastery of orchestral utterance, and one who, while he attempts and achieves much color, seeks for beauty and euphony rather than startling and noisy effects.

Mr. Huss's concerto enlisted the able support of Miss Maud Powell in the solo part. Much enthusiasm followed her playing, but it must be credited more to the player than to the composition, which was not skillfully orchestrated, and except in a very pretty and flowing larghetto was dry and uninteresting. The "Il Penseroso" and "L'Allegro" of Mr. Smith was an attempt to body forth the contrasting moods of Milton's poems. The result was not convincing, though the music was fluent and inoffensive.

The Vassar Students' Aid Society was enriched to the extent of nearly $1,000 by its benefit yesterday afternoon, and incidentally an audience which crowded the Hudson Theatre was provided with an agreeable entertainment, including, among other features, three plays which have not hitherto been seen. Mark Twain was the centre of one admiring group in a lower stage box, and David Warfield, in another box, provided additional encouragement to the actors who had contributed their services for the occasion. Young women, daintily gowned, sold candy in the lobby, Vassar fudge, made by Vassar girls, proving especially alluring.

For the subject of his play, "The Mallet's Masterpiece," Edward Peple went back to those fabled days when ancient Kings were wont to award a daughter's hand to the victorious hero. But on the Island of Melos the beautiful Adonia was to be won in the art of peace, not war. The King, her father, had decreed that her hand must go to the man who fashioned the most impressive marble.

Philotias and Vasta are rivals in art, but otherwise fast friends until the maiden smiles with favor upon the former. Then Vasta, mad with jealousy, steals into the home of his rival, and, seizing a mallet, seeks to destroy the marbled image of Maternity which Philotias has almost completed. When the sculptor returns he is at first in doubt as to whose hand has wrought the ruin, but the finding of a golden clasp which he had presented to Vasta in token of friendship gives the clue to the mystery. Subsequently the two men meet, and, in the presence of his rival and the maiden they both love, Philotias draws the curtain from before the statue.

The novel idea involved in Mr. Peple's play—and it is both novel and pleasing—is here revealed, for in the broken fragment of marble is seen the Venus de Milo. The enemy's mallet has given the one stroke which was needed to complete the masterpiece.

William C. De Mille was the author of "The Land of the Free," the second of the plays of the afternoon. Its theme is of the simplest, but it vibrates emotion, and, as played by Robert Paton Gibbs, proved to be a tense bit of life.

Briefly, the play describes one of those common occurrences in the Barge Office where the alien with his face toward the promised land is forced to return to his native heath. Luigi Ricardo, a Sicilian, waits for his wife and two children who are coming to join him in his humble home in Mulberry Bend. He is interrogated by the immigration officer, who learns that he is earning only $8 a week, and that his wife is sick and cannot work. Then follows the meeting of the happy father and the mother and children, who have just come from the steerage.

At this point the officer informs Luigi that his wife and offspring must return to Naples. The man pleads, threatens, offers his savings, and, finding that nothing will avail, announces that he, too, will go back home if his family is denied admittance. But he lacks the passage money, and finally, amid weeping and wailing, the wife and children are led away while Luigi sinks to the floor in an outburst of grief.

Mr. Gibbs's make-up was a superb bit of colorful realism, and he played the rôle of the Sicilian with simple and appealing naturalness.

The dramatic features of the afternoon were relieved by a one-act romantic operetta, written by Harold McGrath and Fred W. Jackson, in which the youthful Louis XV. was introduced in a forest romance involving himself and a pretty shepherdess, with the watchful eyes of the Duc de Richelieu exercising a discreet and proper chaperonage. Several entertaining musical interpretations were contributed by Mrs. Willa Holt-Wakefield, a particularly amusing one detailing the experiences of Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire.

CARS FOR THE SMOKERS.

Twenty open cars that were in operation on Broadway lines yesterday bore large signs saying "Smoking Car." Every seat in these cars was available to smokers. There was much rejoicing when the cars appeared. The men who hate to throw away half-smoked cigars came to the conclusion that they were fixed for the Summer.

"I guess the ladies won't be hunting for the last four seats," said one devotee of the weed, "and then talking about the lack of gallantry on the part of New York men who persist in smoking."

The speaker, in common with ninety-nine out of every hundred men who boarded the smoking cars, was in error when he assumed that the plan was to work all Summer. As soon as the regular allotment of Summer cars is in operation the smoking signs will be removed and the usual four seats reserved for smokers.

The putting on of the smoking cars at this time is a recogntion on the part of the Metropolitan Railway that smokers are entitled to some consideration. When only a small proportion of open cars is run the four rear seats are manifestly insufficient to accommodate those who would smoke.

MILLER RIDES CLEVERLY AT THE BENNING TRACK

Pilots Three Winners and a Second Horse During Afternoon.

FIVE FAVORITES IN FRONT

August Belmont's Curriculum Wins Easily from The Galloper—Big Crowd in Attendance.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Five favorites and a strong second choice were registered as winners at the Benning track to-day. The weather was of a Springlike character, and this, coupled with an excellent card, attracted an unusually large crowd for a Monday. Hundreds of women in handsome costumes gave the grand stand an Easterlike appearance. Jockey Miller had a successful day, riding three winers and one second horse.

Tickle, an odds-on favorite, had no difficulty in accounting for the first race by six lengths. Bettie Bouncer got the place from Baby Willie in a hard drive. Gertrude F., on which a tip had gone all over the ring, acted badly at the post, and finally, when the barrier went up, whirled and was left.

August Belmont's entries in the second race, Curriculus and Fon Du Lac, were coupled and made the favorites. Curriculum's jockey, Morris, waited until the turn into the stretch, and then came away and won, eased up, from The Galloper, which just beat Woodline for the place.

Campaigner and Powderhorn were made nearly even favorites for the third, the former closing at a trifle the lower odds. Powderhorn blew up on the turn and did not figure in the result. Campaigner won handily, with Brittanby second, and Strongarm third.

The Clown had the fourth all his own way, Vagabond getting the place from Hocus Pocus without serious effort.

The upset of the day was in the fifth event, in which Belmont's Lord of the Vale was at all times a hot favorite. All of the starters were fancied, however, Ben Hodder and Pater especially carrying a load of money. Pater and Ben Hodder were the first to show, but the latter soon dropped back, Lord of the Vale and Race King forging ahead of him. So they ran to the end, the Belmont horse making an unavailing effort to overtake the fleet Pater in the last furlong.

Reidmoore, which opened as an even favorite with Debaker at 2 to 1 in the last race, was so heavily played that at post time his odds had dropped to 6 to 5. He ran away with the race, Dekaber getting the place easily from Widow's Mite. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—For fillies and mares, three-year-olds and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Tickle, 92 pounds, (Miller,) 1 to 3 and out, won; Bettie Bouncer, 92, (McDaniel,) 5 to 1 and 7 to 10, second; Baby Willie, 92, (Schaller,) 40 to 1, third. Time—1:03 2-5. Hattie Day, Gertrude F., Cassandra, and Azure also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For fillies and geldings, maiden two-year-olds; half a mile, old course. Curriculum, 99 pounds, (C. Morris,) 7 to 5 and 1 to 2, won; The Galloper, 99, (McDaniel,) 4 to 1 and 8 to 5, second; Woodline, 99, (L. Smith,) 20 to 1, third. Time—0:51. Fond Du Lac, Orphan Lad, Ponemah, Wabash Queen, Jai Alai, Windfall, and Pantaloon also ran.

William F. Hoppe, the youngest billiard champion that the game has ever known, will not play in the international championship tournament. This the meeting at the eighteen-inch balk line game, two counts in balk, for which Jacob Schaefer, George Slosson, Louis Cure, Ora Morningstar, and Albert G. Cutler are entered and which begins next Monday in the Madosin Square Garden Concert Hall. Hoppe declares that he was entered as a competitor without his consent.

Two of the promoters visited Hoppe's billiard room, 56 West Thirtieth Street, last night and enedavored to get his to declare his entry. This he positively refused to do. As the holder of the world's championship at eighteen-inch balk line, one count in balk, Hoppe believes that he should receive the same financial consideration as other competitors. This he declares was denied to him. He therefore decided to remain out of the tournament and to immediately challenge the winner, remaining in practice until that time. Hoppe's decision not to play caused a sensation last night and greatly disconcerted the promoters of the tournament.

So many vexatious points have been raised by the contestants entered for the championship tournament that a meeting of the players will be held this morning for the purpose of clearing away all obstacles. Jacob Schaefer, Louis Cure, Ora Morningstar, George Sutton, George Slosson, and Albert G. Cutler, the entrants, have been notified to attend the meeting, so that the details of the eighteen-inch balk-line rules, under which they will play, may be fully understood. Other disputed details of the big tournament will be discussed and settled. The referee will also be selected, and a schedule arranged for the opening games.

Cure, the Frenchman, won both of his practice matches yesterday at Maurice Daly's Academy. In the afternoon he defeated Daly by the score of 300 points to 217 at two counts in balk at the eighteen-inch game. Cure's average was a fraction above 23, and his high runs 38 and 57. Daly finished with an average of 16, and his best run was 62. Cure outplayed Daly two counts to one in the night game, scoring 400 to 197, with an average of 16 15-26. His best run was 68.

Thomas J. Gallagher met William F. Hoppe at the latter's room, 56 West Thirtieth Street, upon his return from Atlantic City, where he had gone after his match with Slosson a week ago. Gallagher defeated the young champion by 400 points to 285, the winner having an average of 14 22-27, and a high run of 96. Hoppe's average was 10 25-26, and his high run 64.

George Sutton will begin his practice this afternoon at the Broadway Academy, Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway. He will meet different contestants at 400 point games at eighteen-inch balk-line, two counts in balk, both afternoon and evening, until the beginning of the tournament.

KEENE HORSES OUT FOR WORK

In the training gallops on the Long Island race tracks yesterday morning the most conspicuous stable represented was that of James R. Keene, trained by James Rowe at the Sheepshead Bay course. The establishment this season is somewhat larger than that which represented Mr. Keene last year, and is plentifully supplied with two-year-olds. Those that aroused the greatest interest yesterday were the three sons of the dead Commando, Kuroki, Oyama, and Nogi, all of which cantered and breezed, Oyama finishing a half mile in 0:57, Kuroki a similar distance in 0:50, and Nogi simply finishing out in a half-speed gallop.

In the several sets of two-year-olds that were exercised the watchers noted two more Commando colts, which represent the last of the produce of that horse, these being Peter Paul and Superman. The two-year-olds had easy work, and though a number of them are advanced far enough to make it probable that they will race at the early meetings, it was difficult for the observers to pick out any that seemed being specially fitted for Aqueduct and Jamaica. Bohemian, a stake winning two-year-old for Mr. Keene last season, was out for a three-furlong gallop in 0:42, but as he is well engaged in stakes it is not probable that he will be seen in public before the Belmont Park meeting.

Battle Axe, a stake winner for H. P. Whitney last season, now owned by H. K. Vingut and engaged in the Carter Handicap, took a place on the horse watchers' lists as a prospective starter for the first big event of the New York racing season after he galloped a half mile in easy style in 0:54. Kilkare, which still holds public attention as a winner at odds of 200 to 1 last Summer, was another horse of note among the gallopers at Sheepshead Bay.

At Gravesend many strings were out and galloped close about racing speed, the animals that were most noticed being the horses trained by Thomas Welsh, in whose lot Ormondale, winner of last year's Futurity, worked six furlongs in 1:24, pulling all the way, and Merry Lark and Inquisitor, which galloped six furlongs in 1:27. A communication from J. W. (Bub) May requesting that stall room be reserved for his stable of ten horses, now at Memphis, gave the information that the trainer will come on to the East in a few days to give his horses a chance for a rest before the opening at Aqueduct.

NOT A HIT OFF CHESBRO.

Orth, However, Pitched Poorly and New Yorks Beat Atlanta, 6 to 5.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 2.—Atlanta made a ninth-inning finish against the Greater New Yorks this afternoon, scoring two runs and bringing the "fans" to their feet with excitement. The locals failed, however, to overcome the lead the visitors had secured in the earlier innings. The final score was New York, 6; Atlanta, 5. "Happy Jack" Chesbro's delivery was untouchable during the five innings he was doing the honors for the visitors. He did not allow a hit, and at the same time did not appear to exert himself very much. He is down to pitching weight and cuts loose the ball with a free and easy motion that presages a good season.

Orth, on the other hand, was batted rather sharply, particularly in the seventh and ninth innings, when the locals bunched their hits. The fielding feature of the game was a double play by Chase to Conroy and back to Chase.

Griffith's men started the run-getting, sending Laporte, the Buffalo recruit, across the plate in the second inning. In the third inning the visitors added another tally, three hits with a fielder's choice sandwiched in between, being the means by which the run was scored. Raymond retired from the box at the end of the fourth inning and "Doc" Childs went in to pitch for the locals. In the sixth inning the New Yorks scored four runs, a base on balls, two hits, and a wild throw by Childs doing the work. After this the Major Leaguers did not come near scoring. The score:

ROUND UP OF ATHLETES FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES

American Team Members Meet at New York A. C.

SAIL FOR ATHENS TO-DAY

Boys Receive Handsome Souvenir Medals and Well-Wishes of Prominent Athletic Officials.

America's team of athletes for the Olympic Games at Athens, Greece, met as a body for the first time yesterday. The men who hope to win the track and field supremacy of the world in the ancient Stadium gathered in the board room of the New York Athletic Club, Sixth Avenue and Central Park South. It was a notable assemblage of men who are the creators of athletic records, many of which stand as world's marks. As they listened to the "godspeed" of John H. Van Wormer, President of the New York Athletic Club; of Julian Curtiss, and of Fred W. Rubien, the latter the Vice President of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, there was an evident welding together of the forces.

There were, all told, thirty-four men who gathered about the long table in the board room. They will leave on the Barbarossa of the North German Lloyd Line this morning. Upon the breast of each was pinned the gold medals, swung from the white and blue ribbons, the souvenir trophies presented to the members of the team by Lieut. Charles J. Dieges of the Twenty-second Regiment. They also received the caps which will designate the team—light, loose headgear of white flannel, with an embroidered United States shield above the visor. "Matty" Halpin of the New York Athletic Club, who will act as manager and director of the team, was present, and he assumed charge of the men immediately at the close of the meeting.

The team is the most remarkable one, both in numbers and from the standpoint of athletic performance, that has ever left this country for competition abroad. It is because of this fact that it is believed that as a body it will be successful in capturing the major portion of the points in the games which begin April 22 and continue to May 2. The only race which is feared by the Americans is the Marathon contest, a twenty-six-and-one-quarter-mile grind from Marathon to Athens. There was considerable elation manifested yesterday by the fact that Martin J. Sheridan, the all-around champion, was able to go. Up to the last moment there had been a question as to Sheridan's leave of absence from the Park Department. The matter was arranged satisfactorily, however, and he takes his place. Richard Sheldon, the weight thrower, will not accompany the team.

Capt. Langreuther of the Barbarossa notified Manager Halpin yesterday that he would do all in his power to keep the American athletes in fine trim on the trip over to Naples. He has even agreed to fix up a running track on the deck if necessary. From Naples the athletes travel by rail to Brindisi and from there to Athens upon a ship furnished by the Grecian Government. James E. Sullivan, who is the official representative of the United States at the Olympic games, having received his commission from President Roosevelt, will meet the American team at Naples.

Among the men who will compose the team and who will sail this morning are W. D. Eaton, W. A. Schaick, Lawson Robertson, and F. R. Moulton, sprinters; Harry L. Hillman, Jr., Eli B. Parsons, George H. Queyrouze, Paul H. Pilgrim, Howard V. Valentine, James D. Lightbody, and C. J. Bacon, quarter and half mile runners; J. P. Sullivan, George V. Bonhag, Harvey W. Cohn, and Michael Spring, distance runners; Joseph Forshaw, R. L. Fowler, and William G. Frank, for the Marathon race; Ray C. Ewry, and H. W. Kerrigan, high jumpers; Meyer Prinstein, broad jumper; James S. Mitchel, Robert Edgren, weights; D. A. Sullivan, and I. Niflot, wrestlers; Martin J. Sheridan, F. A. Bornamann, J. W. Spencer, Hugo M. Friend, E. C. Glover, and R. G. Leavitt. The two American swimmers, Daniels and Schwartz started for Athens last week.

President J. B. McCable of the Amateur Athletic Union, sent an encouraging telegram to the team. The athletes will board the Barbarossa at 10 o'clock this morning and she is scheduled to sail an hour later.

Kentucky Futurity's Big Nomination.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 2.—The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association announces that the number of mares nominated in the $21,000 Kentucky Futurity, for foals of 1903, is 1,200. [illegible] largest nominator is the Walnut Hall [illegible] of L. V. Harkness, Donerail, Ky. Next in order is the Empire City farm of William Simpson & Son, Cuba, N. Y., with [illegible]-one mares.

Thirty-six States and Territories are represented in the list. Kentucky, as usual, is the largest nominator, with 429 mares, over one-third of the entire number. New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, and Ohio follow in the order named. Among the famous racing stallions which appear in the list of sires are the trotters Cresceus, Directum, Charley Herr, Kinney Lou, Arion, and Kremlin, and the pacers Joe Patchen, John R. Gentry, Searchlight, and Rubenstein.

Long Island Oarsmen Meet.

[illegible] annual regatta of the Long Island Rowing Association will be held on Flushing Bay, L. I., June 20. The date and location were decided upon last night at the annual meeting of the association, which was held at the Seawanhaka Boat Clubhouse, 411 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. John J. Waldeman of the Brooklyn Rowing Club was re-elected President for the third term. Dr. R. J. Bell of the Crescent Athletic Club succeeds D. L. Wilson as Vice President, and T. J. Brennan of the Ravenswood Boat Club was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer for the sixth consecutive year. The annual report was very satisfactory with a balance of $300 in the treasury.

This system I can guarantee will pay for itself in one year. There are cheap, unprincipled parties imitating and selling an inferior article as the LOGAN'S STALL. See that the name M. Logan is on each drain pan for your own protection. 1,642 Broadway.

DRYDEN QUITS AS DIRECTOR.

Resigns from the Board of the Public Service Corporation.

United States Senator John F. Dryden resigned from the Directorate of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey yesterday at the annual meeting of stockholders in Newark. The Senator's letter gave as his reason the pressure of his public duties in Washington, which, he said, prevented him from giving attention to the affairs of the corporation.

It was expected that something would develop at the meeting in connection with the reported consolidation of the North Jersey trolley system, with the Hudson tunnels interests, but the business of the meeting was confined to the election of officers. James P. Dusenberry was elected to succeed Senator Dryden, and A. B. Carleton, Thomas Dolan, George R. Gray, A. R. Kuser, Thomas N. McCarty, Randall Morgan, and John I. Waterbury, the retiring members, were re-elected.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise; Call Money Rates, 6@10 Per Cent.

From the opening to the close of business yesterday the advance in prices was practically continuous, and at the end of the day substantial gains had been scored by almost every active stock on the list. In the morning session the movement found encouragement in dispatches from the West telling of additions to the ranks of those bituminous operators who have submitted to the union's demands in the matter of wages and whose properties in consequence will continue open, as well as in the arrival here of $1,150,000 of the gold recently engaged in Berlin, and a decline in the rate for demand sterling. Further reports of excellent February earnings by various railroads, typified by Louisville and Nashville, with its incease of $69,000 in net, were also encouraging, as was the favorable news from Algeciras, which came to hand too late to influence Saturday's dealings. There were indications that reinvestment of dividend and interest moneys was under way, with the natural effect upon prices. An advance in call money to 10 per cent. late in the day, this representing the highest rate touched for day-to-day money since the first week in January, even when reinforced by a break of 5 points in Consolidated Gas, exerted only momentary influence upon prices, which closed the day at top figures in most instances, the transactions having been far above the million-share mark for the first time in many days.

Although anthracite mines were generally closed yesterday, and the question of a permanent strike is in abeyance until after the conference of operators and miners to-day, the stocks of the "anthracite roads" were among the strongest and most active issues of the day. Reading in all rose 3⅜ points; Delaware & Hudson, Lehigh Valley, also scored substantial gains, as did Pennsylvania and New York Central. The general belief still is that, owing to the heavy supplies of coal held in reserve, a strike in the anthracite region will be of short duration, if there is to be a strike. Baltimore and Ohio rose 3 points, Norfolk & Western 2⅜ points, and Chesapeake & Ohio 1½ points on the general understanding that any curtailment of production in the bituminous mines elsewhere would result in enlarging the sales of the various coal companies in which these roads are either directly or indirectly interested.

Final preparations for the quarter day's disbursements of dividends and interest were, of course, responsible for the sharp upturn in money and the recognition of the fact that this disturbance will be more or less temporary was at the bottom of the indifference to it displayed by the stock market. The rise in rates led to no similar advance in time rates, while it did succeed in bringing about loans here for out-of-town banks, and a decline in the rate for demand sterling. No further engagements of gold at Berlin or other European centres were announced, but it was again asserted that conditions are such that a slight increase in the bids of our bankers would suffice to secure considerable quantities of gold. The London market was distinctly cheerful, finding encouragement in the settlement of the Moroccan controversy and the better outlook for money following this settlement. Predictions were made by international banking houses with London connections that a reduction of the Bank of England rate would follow close upon the heels of the elimination of the Moroccan dispute. Advices regarding the proximity of a new Russian loan affected Russian securities at Paris and at St. Petersburg.

New Metal Exchange Officers.

FISH STILL ON TOP IN ILLINOIS CENTRAL

Harriman No Longer Chairman of Finance Committee.

COMMITTEES CUT TO TWO

The President's Control Is Apparently Secure Now Until the Annual Meeting in October.

The committees of the Illinois Central, the control of which E. H. Harriman is said to be trying to get from President Stuyvesant Fish, have been reorganized in the last few days. The result leads Wall Street to believe that Mr. Fish has come out decidedly on top, at least for the time.

The number of the committees has been cut down from four to two and the membership of each new committee made five, instead of four, as heretofore. Mr. Harriman, who was formerly Chairman of the Committee on Finance and of the Advisory Committee, no longer holds a Chairmanship. He is still a member of the Committee on Law and Finance, which succeeds to the duties of the Committee on Finance, but Walther Luttgen has been made Chairman of the new committee.

The changes were made known in this statement, issued yesterday from the offices of the road:

> The committees of the Board of Directors of the Illinois Central have never been executive, but have always been advisory or recommendatory. Until recently they were constituted as follows:
>
> Committee on Law—Charles A. Peabody, W. Morton Grinnell, Robert W. Goelet.
>
> Committee on Finance—E. H. Harriman, Walther Luttgen, Charles M. Beach.
>
>
> Advisory Committee—E. H. Harriman, John W. Auchincloss, Charles A. Peabody.
>
> The latter are the Chairmen of the three preceding committees.
>
> At the beginning of this year, by the unanimous vote of the board, the old committees were abolished and two new committees, whose powers and duties are also recommendatory and not executive, were created, viz.:
>
> Committee on Railroad—John W. Auchincloss, John Jacob Astor, Charles A. Peabody, Cornelius Vanderbilt.
>
> In each case the first name is that of the Chairman. The President is and has been a member of all standing committees.

The announcement also says that the old committees were abolished and the new committees created by unanimous action of the Board of Directors at the beginning of this year. It was learned yesterday, however, from an authoritative source, that, although the rearrangement of the committees was voted for in January, the make-up of the committees was held in abeyance. It was only within the last few days that the names were decided on.

Of the Committee on Railroad, Messrs. Auchincloss and Astor are believed to support Mr. Fish, so that counting Mr. Fish as an ex-officio member of the committee, the Fish forces in this committee are regarded as having a majority of one. Of the members of the Committee on Law and Finance, all but Mr. Harriman are regarded as being supporters of Mr. Fish.

The rearrangement that has been effected in the Illinois Central committees was regarded yesterday in Wall Street as securing Mr. Fish's control of Illinois Central affairs, at least until the annual meeting of the stockholders. This will not be held until next October. Mr. Harriman is regarded as controlling only a minority interest in the stock of the Illinois Central. At the same time it is a matter of general knowledge that Mr. Fish and his immediate associates have not controlled Illinois Central through an actual ownership of a majority of the stock, but through the voting of proxies, which a majority of the stockholders for years have given in support of the present management.

CALL MONEY AT 10 PER CENT.

Rate the Highest for This Time of Year Since 1903.

Call money rose yesterday to 10 per cent., the highest rate quoted at this time of the year in any year since 1903, when call funds in the week ended April 3 lent as high as 15 per cent. Time money was not affected by the advance in call rates yesterday. On the contrary, it was quoted fractionally lower for some periods than it was last week. The scarcity of call funds, which resulted in the establishment of a 10 per cent. rate, was generally attributed to the fact that money which had been accumulated to meet the large dividend and interest payments which fell due yesterday was not available for loans in yesterday's market. The opinion was expressed in banking circles that the call money market would recede gradually as this money finds its way back to the market, and that greater ease in the call money market could be fairly counted on for the near future.

The Sub-Treasury transferred $300,000 yesterday by telegraph to Washington, D. C. It is very seldom that the New York Sub-Treasury is called on to make a telegraphic transfer to Washington. Yesterday's transfer, however, it was said, had no special significance.

New York bankers were advised yesterday that the $5,000,000 gold which had been offered to New York by Berlin at the close of last week has since been taken by Paris. The fact that this large block of gold was taken for Paris account was regarded as an indication that the French markets are strengthening themselves still further against the issuance of the coming Russian loan, which, according to yesterday's cables, will probably be announced immediately after Easter.

NEW HAVEN ROAD'S OFFER.

Will Give One Share of Its Stock for Consolidated Railway Debenture.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2.—Official notice has been given by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company that the corporation offers to exchange one share of its capital stock for each $200 face value 4 per cent. debenture of the Consolidated Railway Company of the issues of Jan. 1, 1904, and Jan. 2, 1905. The Consolidated Railway Company is the holding company of the larger corporation for the street railway system of the latter company.

The offer will be open and exchange may be effected between May 1, 1906, and July 1, 1906, with exchange of accrued interest on the debentures for accrued dividends on the stock. Provision is made for the exchanges in New Haven, Boston, and New York, and new stock certificates will be issued as soon after May 1 as is practicable.

Inquiry at the offices of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Compaany here brings out the fact that the outstanding Consolidated Railway debentures affected by that plan and in the hands of the public amount to between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000, which, if all are exchanged, will add about half that sum to the capital stock of the New Haven steam company.

It is stated here on semi-official railroad authority that the proposed exchange of stock is of considerable importance, as being a new assumption of the holding company's liabilities by the parent steam corporation and suggesting a step toward the ultimate merger of the steam and electric companies.

BONDS FOR EXTENDING ROAD.

Wisconsin Central Stockholders to Pass on Proposed Issue.

The stockholders of the Wisconsin Central Railroad, it was announced yesterday, will vote on May 8 on the question of authorizing a bond issue to provide funds for the extension which the road is now building from Owen, Wis., to Duluth and Superior. The cost, so far, of the work on this extension was temporarily financed last year by an issue of $5,000,000 of five-year 4½ per cent. notes dated July, 1905. These notes were not sold, but $1,000,900 of the issue was pledged to secure a temporary loan, which fell due yesterday, but which, it is understood, has been extended. The exact amount and other details of the proposed bond issue have not yet been fully determined. The plan, however, is to finance the Duluth extension in permanent form.

A banker largely interested in the Wisconsin Central said yesterday that there was no immediate pressure for funds, for the reason that all the money needed could be made available through the issue of notes, which may be pledged to carry on the extension, pending the issuance of the securities which will represent the permanent financing of the project.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, April 2.—Supplies of money were more plentiful in the market to-day. Discounts were weaker in anticipation of improved monetary conditions.

Traders on the Stock Exchange were cheerful, the new account promising broadening business. Prices generally advanced. Consols hardened and lifted up gilt-edged securities, in view of the cheapness of money, the result of the Moroccan Conference, and the satisfactory revenue returns. Home rails advanced.

Americans opened firm on the favorable bank return and the belief that the coal situation in the United States will improve. Trading was fairly active, and prices closed at the best quotations of the day.

Foreigners were firm on Paris support. Japanese were in good demand, especially the last issues.

Kaffirs were fairly firm on French buying.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104¼.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15.60; Lisbon, 4.50.

Bullion amounting to £8,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

The Stock Exchange here will be closed April 13, 14, and 16.

EXCHANGE PARTNERSHIPS.

The Firm of Ketcham, Napping & Co. Soon Taken Off the List.

The Stock Exchange joker spent a very busy Sunday. When the early brokers gathered about the bulletin board on the floor of the Exchange yesterday morning they found posted an astonishing number of firm changes. To be sure, April 1 had gone from the calendar, but even the least humorous member did not have to go far down the list to see the painstaking labor of the joker.

There was the new firm of Roe & Bacon, a little in advance of the Hudson River product, but both ingredients are to be found at all seasons in the Stock Exchange directory. Next were Brown, Stout & Beers; Limburger, Lemon & Sage; Currie, Eells & Co. Passing through all the gastronomic combinations that a list of 1,100 members could produce, the changes were rung through the animal and vegetable kingdoms. After the more obvious Bass & Fish and Wrenn, Robbins & Rook and Schley, Fox & Leo, the searcher of the directory had hit upon such as Ketcham & Missam, Cannon, Schott & Noyes; Cutting, Slaughter & Slayback, and two score of others. About every name in the Stock Exchange list to which a joke could be attached was meat for the joker. Lebaire & Bull was the best he could do for the traders.

The circulation based on United States bonds amounted to $512,221,551, an increase for the year of $67,351,372 and an increase for the month of $3,047,985.

The amount of circulation secured by lawful money was $42,445,416, an increase for the year of $11,366,650 and an increase for the month of $815,087.

SUCCEEDS MALTING COMPANY

American Malt Corporation Is Formed with $15,000,000 Capital.

The old American Malting Company, which was one of the first corporations whose Directors were compelled to refund dividends paid out of principal, is to be succeeded by the American Malt Corporation, incorporated in New Jersey yesterday with a capital of $15,000,000.

The suits of stockholders to force certain of the Directors who voted the payment of dividends which had not been earned to make restitution were carried to the highest courts, but the defense avoided the rendering of final decision by paying back the amounts under dispute. The capital of the new company is divided into $9,000,000 preferred and $6,000,000 common.

Under the reorganization plan the old American Malting Company preferred stock will be exchanged for 62 per cent of the preferred of the American Malt Corporation, and the old common will receive 44 per cent. in new common. The new preferred stock is entitled to 4 per cent. dividends from April 1 until Oct. 1, 1906, and the rate thereafter is to be 6 per cent.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Consumers Entering Market for Heavy Tonnages of Iron.

Local dealers report inquiries for a large tonnage of iron, and, according to Rogers, Brown & Co.'s Pittsburg advices, consumers are coming into the market for heavy tonnages for delivery in the second, third, and fourth quarters. They say: "We feel that the buying movement is close at hand, and that during the next few weeks we will have good business and better prices."

A representative of the United States Steel Corporation has this to say of the rail situation:

"How the mills are going to supply the demand for rails this year is a problem that I cannot solve at present. If orders continue to come in as rapidly as during the past month or two, the capacity of the mills will be inadequate, and, besides, there is a pronounced scarcity of raw steel which does not allow certain plants to run to their maximum capacity."

The contracts for fabricated steel placed with the American Bridge Company during March were 60,000 tons, the highest for this month in the company's history, and this did not include any steel for the projected building construction in New York.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

The local copper situation has had some transitory relief in the arrival in this port of 1,100 tons of copper from China. Last year there were heavy exports of the metal to China, and it was frequently and positively stated at the time, and for months thereafter, that this metal would all be consumed in the arts and in the Chinese currency, which was to be enormously increased. Since that time a large part of this copper has dribbled into the European market at high prices. About 20,000 tons of copper went to Europe from China last year. Copper metal went above £84 in the London market yesterday. The closing prices were as follows: Spot, £84 5s., an advance of 10s. over the last quotations of Friday; futures, £81 15s., an advance of £1. The closing prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Friday:

	Monday. Bid.	Monday. Asked.	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.
Lake	18.50	18.75	18.50	18.75
Electrolytic	18.25	18.50	18.25	18.50
Castings	18.00	18.25	18.00	18.25
Lead	5.35	5.45	5.35	5.45
Spelter	6.12½	6.20	6.12½	6.20
Tin	37.57½	37.62½	37.50	37.60

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Some critics habitually associate rising prices with manipulation, distrust all symptoms of enthusiasm, and scold the market for going up in the face of many perfectly obvious reasons why conservatism should prevail; others, equally extreme in their way, will never concede that manipulation has anything to do with price movements and attribute its most flagrant results to accumulation or investment buying. One position is as ridiculous as the other. The market is never free of manipulation; on the other hand, manipulation, to succeed, must be opportune—must be conducted with due regard for at least the temporary conditions affecting values, and as those who engage in it have more at stake individually than those who follow, it is reasonable to assume that they have canvassed the ground pretty thoroughly before beginning a campaign. In the long run values determine prices, and, although manipulation frequently carries stocks above their value, the basis of a successful manipulative campaign is usually a pronounced disparity between the price at which a stock is selling and the value that can be discovered in it. A stock market without manipulation would be a stale and uninteresting affair. There would at least be very little to write about it.

The aggressive operations begun last week on the bull side have probably not passed the experimental stage. It remains to be seen with what degree of enthusiasm and with what confidence the commission house public will respond. The buying on which prices have advanced rapidly since Friday morning of last week has been of a somewhat concentrated character, professional trading foremost. It would appear, however, that most of the active operators are going one way in the market, and if they can keep it up a broader and more general speculation before the end of the month may reasonably be expected. The larger interests, vaguely so-called, are evidently in sympathy with bullish operations to a degree not previously shown since January. Commission houses have not yet begun to participate freely, but it is well known that the commission house element never gets in at the bottom. Brokers, for one thing, are still conservative as a class, and are not giving their clients the encouragement that is necessary to bring them into the market. Outside business showed some improvement yesterday, but the volume of professional trading was still disproportionate to what Wall Street describes as "general buying." The head of a large wire house said "Our people are only waiting to be told to get aboard. We are bullish here, but we are not convinced that the market is going straight up. We tell our people to be patient and buy stocks only on recessions. If we go along for several days without any reaction to speak of they will begin to get impatient and come in without our advice."

⁂

⁂

Trading in the 3½ per cent. convertible Pennsylvania bonds, which have just been released by the underwriting syndicate, was watched yesterday with interest. The offerings were rather heavy at first, but the market was well supported, and the selling pressure soon disappeared. Perhaps the strength of Pennsylvania stock, which was re-established above 140, helped the market for the bonds.

⁂

Perhaps the two most noteworthy features of yesterday's stock market were, first, the breadth of the trading, and, second, the sustained nature of the strength exhibited. On a wild and violent opening, with advances in the active stocks of ½ to 2 per cent., or more, from Saturday's closing prices, there was heavy professional profit taking. The volume of outside buying induced by the market's show of strength toward the close of last week was perhaps as large as could reasonably have been expected, but it was a continuation of the aggressive Wall Street buying begun last week, rather than any enthusiastic public response, that supported prices under traders' profit taking in the forenoon and caused them to go still higher in the afternoon, without regard to a flurry in call interest rates. Call money went as high as 10 per cent. in the last hour, whereas 8 per cent. was the highest point reached last week, but nevertheless it was in the last hour of trading that most stocks touched their highest prices, notably, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Amalgamated Copper, and the United States Steel shares. The strength and activity were well distributed.

⁂

The only prominent stock that went contrary to the trend of the general market was Consolidated Gas, which suffered a maximum decline of more than 4 points to the lowest point yet reached. The irreducible Mr. Joseph was inspired by this spectacle to say that, having survived many other perils, the market was now in danger of being asphyxiated. The general market, however, disregarded entirely the weakness of Consolidated Gas. The selling of the stock, brokers said, had every appearance of liquidation, but it looked at times as if the liquidation were being assisted by traders. One prominent room operator was reported to be hammering the stock, looking for stop-loss orders. Yesterday's decline led to the rumor that the dividend might be discontinued.

⁂

Selling Reading short, to be covered on the announcement of a coal strike, turns out to have been an unprofitable speculation. Too many did it, perhaps. The short side of Reading became very popular under 130. Bear traders sold it down to 125; it sold yesterday above 138. A good part of this recovery, no doubt, has been engineered at the expense of the short interest, but, in addition to this, the market position of the stock must have been greatly improved by the reaccumulation under 130 of large semi-speculative holdings which had been liquidated between 150 and 160.

⁂

The most convincing leadership yesterday was that of Union Pacific and the United States Steel shares.

⁂

The prominence yesterday of so many stocks that have a wide appeal to speculative sentiment tended to support the belief that the market's improvement, in the broader sense, was the result of concerted iniative. Union Pacific and the Steel stocks have already been mentioned as effective leaders. Amalgamated Copper, in which there is a very wide interest, advanced in its old manner, reaching the highest price at which it has sold on the recovery from par. It closed at a gain of 2½ per cent. The Pennsylvania group developed great strength, Baltimore & Ohio advancing more than 3 points, Norfolk & Western 2⅝ points, Chesapeake & Ohio 1½ points, and Pennsylvania itself 1⅝ points. The prominence also of several of the lower-priced stocks, notably Southern Railway, was favorably commented upon by critics, who hold that in stocks like Southern Railway, Erie, Rock Island, Mexican Central, and a few others selling under 50 there is room for a much broader speculation. The advantage of bulling low-priced stocks in a 5 per cent. money market is obvious. Brokers would preferably encourage speculation in this class of securities if a campaign were inaugurated under good auspices. An active public speculation in the low-priced stocks would indirectly facilitate a distribution of high-priced stocks, for once people begin to trade, even though they begin in the low-priced stuff, they will not confine themselves to any one class of securities.

Tuesday is likely to be a reactionary day after a strong Monday. For that reason traders are wary about buying stocks on a Monday bulge. The manner in which the market gained strength instead of losing it after a high opening, closing at the highest, influenced buying out of the rule, so that many good traders went home long of stocks expecting a continuation to-day of yesterday's advance, or at least a higher opening this morning on which to seize profits.

⁂

Those who are bulling Amalgamated Copper affirm that trade conditions are even better than they were when the stock sold around 118.

⁂

Hitherto no bull crowd has been able to carry Southern Pacific far above 70. Each time that the stock has crossed 70 it has been a good short sale, and no doubt many who have made money on previous occasions selling it on a scale up from 70 will attempt it again. Some day, in all probability, the stock will be established above 70 in good earnest, and when those who control its movements are ready to carry it above 70 and keep it there it is unlikely that they will serve notice of their intentions upon those who have formed the habit of selling it short at that price. The stock sold at 72⅞ in January and at 64⅜ in March.

⁂

There was a great resurrection yesterday of bull tips relating to almost every active issue except Consolidated Gas. The tips on that stock are all bearish.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 2.—Houston Oil common was a feature for activity on the lower side to-day and declined with almost every sale. Up to a late hour traders did not seem to be able to check its downward movement and the stock sold off to 9¼ in lots ranging from 25 to 200 shares.

The break alarmed holders of the stock here. The boom in this stock was started by certain speculators who formed a pool and scattered bullish tips broadcast, none of which have thus far been realized. The pool is said to have acquired many thousand shares, and has been disposing of some of its holdings lately.

Recently an attempt was made in Texas by some of the holders of the company's timber certificates to foreclose on the property, and this may have contributed to the decline in the price to-day, though in some quarters it was declared to be a local affair and was attributed in part to the refusal of a prominent attorney, who recently returned from a visit to Texas in the interest of the Maryland Trust Company, to discuss the condition of the property on the ground that an interview from him would probably influence the market. There were recessions in some of the favorite local issues today. United Railways pooled common dropped ¼, to 18⅝.

Commercial and Farmers' blue certificates suffered a drop of 5 points, to 140. Maryland Trust common advanced 9 points. Macon Railway and Light 5s dropped ½. G. B. S. Brewing 4s advanced ½. The close was dull, but steady.

Sales, bonds, $40,000; shares, stock, 4,916.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

CHICAGO, April 2.—There was a good tone in stocks on the local Exchange today, caused in part by the covering of some shorts in Illinois Brick shares. Though borrowing of such a stock is often difficult there was more or less bear selling accompanying the recent liquidation on trade war reports. Some of this stock was bought back to-day, apparently, and the price ran up from 62 around 63⅝. Match was firm around 133@133½ for small lots. Pneumatic Tool was firm. There were several transactions in Illinois Tunnel bonds, ranging from 92 to 92⅛ and back to 92 for $27,000.

In the afternoon Biscuit got up to the New York level, and Chicago Edison improved to 154, with a fractional setback.

Subway shares were quiet. The favorable Eastern publicity arranged for a fortnight ago developed late in the day.

THE COTTON MARKET.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR THE COTTON STATES.

For South Carolina and Georgia, fair Tuesday and Wednesday, light to fresh east to southeast winds.

For Western Florida and Alabama, fair Tuesday; Wednesday probably showers and cooler; fresh southerly winds.

Mississippi and Louisiana, fair Tuesday, showers and cooler at night or Wednesday; fresh southerly winds, shifting to northwesterly.

For Eastern Texas, showers Tuesday; Wednesday fair, fresh to brisk southerly winds; shifting to northwesterly.

Western Texas, fair, cooler Tuesday, preceded by showers in the PanHandle; Wednesday, fair. For Arkansas, probably showers Tuesday, cooler in western portion; Wednesday fair, cooler in eastern portion.

For Tennessee, fair Tuesday, showers and cooler at night or Wednesday.

After some half-hearted support yesterday morning from the bull leaders in the distant deliveries, the cotton market lapsed into lethargy. Except for a little flurry on room trading in the early afternoon, it remained in this state throughout the entire session, with the total sales of the day estimated at only 100,000 bales.

Prices at the opening were 8 points off for May at 11.08, July was 10 points down at 10.96, October 8, and December 7 at 10.32 and 10.35, respectively. May recovered to 11.15, July to 11.06, October to 10.45, and December to 10.43. The close was quiet and steady, with May 4 points lower at 11.12, July 3 points off at 11.03, October and December 2 points up at 10.42 and 10.44, respectively. The spot market was quiet and unchanged at 11.65 for middling, against 8.15 last year. Actual receipts and estimates for to-day run much under last week.

The general opinion among cotton traders yesterday was that manipulation has killed speculation in the old crop months, and that very little change may be looked for until the new crop is a little further under way.

Theodore Price issued a circular quoting Miss Giles as saying that the crop prospects had rapidly deteriorated. A 5 per cent. increase in acreage, however, is conceded, and taking last year's crop from a 27,000,000 acreage as a basis, Mr. Price calculates the next yield at 11,100,000 bales, against requiremnts of more than 12,000,000 bales. A few years ago, however, nearly 11,500,000 bales were picked from a 21,000,000 acreage, and last year the South turned out 13,600,000 bales from an acreage of somewhere about 29,000,000. With interest centred in the next growth, weather must dominate prices. Aside from frost in Georgia, it was generally clear and warmer yesterday.

On all bulges in May, it is thought that the South has sold against actual cotton held. This, it is said, has disconcerted the bull leaders, making it apparent to them that they will have to accept a great deal of cotton to sustain prices. With no outside interest in the market, the only alternative is to hold on. One broker said the bulls were now supporting the later months to make a selling basis to go short, that then, if necessary, they might accept cotton on their May options to depress the later deliveries. A great many think that the May holdings of the clique are not heavy enough to give them much concern. One house is known to be heavily short of May—for whose account is a question.

The trade with France and Germany, which sufferd a lull pending the Moroccan controversy, is said to be picking up, and German houses particularly are doing a good business, being sold up to October delivery. Liverpool spot sales were again large yesterday, being 14,000 bales at 3 points decline, 12,000 of which were American. The tone, however, was reported quiet. Middling was quoted at 6.04d, against 4.28d last year. Futures there opened quiet yesterday at 5 points decline, and closed dull at 4 to 6 points off. Manchester yarns were in good demand, and cloths were firm.

Receipts at all the United States ports were 12,153 bales, against 1,170 last week and 24,803 last year. Since Sept. 1, 6,731,409 bales, against 7,863,846 last year. Exports were 5,754 bales. Since Sept. 1, 5,102,838, against 6,407,564 last year. Interior receipts at the thirteen interior towns were 7,735 bales, against 10,895 last week, and 19,462 last year. Shipments were 13,448, against 13,675 last week and 17,807 last year. Estimated receipts for to-day are: Houston, 4,000 to 4,500 bales, against 9,360 last week and 12,428 last year; Galveston, 7,000 to 9,000 bales, against 12,110 last week and 19,751 last year. New Orleans, 5,000 to 5,500 bales, against 12,402 last week, and 14,339 last year.

Cotton Opinions.

A. O. BROWN & CO.—Strong interests are still unquestionably identified with the bull side. Yet for the moment at least the trading is confined to so narrow a groove in the absence of the outside public that we favor purchases only on declines and think any good advance should be taken advantage of to secure profits.

BAILY & MONTGOMERY—The general temper of the trade is mixed and hesitating. Where there is inclination to sell short there is fear to do so, first, because the bull party may step in and drive prices up, and, secondly, because the weather may take a fresh aspect for the worse.

T. A. McINTYRE & CO.—We think the tendency in the main will be to drag lower, and we would not advise buying further except in a moderate way on some further reaction of 10 or 15 points from the current quotations and then only for a turn. At present there is no probability of any genuine bull movement being forced, and we think that cotton can be bought to better advantage by simply waiting.

ATWOOD VIOLETT & CO.—With the situation as it now presents itself, cotton is still at a comparatively low price, and only the boldest care to sell it short.

Following are the opening, highest and lowest, and closing prices:

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—The variations in prices were unimportant, with the general tendency, however, rather upward. Business was only moderately active. Wheat, after opening firm on bullish foreign statistics and a better class of cables than had been looked for, declined ⅛c on predictions of an increased American visible supply. Later there was a rally of ⅜@⅝c on indications that the visible supply had been miscalculated, the actual figures finally showing, instead of an increase, a decrease of 859,000 bushels. At no time was the market active. The market was finally steady at a net rise of ⅛c on May, and practically no change on the latter positions. The foreign markets were somewhat irregular, with Liverpool finally steady at a net advance of ⅛@¼c; Antwerp steady at a decline of ⅛c; Berlin easy at a decline of ⅛c; Paris quiet, unchanged to 5 points lower. The market for cash wheat was quiet, but steady, with sales of 40,000 bushels at New York and 16,000 bushels at the outports. No. 2 red closed at 88⅝c, elevator, and 88⅝c, nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 88⅝c, free on board, afloat. The visible supply of wheat in America is 46,470,000 bushels, against 32,327,000 bushels last year.

CORN—The market for corn was quiet throughout, ruling nominally ⅛c lower, but recovering and closing nominally ¼c higher, with, however, only two transactions—September at 51c and 51⅛c. A decrease of 2,221,000 bushels in the American visible supply of corn was naturally a bullish influence, but its force was broken by the large movement and favorable conditions for continued large receipts and the rush of Spring work. The movement of corn was 609,000 bushels, with exports of 797,000 bushels from the Atlantic ports. The market for cash corn was quiet but firm, with sales of 18,000 bushels, including 17,000 bushels No. 2 mixed, free on board. No. 2 corn, 55c, elevator, and 52c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 53c and No. 2 yellow, 53c, free on board, afloat.

Business in local copper shares has been fairly active today, and some good-sized advances have been seen. Smelting common gained about a point, selling as high as 62, but later losing part of the gain, but holding strong at the decline. United Copper and Amalgamated Copper were both strong, and show gains of about 1 and 2 points, respectively. The closing was strong, with few stocks in sight at the current level.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Price Movements Narrow in Dull Market.

Mackay Common and the Can Issues Strong—Westinghouse Bonds Active.

Only narrow fluctuations occurred yesterday in the outside market, and, with very few exceptions, the trading was on a small scale. The most active stock in the general list was Mackay Companies common, which profited more by the day's transactions than did most other issues. Opening at 61½, the stock sold up to 62½ and closed within a small fraction of the highest for the day. The Can stocks were strong, but not very active. After dealings in a few hundred shares the common and preferred closed at 9¼ and 67, respectively, both the high prices of the day. The most active issues in the mining stocks, apart from the low-priced Dominion Copper, were United Copper, Greene Consolidated, and Nevada Consolidated. United sold as high as 68⅞, but fell off before the close to 67⅞. Most of the business in the bond department represented transactions in the new Westinghouse Electric 5s, of which $440,000 sold at 98 and 98½.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Reading and United States Steel contributed over one-half of the local business to-day, both stocks being heavily dealt in, not only by the arbitrage houses, but by floor traders and commission houses. The announcement that the Philadelphia and Western had practically abandoned the construction of a rival line to the Market Street subway and elevated had a stimulating effect upon Philadelphia Rapid Transit stock, which advanced to 30, but upon the announcement of the Mayor's candidates for the Presidencies of Common and Select Councils the improvement was entirely lost.

The Street held that the local public utility stocks will be less favorably treated than would have been the case if the regular Republican candidates for these positions had been chosen. Cambria Steel was strong and active, in sympathy with United States Steel. Lehigh Valley moved with Reading, recording a sharp advance, while Lehigh Navigation trust certificates were up 1½ points.

SENDS SUBSCRIPTIONS BACK.

United States Sugar Refining Company Returns Checks for Stock.

The three hundred or more retail grocers and others who subscribed to the stock of the proposed $100,000,000 United States Sugar Refining Company have received their subscriptions back from the company. This statement was made yesterday by Holman & Holman, formerly fiscal agents of the company, who severed their relations with it last week after notifying all the subscribers that they had better stop payment on the checks that they had given for the stock of the sugar company. W. J. Holman said yesterday that a number of the subscribers had notified him that the company had returned their checks along with their subscription contracts.

It came out yesterday that the field force employed to obtain subscriptions for the company traveled in motor cars. These cars covered all this section of the country, from Delaware to the northern part of New York State. Pennsylvania seems to have been a fruitful field for the United States Sugar canvassers. Advices from York, Penn., received yesterday said that nearly every merchant in that town had subscribed for the stock.

SMALL BILLS GROW SCARCE.

Subsidiary Coins Also Insufficient, Says National City Bank.

The country is said to be threatened with a scarcity of small bills and of subsidiary coin. The cause of this situation is set forth in the monthly circular of the National City Bank, which says:

It is possible at the present time to meet only half the demand for ones, twos, and fives, and this is the season of the year when ordinarily there is no difficulty at all in supplying every demand in full. Unless some measure of relief is provided the situation is sure to become worse each month until when crop moving is again at hand it will be acute. The ability of the Treasury to issue small bills, silver certificates of the denominations of ones, twos, and fives, is limited by the amount of large certificates sent in for redemption and the amount of free standard silver dollars on hand. It is not possible to obtain relief from redemptions, as experience has repeatedly demonstrated, and the amount of silver dollars in the Treasury against which there are no certificates outstanding is at a very low figure. The coinage of subsidiary pieces has practically ceased. There is a bill before Congress to permit the recoinage of uncurrent and abraded silver dollars into subsidiary pieces, but it is understood there is little likelihood of its passage. The only alternative is to purchase silver bars for subsidiary coinage, and while a former Attorney General has given it as his opinion that this may be done under existing law, it is believed the Government would hesitate to take so important a step without further legislation.

Several remedies for the approaching famine of small bills and small coin have been suggested. One is covered in a bill which contemplates the issue of five-dollar gold certificates, the lowest now being for $20. However there is little prospect for legislation on any currency question at this session of Congress. Treasury officials believe that the National banks themselves have it in their power to do much to avert anything like distress because of a shortage of small bills at crop moving. The National banks have not availed themselves to the extent which they should of the privilege which they have to issue one-third of their circulation in five-dollar notes.

IMPORT RECORDS BROKEN.

Appraiser's Report Shows Heavy Entries for Automobiles and Gems.

George W. Whitehead, the Appraiser of the Port of New York, gave out a report yesterday of the transactions in his office for March. The imports of precious stones aggregated $3,789,825, which was the highest record for any one month in the history of the port. In March, 1905, the importation of gems was $700,000 less than in the month just ended.

The total appraised value of importations entered at this city last month was $69,712,334, an increase approximately of $1,500,000 in comparison with the corresponding month last year.

The Appraiser's report shows a large increase in the entry of automobiles for the first three months of this year as compared with the same period a year ago. In March 109 machines, valued at $340,000, were imported, as compared with 49 cars in the same month of 1905. Since the first of the year 300 cars, appraised at $1,000,000, have been imported at this port. In the corresponding period of 1905 only 172 cars were received here.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Japanese Vegetables Awarded Lower Duty—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Judge Waite, the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained yesterday a claim filed by Y. Takakuwa and others of Honolulu, regarding the rate of duty applicable to a variety of Japanese vegetables. The merchandise was of a character unknown to the American customs officials, and was assessed at the rate of 40 per cent. under the provision in the Dingley tariff for "prepared vegetables." The importers' contention was that the articles came within the tariff paragraph for vegetables in their "natural" state.

The board overruled claims filed by F. B. Vandegrift & Co., Klauber, Horn & Co., Rosenthal & Grotta, J. B. Locke & Potts, Isler & Guye, John Menke & Co., New York, and the Jordan Marsh Company, Boston.

REFEREE FINDS COLLUSION.

Discharge from Bankruptcy Denied to Isaac Semansky—Another Refusal.

Judge Holt of the United States District Court has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Isaac Semansky, embroiderer of hosiery, formerly of 166 Elm Street, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Jan. 12, 1905, with liabilities $1,895 and no assets. Mr. Semansky gave a bill of sale of his business on Oct. 22, 1904, to Jacob Simon, and thereafter worked for him at a salary of $10 a week.

William H. Willis, referee in bankruptcy, reported that the sale of the business was without consideration, collusive, and void; that he concealed or destroyed his cash book, and that a chattel mortgage of $1,250 he gave on machinery to Louis Rosenberg, dated Aug. 2, 1904, and recorded Oct. 22, 1904, was void because of delay in filing, that it was without consideration, and collusive. The report of the referee was confirmed by Judge Holt.

Judge Holt of the United States District Court has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Alias Hurwitz, manufacturer of wrappers, formerly of 90 Prince Street, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on June 1, 1903, with liabilities $4,061 and assets $2,619, and confirmed the report of Seaman Miller, referee, who reported against the discharge.

BIGGEST JAM EVER ON THE OLD BRIDGE

TIE-UP LASTED THREE HOURS

The axle of a rear truck of Car 101 of a local train on the Brooklyn Bridge snapped like a pipestem yesterday morning and tied up traffic on the bridge for three hours. The train was on its way from Brooklyn to Manhattan and was about 300 feet from the Brooklyn anchorage. It was 7:40 A. M., and all of the bridge trains were crowded. Car 101 was the motor car of a five-car train. This train, like the others crossing the bridge, was loaded to the platform gates with Brooklynites on their way to business.

The accident tied up all traffic on the bridge roailroad and drove folks to the trolley cars, which were already crowded when the newcomers attempted to climb aboard. So many got on the trolley cars that the trolley lines became congested, the cars moving slowly for a hundred feet, then stopping, then moving another hundred feet, so that men and women who found themselves late for business at last took to the footpaths and wagon roadways, walking to Manhattan.

Two of the walkers were injured. One of these, Samuel H. Connell, a bookkeeper, of 487 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, was caught between a wagon wheel and a rail. His head and face were cut and bruised. He was removed to his home. H. M. Hunter, an employe of the Waldorf-Astoria, was pushed off a trolley car platform, and his ankle was sprained.

For an hour and a half after the accident a solid stream of humanity swept across the bridge, literally carrying back the human tide that tried to flow from the Manhattan end of the bridge. Men and women marched in lockstep. They had to. Over on the wagon roadways thousands who had managed to climb aboard trucks sang and guyed those who had to walk. It was the greatest jam ever witnessed on the old bridge.

Police Inspector Flood did much to quiet folks who became frightened at the situation in which they found themselves. He called out the police reserves of the City Hall Station and of the Fulton Street Station in Brooklyn, while Police Captain Brophy of the bridge squad held his night men on duty, while calling out his reserves. The night men had to work until after 10 o'clock, which was two hours overtime. The police did grand work handling the crowd. Some of the railroad employes, on the other hand, were criticised severely. The railroad men were rough about it. The police were polite and gentle, although they had to climb after men who had scrambled up on the steel structural work of the bridge. Everybody said something disrespectful about the Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials. At no time in the three hours' tie-up were there fewer than 20,000 men and women tramping along the bridge footpath, and at no time in the trouble did fewer than 20,000 men and women denounce the Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

The train that made all the trouble was quickly brought to a standstill after the accident. The first passenger to disregard orders not to get out was a district messenger boy. He stepped gingerly over the third rail and climbed over the high iron fence skirting the bridge car tracks. Others, including scores of women, quickly followed. Three other trains were stalled before the railroad Inspectors appeared and began issuing emergency transfer tickets good on the trolley cars.

STATE GAME LAWS MENACED.

Opposition to Admitting European Birds at All Seasons.

Several New York men interested in the game protection laws went to Albany yesterday to attend a hearing before the Assembly Fish and Game Committee on Assembly Bill No. 1,474, known as the Silz bill. It provides that European birds of certain kinds may be imported and sold in this State all the year round. The opponents of the bill maintain that the birds that might be brought here under the provisions of this bill so nearly resemble native game birds that it would be next to impossible to enforce the laws now existing for their protection.

Dr. T. S. Palmer of the Agricultural Department appeared before the committee at the request of William Dutcher, President of the Audubon Societies. He showed a wall chart containing the titles of game laws enacted in the State for the past 118 years. He said that twice before laws similar to the Silz bill had been repealed, because it was found that they were detrimental to game protection and unfair to sister States and foreign countries.

Mr. Dutcher secured from Mr. Silz and other game dealers dead bodies of the six species of European game birds that might be imported and sold here during the close season. He also had the dead bodies of native ruffed grouse, quail, and other birds. Members of the committee were unable to detect the difference between the imported birds and the native birds of the same species.

Others who spoke against the bill were Mr. Dutcher, ex-Senator Elron R. Brown, who said that $250,000 had already been spent in building up the present game laws; ex-Assemblyman Frank J. Price, W. S. Gavitt of Lyons, N. Y., ex-President of the State Fish, Game, and Forest League; Charles R. Mowry of Syracuse, representing the same body; Frank M. Chapman, representing the American Museum of Natural History, and G. O. Shields, President of the League of American Sportsmen.

GLAD TO GO TO "THE ISLAND."

White Was "Delighted" with Two Months' Sentence for Wife Beating.

"Thank you, Judge," said John White of 987 Park Avenue, in the Harlem Court yesterday, when Magistrate Crane sentenced him to two months on Blackwell's Island.

White and his wife do not agree. He tried to solve his domestic troubles last Sunday by beating her, but Patrolman Doherty of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station intervened and locked him up. In court yesterday Magistrate Crane asked Mrs. White what she wanted done with her husband.

"I want you to make him support me," she answered.

"All I can do is to send him to Blackwell's Island," said Magistrate Crane.

"He has been there five times," said Mrs. White, "and enjoys the life. Send him to the penitentiary for five or ten years, Judge."

"Can't do it," said Magistrate Crane; "back he goes to the Island for two months."

"De-lighted," shouted White, who had been waiting anxiously the outcome of the interview. Then, smiling happily, he was removed by his guards.

MISS CRITTEN WEDS APRIL 21.

Miss Mignon Critten, whose marriage to Congressman Swagar Sherley of Kentucky will take place here on April 21, will have but one attendant, her sister, Miss Marjorie Critten, who will be her maid of honor. Mr. Sherley's best man is to be Henry Clifford Smith of Louisville, and his ushers are to be Samuel Bland, Avery Robinson, William Mars, John Lorey, and Richard Ely. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock. The Venerable Archdeacon George D. Johnson, Rector Emeritus of Christ Church, Staten Island, assisted by the Rev. Frank W. Crowder of the same church, will officiate. Relatives and a very few close friends only will be present at the ceremony, which will be followed by a reception.

The engagement and wedding of Miss Critten and Mr. Sherley is a romance of the Taft expedition. Congressman Sherley and his fiancée were members of the party, and their engagement was announced in THE TIMES soon after their return to this country.

OLD SEXTON RESIGNS.

Twenty Years with St. Luke's—He's Not Talking About It.

Thomas Brennan, who had been for twenty years sexton of the old St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church, has resigned. There is murmuring among some of the veteran members of the church about the circumstances that caused St. Luke's and Thomas Brennan to part company, and there are varying stories as to why they did. Mr. Brennan himself won't talk much about the matter.

"I just resigned, that's all," he said yesterday afternoon. "It seemed that I couldn't satisfy several women members of the congregation, and so I thought it better that I get out. It wouldn't do for me to go into details. It isn't worth while, anyhow."

Burglars Moved In.

Brooklyn cracksmen have introduced an innovation into the burglary business, which just now is flourishing in the Flatbush and neighboring districts. It consists of moving into a house the owners of which are out of town, bringing meals in from a handy delicatessen shop, and camping out in the place until the folks return, meantime spending quiet and happy days ransacking the house from cellar to garret.

This new style of burgling was introduced at the home of H. T. J. Fuehrman, at 544 East Twenty-sixth Street, who returned on Saturday. Mr. Fuehrman as he was entering his home saw a negro run from the rear. The negro escaped. There was $750 worth of goods missing from the house.

96th Street Viaduct Damages.

The Board of Assessors announced yesterday the awards for damages to property in Riverside Avenue at Ninety-fifth and Ninety-seventh Streets and in Ninety-sixth Street between Riverside and West End Avenues by the building of the Ninety-sixth Street viaduct. The awards aggregate $195,750. The claims were $335,000. Awards to property owners at Third Street and the Gowanus Canal, Brooklyn, for damages caused by the erection of the bridge at Third Street amount to $40,495.

WOODBURY KNEW GRAFT WAS GOING ON, HE SAYS

He Couldn't Get Citizens to Make Affidavits.

IVINS NAMED TO INVESTIGATE

He Hopes to Begin His Inquiry About April 16, and Promises the Fairest of Fair Play.

William M. Ivins, late Republican Mayoralty candidate, has been formally selected as counsel to the Special Aldermanic Committee which is to investigate the Department of Street Cleaning under Commissioner Woodbury. The selection was made at a meeting of the committee held yesterday afternoon, and, later on, Corporation Counsel Delany said that the choice was agreeable to him. He now will name Mr. Ivins as special counsel attached to the Law Department, and will assign him to the committee.

The selection was made by the committee out of three names, the others being Peter R. Gartens, a Municipal Ownership man, and James W. Osborne, Democrat. Mr. Osborne was urged by Alderman Dowling of the committee, but finally the selection of Mr. Ivins was by unanimous vote of the committee. Chairman Grifenhagen was for Mr. Ivins from the first, and one of the chief reasons for the selection was the fact that Mr. Ivins himself offered his services free of charge if the Corporation Counsel declined to approve the selection so that the services could legally be paid for by the city. Chairman Grifenhagen also said yesterday that Mr. Ivins had said he personally would pay the expenses of the entire investigation if the Board of Estimate declined to furnish the funds.

At the meeting of the committee yesterday two firms of chartered accountants, Smith & Co. and John W. Abrams, were engaged to go to work at once on the books, documents, and contracts of the Department of Street Cleaning, and to co-operate with Mr. Ivins in the investigation of the complaints already in the hands of the committee. This work will begin to-day, and within ten days the counsel and the accountants expect to be ready to begin the public hearings. Five subpoena servers will be employed to-day, and they will report at once to Mr. Ivins. The hearings of the committee will be held in the Aldermanic Chamber each Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mayor McClellan declared yesterday that both Commissioner Woodbury and Deputy Commissioner Gibson would have to pay their attorneys out of their own pockets.

Commissioner Woodbury said yesterday that Bowers & Sands would represent him, with William Rand, Jr., as associate counsel. It is understood Mr. Rand will look after Capt. Gibson's interests. Mr. Bowers, Commissioner Woodbury said, long had been his personal counsel.

The Commissioner also said he knew there had been petty grafting on the part of department employes, but he had been unable to get citizens to make affidavits. He said he welcomed the investigation, as it would clear matters up considerably.

Chairman Grifenhagen, with Aldermen Brown and Meyers, held a long talk with Corporation Counsel Delany late in the afternoon, and then announced that Mr. Delany would designate Mr. Ivins. Mr. Ivins last night issued the following statement:

"The Aldermanic committee has asked me to act as counsel in an investigation of the Street Cleaning Department, and Mr. Delany has said he will designate me as Special Corporation Counsel for that purpose. My business is pressing upon me very heavily, but I have nevertheless agreed to undertake the work. I shall not approach the task as a prosecutor, but strictly as an investigator. Mr. Woodbury will have the fairest of fair play, and the committee expects his willing co-operation throughout the proceedings.

"It is my purpose promptly to begin a thorough preparation, so that neither the committee nor I shall lose time in mere fishing excursions, or in the examination of any persons as witnesses except those who have definite facts to which to testify.

"It will be impracticable properly to prepare for the work in less than ten days or a fortnight, and I think the committee will be ready to begin the investigation not later than the 16th.

"I shall endeavor so to classify the different subjects of investigation and the testimony of the different witnesses as to save time and complete the work as shortly and economically as possible, and much sooner than if the work were not properly prepared.

"It is impossible for me to say what the investigation will develop."

METZ AND COLER CLASH.

Voice Different Views About Connecting Railroad at Brooklyn Banquet.

At a dinner given by the Brooklyn League in that borough last night Controller Metz, urging liberal terms for the Pennsylvania Railroad in its connecting franchise, declared that "Brooklyn and Long Island should be made a part of the United States, and should not be left a mere island out in the ocean."

At the prospect of an end to the isolation thus pictured the diners applauded.

Borough President Coler, in his speech, said that he did not see any such great boon in the connection, and that the railroad should be made to pay to the last dollar for its every privilege.

NOW FOR SCOTT'S EMULSION
Pretty much all the winter we've had this season has been crowded into the past month. Moreover, March has made a fairly good record in the matter of illness, too. Nearly every one we know is either "under the weather" or just getting over some attack. Convalescence from any illness finds the body weak and exhausted; the nervous system is run down and vitality is low. Two things to do: give new strength to the body and new force to the nerves.
Scott's Emulsion
will do it and do it quickly. Rich blood, healthy flesh, more and better nourishment, and above all resistive force are what Scott's Emulsion supplies to the convalescent. As a matter of fact we would all have a firmer, surer hold on health if we took a few bottles of Scott's Emulsion just at the critical season that comes between winter and spring.

EFFECT OF THE SUBWAY ON LOCAL TRANSIT LINES

Elevated Traffic Decreased 14 Per Cent. Last Year.

SMALL LOSS BY STREET CARS

Just what effect the Subway has had upon the business of the elevated and surface railroads of New York is shown in the annual report of the State Railroad Commission, issued yesterday. The elevated roads suffered a decrease of over 14 per cent. in 1905, while the surface lines, for some reason which transportation men say it is hard to explain, were effected by less than one-eighth of 1 per cent.

There were 1,442,347,122 passengers carried on all lines in 1905, of whom 1,171,151,698 paid cash fares. This is an increase, including both fares and transfers of 101,307,713.

The figures for the elevated lines show that 249,965,166 passengers were handled in 1905, against 292,646,674 passengers in 1904. This is a falling off of 42,681,508 fares, despite the fact that the car mileage was decreased less than 1 per cent., the figures for 1905 being 61,035,891 miles, against 62,561,740 miles in 1904. To a certain extent only is the decrease explained by the fact that the West Farms trains, which in 1904 ran down Second Avenue, were sent through the Subway in 1905.

The Subway business showed a large percentage of increase as compared with the last two months of 1904, when 16,241,860 passengers were carried. In 1905, 116,209,313 passengers were recorded, a larger number per month than for the first two months of the Subway's existence. The Interborough business as a whole, both Subway and elevated, increased from 303,888,543 passengers in 1904 to 366,174,479 passengers in 1905, or over 12 per cent.

There was an increase of 85 per cent. in Interborough facilities, as shown by the car mileage record, which was 90,508,043 miles in 1905, an increase of 23,696,700 miles over 1904.

The surface lines showed that they had practically recovered from the effects of the opening of the Subway, carrying 379,721,637 passengers in 1905, against 380,749,591 in 1904, a decrease of 1,027,954, or one-eighth of 1 per cent. This was achieved notwithstanding a marked decline in the service, the car mileage showing a decrease of 547,721 miles, or nearly 1 per cent. The car mileage in 1904 was 59,374,889 miles. In 1905 it was only 58,827,168 miles.

The number of transfer points was increased in Manhattan from 503 in 1904 to 530 in 1905. In the face of this apparent betterment of conditions, so far as the public is concerned, the number of transfers issued fell off 7,225,387. As the new rule which requires conductors to refuse transfers unless demanded when passengers pay fare was not in effect throughout 1905, the figures are somewhat puzzling. In Brooklyn an increase of 15,677,545 transfers was recorded.

In the Bronx the Union Railway shows a comparatively small increase in passengers. The Southern Boulevard line registered a big decrease, and the transfers issued in that borough fell off 901,485. The service on both lines deteriorated, the car mileage showing a curtailment of 1,088,791 miles, or about 15 per cent.

Brooklyn traffic shows an increase of 33,620,689 passengers, almost entirely on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines, and an increase of 6,200,324 miles in car mileage. Queens shows an increase of 2,692,822 in passengers and 344,957 in car lines. The totals for all the boroughs are shown in these tables:

City Death Rate Going Down.

Health Commissioner Darlington announced yesterday that, despite the largely increased population, the death rate for March was 20.83, while in March, 1905, it was 21.17. The total number of deaths last month was 1,633, as against 1,658 in March of last year.

METROPOLITAN'S NEW WING.

Work was begun yesterday on the new north wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which will extent from the north end of the present Fifth Avenue front of the Museum, opposite Eighty-second Street, to Eighty-third Street. It will be 137.6 by 168 feet. Gray granite of the same shade as the Indiana limestone in the Fifth Avenue front will be used in the construction. McKim, Mead & White made the plans for the new wing, and the contractors are the Buckley Realty Construction Company. The new wing will contain a number of galleries and a lecture hall, and will cost $400,000. Up to the present it has not been decided what exhibits will be housed there.

Further additions to the Museum are contemplated which, when completed, will make the institution the largest in the world. The entire Fifth Avenue frontage, when these additions are built, will be 1,300 feet, extending north of the present building to Eighty-fifth Street and south to Eightieth Street. The estimated cost of the new buildings is $1,250,000.

It's easier to look than to think.
So we were showing our Spring overcoats to men and boys before they were thinking of them.
The early buying which resulted has shown that the lighter greys with velvet collars and a bit fitted in at the waist are popular — especially with the younger men.
The straight - back - knee-length coat of dark fabric is in equally good taste, and a bit more conservative.
For boys—short tan coverts are the real thing, though a few mothers fancy three-quarter length greys.
We have both, of course.

PRESIDENT ANGERS DEMOCRATIC SENATORS

Indignant at Being Ignored in Rate Bill Plans.

MAKE IT HOT FOR MR. LONG

He and Allison Are Quizzed Concerning the White House Conference on the Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Bailey suddenly raised the question of the President's action in drafting an amendment to the Rate bill at a conference with Republican Senators. All the Senate fighters at once put on the gloves, and there was an extremely lively half hour.

What angers the Democrats particularly is not that the President should consult with Republicans alone about an amendment, but that having so consulted and having drafted it, he should have it introduced without letting them know anything about it.

Both Mr. Allison and Mr. Long of Kansas, the Republican Senator who was delegated to present the amendment agreed upon at the White House conference, admitted the accuracy of the newspaper reports about the conference, and there was a warm discussion, in which the Democratic attitude was clearly suggested by Mr. Bailey and Mr. Bacon. The Republican opponents of the President's policy joined in making things hot for Mr. Long and Mr. Allison. After Mr. Knox and Mr. Foraker had heckled the two spokesmen of the Administration for a while, Mr. Allison was red in the face, perspiring freely, and unhappier than he has been for several years.

Bailey, producing a newspaper with an account of the White House meeting, broke in on Long's speech and asked him concerning the conference. Before Long could answer, Mr. Allison took the words out of his mouth. The venerable Senate chieftain was smiling and complacent.

"On the invitation of the President," he said, "I was at the White House on Saturday, and to my knowledge this important and complicated question of what constitutes just compensation was not considered there."

"I will ask the Senator from Kansas," said Bailey, "if the amendment that he introduced was considered at that conference."

"My amendment," answered Long diplomatically, "was prepared by several gentlemen, not at the White House."

"Was it considered at that conference?" persisted Bailey.

"It would tend to clarify the situation," remarked Bailey, sarcastically, "if we could know exactly what the President desires. Of course, the Constitution provides a method for the President to communicate his views to Congress, namely, by message, and if necessary by veto, and that does seem quite enough power to vest in any one man in this Republic. But if the President chooses to call his party friends around him, and I see that only Republicans were invited to that conference—"

"I was not invited to a conference," broke in Mr. Allison.

"But you were invited to the White House," retorted Bailey, amid laughter, for Allison's power of drawing subtle distinctions is one of the stock jokes of the Senate.

"I was," said Allison, rather hotly, "and I appeared there in response to that invitation, and this judicial question of just compensation was not discussed."

"But this other matter, the amendment, was discussed," went on the relentless Bailey. "Was the Senator from Iowa invited there to take dinner or to discuss this question?"

"That is a matter of so much importance that I must decline to answer," replied Allison.

"As the Senator from Iowa says this was not considered at the White House conference, I would like to know what was considered there," inquired Foraker.

"I suppose," retorted Allison, "that if the Senator from Ohio was invited to the White House, and if I met him on his way out and asked him what the President said, he would consider perhaps that was a private matter that I had no right to inquire about."

"Yes," said Foraker, striding down to the front and assuming his battleaxe tone, "but if instead of meeting the Senator in the street I should get up here in the Senate and tell a part of what occurred the Senator would have a right to ask me about the rest of it."

"I think," broke in Mr. Bacon, satirically, "we are confronted by a very grave parliamentary question. It has now officially developed that this amendment comes from the White House. If we were to presume to amend it would we have to refer it back to the White House to know whether the President concurs?"

Long declared that the amendment was before the Senate like any other amendment. "I introduced it, and will accept any amendments that I see fit," he continued.

That afforded Knox an opportunity. He promptly rose and called Long's bluff by offering on the spot an amendment perfecting the language of Long's. Knox's amendment was quoted from his own bill. Long explained that he could not accept any amendments now, but would consider the Knox amendment at the proper time.

"I would not have made this suggestion," said Knox, with quiet sarcasm, "but for the Senator's statement that he was responsible for the amendment and would accept any amendments he thought proper."

With this poisoned shaft he sat down,

MRS. MORRIS CASE IN SENATE.

Nomination of Barnes Opens Way for an Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Criticism of the appointment of Mr. Roosevelt's Assistant Secretary, B. F. Barnes, to be Postmaster of Washington continues. It now seems likely that the appointment may have a hard time in passing the Senate. Barnes's action in having Mrs. Minor Morris put out of the White House is the chief ground of opposition. The Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads has determined to investigate Barnes's action in the Morris case, and eye witnesses of the affair have been summoned to appear before the committee to-morrow and tell what they saw. This is the same investigation which Mr. Tillman requested and which the Senate refused to grant. It now comes as the result of the President's action in appointing Barnes Postmaster. The witnesses who are to appear before the committee were not asked to testify in the investigation which the President made when he decided that Barnes's course was justified.

There was much speculation to-day as to who Mr. Barnes's successor as Assistant Secretary would be. The Evening Star to-night devotes a column and a half to suggestions on the subject, saying that the leading candidates are John L. McGrew, a clerk in the White House offices; Warren Young, Chief Executive Clerk; M. C. Latta, the President's personal stenographer; James J. Corbett of New York, Robert Fitzsimmons, Augustus Ruhlin, and James J. Jeffries.

The article is illustrated with two pictures of Corbett and Fitzsimmons.

EXPLOSION IN BARBER SHOP.

Brooklyn Store Wrecked—Victims Suspect Business Rivals.

Pedro Sanperio and his brother Antonio were sitting in the back room next to their barber's shop at 401 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn, about 11 o'clock last night. There were no customers, and Pedro was about to close the shop, when the brothers heard footsteps in front of the place. Pedro was about to go into the shop when he was stopped by an explosion which shook the building. The barber saw two men running down the street and went in pursuit.

The explosion aroused the neighborhood, which is known as Red Hook, and a crowd of three hundred excited men joined in the chase. Seeing that he was about to lose his quarry, Pedro pulled a revolver and began shooting. One of the two men returned the fire and put two bullet holes through the derby hat of Daniel McGrath of 81 Coffey Street, who was among the pursuers.

Policemen of the Hamilton Street Station cornered the two men in a vacant building at 101 Coffey Street. They said they were Rosario Canadi of 47 Bedford Street, Manhattan, and Manuel Valenti of 51 Luquer Street, Brooklyn. The police arrested them on suspicion of having caused the explosion. They also locked Pedro up for discharging a pistol in the street.

John Crawford of 171 Beard Street was detained as a witness. He said he saw the two men throw a gas pipe into the barber's shop when the explosion occurred. The police believe that it contained dynamite.

The explosion smashed every window in the house in which is the barber's shop, as well as those in the house next door. Joseph Kane, the owner of the building, was asleep with his wife and six children on the second floor of the house. They were not injured. Pedro Sanperio says he believes that rival barbers were responsible for the explosion.

BIG MEN IN LITTLE ROADS.

Cromwell, Price, and Others Elected to Obscure Boards.

Two obscure little railroad companies put some big names in their Directorates at their annual meetings yesterday, but just what the entrance of several well-known financial men into their affairs may signify none of the persons interested would say yesterday. The roads are the Southfield Beach Railroad Company and the Sterling Mountain Railroad Company.

The former runs a short line connecting Midland Beach and South Beach, two Summer amusement resorts on Staten Island; and the latter is an eight-mile stretch of track connecting Sterlington, on the Erie, with the hamlet of Lakeville, near Sterling Lake, in Orange County.

The new Directors were the same for both roads, and are W. L. Bull, William Nelson Cromwell, Theodore H. Price, A. S. Webb, Jr., W. P. Hamilton, Rudolph H. Kissell, C. A. Shearson, E. Hewitt, and B. Moffatt, Jr. Neither road could, by any possible stretch of the imagination, be made the nucleus of a system.

The election of Theodore H. Price to the Directorate of the Sterling Mountain Railroad, however, was the natural result of his purchase of that road a few months ago.

At that time it was reported that Mr. Price, together with E. H. Harriman, had bought some 20,000 acres of land in Sterling, Warwick, and Monroe Townships, Orange County, and the railroad was taken along with the land. Mr. Price then refused to discuss the object of the buyers, but it was rumored in Orange County that the tract would be turned into some sort of residence park.

Mr. Price was recognized as the moving spirit of the enterprise. The offices of the Sterling Mountain Railroad Company adjoin his own, at 82 Beaver Street. He said yesterday that there was nothing of public interest connected with either the Sterling Mountain Railroad or the Southfield Beach Railroad.

AFTER LODGE'S SECRETARY.

BOSTON, April 3.—At the request of District Attorney John B. Moran, summonses were issued to-day in the case of the Commonwealth against John Doe and others, the title under which the case of Robert G. Proctor, private secretary of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, is being considered. Before the Legislative Committee on Counties at the State House yesterday the District Attorney said that he desired to investigate a charge that Mr. Proctor had misappropriated $200 given him by John G. Beatgen of this city for the Republican campaign fund several years ago.

BALLOONIST DRIFTS OUT TO SEA AT NIGHT

Fears Are Felt for Nocquet, the French Sculptor.

WENT ACROSS LONG ISLAND

He Told His Friends, However, That He Might Stay Up a Long Time if the Conditions Were Good.

There was some alarm last night in the Aero Club for one of its members, who early in the evening went up in a balloon and at midnight had not been heard from. The last reports were that his balloon was drifting over Long Island toward the sea.

Paul Nocquet, the French sculptor, who has been in this country about two years, made a balloon ascension yesterday afternoon from the Central Union Gas Works, foot of East 138th Street and Walnut Avenue, in the Borough of the Bronx. He used a balloon holding 20,000 cubic feet of gas, about the same size as the one used by Charles Levee when the latter made his ascension from West Point over a month ago. Nocquet was the only passenger, as the basket carried by the balloon is not large enough to hold two persons.

The wind carried the balloon eastward over Long Island, and it was watched for a long time by a curious crowd that gathered in the vicinity of the gas works. It was Nocquet's first ascension in America, but before leaving France he studied ballooning considerably and made some ascensions there. He informed very few friends of his intended flight, and with the exception of Augustus Post and Dr. Julian P. Thomas no members of the Aero Club were present.

The ascension was made shortly after 5 o'clock, and it was not expected that Nocquet would remain up more than an hour, but no word from him was received by the members of the club last night at the Automobile Club of America, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street. Paul Nocquet lives at 55 East Fifty-ninth Street.

After much telephoning a man was found last night in Elmhurst, L. I., who said that the balloon passed over that town earlier in the evening, and that it was then nearly dark. As far as he could judge, he said, the balloon was up 3,000 feet in the air. It disappeared to the south in the gloom.

Before going up Nocquet told his friends that he intended to keep up in the air as long as it was safe for him to do so. He said he was not afraid to be up after dark, as he had moonlight to aid him to make a landing. The moon was about half full till 2 o'clock this morning.

FEDERAL AGENT POISONED?

State Department Investigating Charges of Fraud and Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—The State Department is investigating charges recently brought by the late Charles Pauson, who was keeper of the coaling station at Pichilinque, Lower California. The Government has ordered the cruiser Marblehead to La Paz, Mexico, which is near Pichilinque, and at which place James Viosca is American Consul. The Marblehead will remain at La Paz during the investigation.

Pauson's friends assert that he was poisoned just after he had brought the charges.

When the new coaling station was established at Pichilinque, Pauson got the place as keeper at $75 a month. After several months, it is asserted, he discovered that he was getting only $50 a month, and that his messenger, who figured on the list at $25 a month, was getting $15. Then he drew up charges and forwarded them to Washington.

Soon afterward Pauson was walking from Pichilinque to La Paz to see his wife. He stopped at two road houses and drank some liquor. He was seized on the road with sickness, which soon resulted in death. Physicians said he had been poisoned, as he had been in perfect health. One doctor, however, said that death was due to consumption.

DIES IN HARMONIE CLUB.

Levi Spiegelberg Stricken with Heart Disease While Going Upstairs.

Levi Spiegelberg, senior member of the firm of L. Spiegelberg & Sons, cotton goods manufacturers, died suddenly yesterday afternoon in the Harmonie Club. Mr. Spiegelberg left his office in Greene Street at his usual hour and went to his club. He was ascending its stairs when he fell, stricken, evidently, with heart disease.

Dr. Henry Hermann was sent for, but Mr. Spiegelberg was dead when he arrived. The body was removed to the Ansonia, where Mr. Spiegelberg had apartments. He is survived by a widow and twelve children, six of whom are sons.

He was born in 1830 near Cassel, Germany, and came to this country in the early forties. He went West in '49 and established a business in Santa Fé, which was successful and still continues. Mr. Spiegelberg returned to New York in 1860 and established the firm now doing business here. He was prominent in all Hebrew charities and was one of the founders of Temple Emanu-El. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Fire Burns C. F. Judson's Cottage.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., April 3.—The cottage of Cyrus Field Judson, on Shinnecock Hills, with its adjoining stable, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. The cottage was unoccupied. A grass fire which burned over a large part of the hills did the damage.

Republicans Carry Jamestown, N. Y.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., April 3.—The Republicans carried this city in the municipal election to-day. James L. Weeks was elected Mayor over Frank H. Mott, Independent Democrat, by a plurality of 264. The usual Republican majority in the city is about 3,000.

HIS HOME'S AGROUND.

BABYLON, L. I., April 3.—The country residence of J. Adolph Mollenhauer of Bayshore is aground on the mud flats, and is resting easy. The building is in no particular danger now, and will probably be floated at the next high tide. Should a storm of great severity occur the building might prove a total loss.

The residence is four stories high, with a tower that runs up a story or two more. It is the show residence in the most fashionable part of Bayshore and stood on a site near the Great South Bay, but Mr. Mollenhauer decided that a site across an inlet was more desirable. He decided to move the residence from one side of the inlet to the other. It would have been a tedious journey to go around by shore, so the house was lifted on skids in the ordinary way and hauled out to five big scows which had been lashed together, and upon which a frame work of great timbers had been built. The wind, however, has been off shore for some days and the tide has been very low. To-day soundings indicated that it would be possible to float the outfit across the inlet and a start was made. A shoal was struck, and when the tide went out it left the outfit high and dry. The house weighs some 200 tons.

WOMEN MUSTN'T PLAY BRIDGE

Georgia Judge Orders Indictments for Those Who Try for Prizes.

Special to The New York Times.

DALTON, Ga., April 3.—A certain set of women in this town are anxiously awaiting the action of the Grand Jury which was organized to-day. Judge A. W. Fite ordered that body to return indictments for gambling against them for playing bridge and euchre for money or prizes.

The Judge was very severe on what he called "social gambling," and said that Grand Jurors had been derelict in not bringing in indictments in the past. Judge Fite said:

"You indict every negro you hear of who shoots craps or plays seven up, but these society women who play bridge and euchre for costly prizes are never molested. The law is no respecter of persons. What is a crime in the negro is a crime in the society woman. There should be the same treatment for all."

There have been stories current of heavy losses at recent bridge parties here, and it is supposed that these stories moved Judge Fite to instruct the Grand Jury. He is a candidate for Congress.

AUTO TURNS A SOMERSAULT.

Owner Caught Under It—One of His Guests Mortally Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, April 3.—One person perhaps mortally injured and two others suffering from broken bones is the result of the overturning of a large automobile owned and driven by Welcome G. Clemons of Helmetta, near here, at dusk to-night.

Mr. Clemons was on his way to Jamesburg. Overtaking John Carney and George Windler, two friends, on the road, he gave them a ride in the machine. While descending the hill leading from the Helmetta woods, the steering rod broke, and the machine got beyond its owner's control and turned a complete somersault. Carney and Windler were hurled from the car, but the machine landed on Mr. Clemons.

Carney is suffering from concussion of the brain and spine, and received a deep gash on his head. Windler has a broken collarbone. Mr. Clemons has a broken arm, and had not help arrived would have been crushed to death.

WOMAN DEFIES CONSTABLES.

Holds Four of Them at Bay with a Revolver, but Strategy Wins.

NUTLEY, N. J., April 3.—Rosario McCrea, widow of Nicholas McCrea, who was shot dead in his saloon in Nutley, about a year ago, held Chief of Police Henry Knabb and his men at bay with a revolver to-day for more than two hours when they went to her place, in Franklin Avenue, to arrest her for selling liquor without a license.

When the license expired, about eight months ago, the Town Council refused to renew it, and since then, it is alleged, the woman has been selling liquor without it. Recorder Day issued a warrant for her arrest, and Chief Knabb and Constable Frank Rittaco, with two other constables, were sent to the place to make a raid.

Mrs. McCrea must have been warned, for she barred the front door and then stood at the window armed with a revolver. She told them she would shoot if they tried to force their way into the place.

The constables coaxed and threatened to no purpose. Then Rittaco announced that he was going home, and while the others stood their ground he slipped around the back way and managed to get into the place, and, approaching the woman from behind, knocked the revolver from her hand and seized her. She fought hard, but was subdued.

Recorder Day fined her $45, and she refused to pay it. The Recorder then sentenced her to thirty days in jail.

MASKED MEN ATTACK TRAIN.

Attempt at Robbery on Southern Railway Foiled by Employes.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3.—An attempt by seven men, wearing masks, to hold up a train on the Southern Railway was foiled last night by the vigilance of the engineer of the train, Johnson, and the bravery of the express messenger, Roy Smith.

When Johnson was coming to a halt at Caswell Station, he noticed seven men with faces concealed run from behind the water tank, some toward the engine, and others toward the express car.

The engineer immediately opened the throttle, and the engine shot ahead before the robbers could reach it. Shots were fired at the engineer, but without effect. Three of the robbers, however, reached the express car, the door of which had been opened by Smith in order to put off some matter for Caswell.

The messenger was quick to see that something was wrong when the train shot ahead, and as the robbers sprang to enter the car he knocked them back to the ground. Before they could get to their feet the train was running at good speed. The robbers in their anger fired into the coaches as they passed, but did no injury.

CHICAGO VOTES TO OWN BUT NOT RUN CAR LINES

Issue of $75,000,000 Mueller Certificates Also Approved.

MAYOR DUNNE DISAPPOINTED

Says Rejection of Municipal Operation Leaves Matters Practically as They Were—To Try Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Chicago, by 3,837 majority, voted to-day for municipal ownership of the street railroads, but decided by 10,651 majority against their operation by the city. The question of issuing $75,000,000 worth of Mueller law certificates was also answered in the affirmative, the majority being 3,339.

The Mueller law, which lacks the authority of the Supreme Court and the validity of which is open to some doubt, is a legislative act passed several years ago, authorizing the issuance of "certificates," a sort of bonds to be used for the purchase of public utilities by any city wishing to go into the business. This is the first time any municipality has had a chance to vote on the subject, and Mayor Dunne and his Immediate Municipal Ownership friends are congratulating themselves on their victory, but very soberly, in view of the narrow escape from defeat. They are, moreover, deeply disappointed at the people's declaration against the idea of the city operating the street-car lines. This is a result totally unlooked for by the "I. M. O." people, and, in fact, it is a surprise to a great many others. Mayor Dunne said to-night:

"The election, so far as municipal ownership is concerned, leaves us practically nowhere. It would have been all plain sailing if the operation clause had carried. Now it is up to the street car companies to say on what terms they will sell out to the city. Then we will have to test the Mueller law in the courts.

"If they decide in our favor, and I think they will, I propose that we go to the people again. We will have possession of the street car lines, and our possession will have been confirmed by the courts. I propose then to submit the operation proposition to another vote. I don't believe that we could get the full approval of the people to operate unless we had possession. When we have that I am assured that the vote will be overwhelmingly for operation."

The "I. M. O." movement was fought vigorously in every journal published in Chicago. The Republican Party was dead against it, and ex-Mayor Harrison and a large body of conservative Democrats also deprecated it. The Council opposed it, and Mayor Dunne had been blocked in every move he made in its favor. The corporations, and this means not only the street railway companies, but every corporation and firm of any description in the city, were strongly against it. In the face of all this opposition the "I. M. O." people have won a partial victory. The laboring people as a class favored it, and they got out in force to-day and voted for it.

The "I. M. O." people had banked on the operation clause as a chance of controlling the huge body of voters which would come into the City Hall organization when the municipality assumed control of the city railway lines and all the thousands of their employes. The advantages of working for the city have been held up to these men at all the "I. M. O." meetings during the campaign, and Mayor Dunne and his speakers have repeatedly told the workingmen that municipal ownership would mean higher wages and shorter hours for motor and cable men, conductors, and barn hands.

There is no doubt that the unions, not only of street railway employes, but in other lines of labor, voted almost unanimously for Dunne's pet policy. But it is also evident that many thousand other men, seeing that ownership was bound to carry, voted against the "operation" clause on the ballot, and thus the plum which the City Hall politicians were about to eat has been snatched from their lips. Now the lines will be leased to the present or other companies, and while the city owns and controls the lines of transportation, it will have nothing to do with the operation of them. It is true it will dictate the conditions of the leases, but the real control of the employes was what the politicians were after.

ROSE LOSES IN MILWAUKEE.

Republican City Ticket Elected for First Time in Eight Years.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—The Republican city ticket was elected to-day, for the first time in eight years. The plurality of Sherburn M. Becker, nominee for Mayor, is estimated at about 1,000. Paul Bechtner is elected Controller, A. Martin Treasurer, and John T. Kelley City Attorney.

For weeks the Republican nomination for Mayor practically went begging, the opinion being that Mayor Rose could not be defeated. Becker, however, made a spectacular campaign and attracted the young men's vote, while the disaffection among the Poles on account of their failure to get on the ticket at the primary election cost the Democrats thousands of votes. Incomplete returns show that the Social Democrats did not materially increase their vote over that of two years ago, when it was about 15,000, and is about 2,000 below their vote in the last Presidential election, when they polled 17,000.

BEARDSLEY IS ELECTED.

Pledge of Franchise Restriction Wins in Kansas City, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3.—The Republican city ticket, headed by Henry M. Beardsley for Mayor, was elected to-day, Mr. Beardsley's majority over Robert L. Gregory, Democrat, being estimated at 1,200.

The issue of the campaign was restriction of public service franchises, both platforms indorsing the principle of municipal ownership. The gas company and the street railway company are seeking extensions of franchise, and the incoming administration is pledged to insist upon adequate return for extension and to establish a municipal gas plant unless a reduction in the price of gas is made.

HARTFORD STILL REPUBLICAN.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 3.—Mayor William F. Henney, Republican, was reelected by a majority of over 2,000 votes in the city election held here to-day, and the entire Republican ticket went in with him.

Mayor Henney's total vote was 7,401, and that cast for O'Neil was 5,840.

WILSON MIZNER ROBBED.

Young Man Who Married Mrs. Yerkes Loses Jewelry Worth $8,000.

Wilson Mizner, who sprang into prominence recently by marrying the widow of Charles T. Yerkes, is occupying a bachelor apartment at the Hotel Seymour, 44 West Forty-fifth Street. Yesterday afternoon while he was out walking with his brother a thief entered his room, broke open a trunk, and made off with the following fine collection of loot:

Three loose diamonds, 1½ carats each.
Two large pearl studs.
Two large diamond studs.
Two extra large diamond stick pins, 2 carats.
One pair of sleeve links studded with sapphires and diamonds.
One hundred and seventy dollars in cash.

Mr. Mizner could not be found when the reporters hunted for him last night, but he told Sergt. Ennis of the East Fifty-first Street Station that the jewelry was worth at least $8,000. He added:

"The robber must have known something of my habits and been familiar with the room or he could not have done the job so quickly. I was only out of the house about half an hour."

Detectives Summers and Conroy have been put on the case and a general alarm has been sent out from Headquarters for the stolen property.

BLOCK TIES UP SUBWAY.

There was a block lasting nearly half an hour on the West Farms branch of the Subway in the rush hour last evening. The cause was north of the 135th Street station, and cars were stalled under the Harlem River.

The passengers suffered from lack of air and from heat, but the guards prevented them from leaving the cars until the blockade was raised.

Trouble with the third rail, yet to be explained, caused the tie-up.

FIRST WOMAN RECEIVER.

Madeline Doty Takes Charge of Sophy Houston's Dressmaking Business.

The first woman receiver appointed in a bankruptcy proceeding in the history of the United States District Court was named yesterday by Judge Holt. Madeline Z. Doty of 569 Fifth Avenue was appointed receiver of the business of Sophy R. Houston, a milliner and dressmaker, of 500 Fifth Avenue, against whom a voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by three creditors. Not only does Miss Doty know more about the details of the business of the alleged bankrupt than any mere man, but she is also a lawyer of experience and has a lucrative practice. Her bond was fixed at $2,500.

A TEMPERANCE VICTORY.

Mayor of Kansas City, Kan., Defeated on License Question, Quits.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 3.—Four of the six wards in Kansas City, Kan., having declared in to-day's election against Mayor W. W. Rose's policy of licensing saloons, the Mayor sent his resignation to the City Council to-night. The resignation was unanimously accepted.

Mayor Rose, ever since his election on the Democratic ticket, a year ago, has been at war with the Kansas State administration, and the temperance people of his city over the enforcement of the prohibition law. He has favored licensing the saloons, and the State administration has been unable to convict saloon keepers arrested for selling liquor. Mayor Rose made his policy an issue in to-day's election for Aldermen. An unusually large number of women voted.

CALLS CHOATE TAX KICKER.

Comment of a Stockbridge Cottager on the ex-Ambassador.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 3.—Ex-Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, who owns Naumkeag, on Field Hill, in Stockbridge, has paid his taxes here under protest, because the Selectmen of Stockbridge have not repaired the hill road, which abuts his property.

At the annual town meeting in Stockbridge yesterday Tax Collector Michael Flynn told the meeting of Mr. Choate's attitude on the tax question, and Edward B. Owen, another cottager, remarked in the course of the debate that kicking on taxes had become chronic with Mr. Choate.

McKEEN MAY BE A JUDGE.

Brooklyn Hears That Gov. Higgins May Let Him Succeed W. M. Smith.

According to a report from Albany, in circulation in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon, Gov. Higgins has indicated that he will appoint James McKeen of Brooklyn to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench caused by the death of Justice Wilmot M. Smith of Patchogue. County Judge Walter H. Jaycox of Suffolk County is also a candidate for the place.

Mr. McKeen is one of the best known of Brooklyn lawyers. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Supreme Court Justice two years ago, being defeated by William J. Kelly, the Democratic nominee. Mr. McKeen was Assistant Corporation Counsel in Brooklyn under the Low administration, and was one of the counsel of the Armstrong Insurance Investigating Committee. He is President of the Brooklyn League.

TELEPHONE GIRL ROBBED.

Assailant Seized Her Purse and Escaped Over Central Park Wall.

Catherine Rorke, who runs the telephone switchboard in the Hotel Royalton, in West Forty-fourth Street, was attacked and robbed as she was walking along Fifty-ninth Street on her way to the hotel about 6 o'clock last night.

She was on the north side of the street, near the Central Park wall, and was just about to turn down Sixth Avenue when a man whom she had heard hurrying up behind her sprang forward and pressed his hand over her mouth.

Unable to cry for help, she did her best to hang on to her pocketbook, but her assailant threw her to the ground with such force that she dropped the pocketbook and nearly fainted. The next thing she knew the man had jumped over the wall and disappeared. With him went the pocketbook. It contained $10.

Miss Rorke hurried to the East Fifty-first Street Police Station and reported her loss. Detectives were immediately sent to the vicinity of the robbery and made a thorough search of the park. No one was found answering her description of her assailant.

COAL CONFERREES FAIL TO REACH AGREEMENT

WILL MEET AGAIN TO-MORROW

Mitchell Says Miners Don't Demand the Closed Shop, but Do Stick for the "Check-Off."

The coal operators and anthracite miners were in session yesterday behind closed doors for nearly three hours at the Jersey Central Building, in Liberty Street. No settlement was reached, and at the close of the meeting the statement was officially made that neither side had altered its position in any particular. But there was no rupture, the personal relations of the members of the joint committee seemed friendly and unstrained, and, on the suggestion of John Mitchell, another attempt to arrive at a settlement will be made to-morrow.

In the evening, the Shamokin Scale Committee of the miners met at its headquarters, the Ashland House, but was in session barely a quarter of an hour, and nothing of importance was transacted.

The miners, including Mr. Mitchell, were reticent last night; but it was declared at the Ashland House that they had very little hope of reaching a settlement. They believe that the operators really do not care at present whether the strike goes on for a few weeks or not. They have accumulated great masses of coal, the miners believe, and would be glad to see their stocks diminished, and until that is done they will not make any concessions. So the miners, it is said, are quite prepared to face a strike of a few weeks, at any rate, and believe that then the operators will be ready to buy peace with some concessions. Meanwhile they see no reason why they should give up any of their own demands.

With that apparently in their minds, they sat about the rotunda of the Ashland House in a quiet, matter-of-fact way. If any one dropped in, he would never have guessed that there was gathered a committee of men on whose shoulders rests the burden of determining the outcome of one of the greatest industrial crises in modern times. There was a group or two of brawny men, dressed quietly in dark clothes, and wearing for the most part soft black felt hats. They talked a little among themselves, but he would be a wonderful observer who could tell from their bearing whether they were pleased or downcast by the latest news.

What Mitchell Does.

John Mitchell is almost the smallest of them all. Barely five and a half feet in height, he moves quickly back and forth through the hall, willing to be spoken to, but very unwilling to reply. He almost seems to like to be held up by a crowd of newspaper men. To any one who addresses him he listens with attention, but invariably answers, after he has paused just long enough to rouse hopes of an interesting statement, that he can give no information. Only once yesterday did he volunteer any news. He had just read in an afternoon paper that the joint committee of miners and operators had feasted together on champagne and roast turkey, and he was looking for the reporter who had sent in the story.

It is not very difficult to approach the delegates; it is almost impossible to get anything out of them about the strike situation. An answer to the simplest question as to the hour of meeting or the length of the adjournment is politely, but firmly, refused.

"Mr. Mitchell is our press agent; you'd better ask him," is the invariable reply.

The one place in the hotel where no miners are seen is the bar. They are here for work, and serious work, and leave the drinks alone. One old delegate was late for the meeting last night and seemed to suspect that the hotel employes were in league to keep him from attending. He got into the elevator and shouted at the top of his voice:

"Hi, you there, take me up, I say!"

But he was quickly informed that the committee room was in another part of the house, and was shown to the proper way. The rest of the delegates were almost painfully correct in their demeanor. Their clothing is as quiet as they are, and they never show levity or any great interest in the pleasures of the city.

The Conference.

Before the joint committee went into session in the Jersey Central Building yesterday an appeal was made to Mr. Mitchell to allow reporters in. He consented, and said that his side had nothing to gain by a private meeting. George F. Baer, President of the Reading Railway, however, declared that the operators must insist on an executive session.

The operators were represented by Mr. Baer, President Truesdale of the Lackawanna, First Vice President Kerr of the New York, Ontario & Western; President Willcox of the Delaware & Hudson; Morris Williams, Manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad; President Thomas of the Lehigh, and J. L. Cake, representing the independent operators.

The delegates for the miners were John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers; T. G. Nicholls, President of District 1; J. T. Dempsey, Secretary of District 1; John Fahy, President of District 9; George W. Hartlein, Secretary of District 9; W. H. Dettrey, President of District 7, and John P. Gallagher, Secretary of District 7.

The conference began at noon. For three hours not a whisper came from the meeting room. It was held in the offices of the Trunk Line Association. In the hall outside a crowd gathered. Many newspapers from all over the country had sent special representatives, and a few of the miners had strolled down from the Ashland House to see what they could of the meeting that means so much to them. They might as well have stayed away for all they could learn while it was in progress, and, even after it had broken up, not very much was given out.

The Operators' Statement.

At 2:45 o'clock Mr. Truesdale left the conference room, quickly followed by Mr. Willcox, Mr. Mitchell, and the miners. They said it had been agreed that neither side would make any statements, but that the conferrees would meet again at 1 o'clock to-morrow. Later a statement was issued on behalf of the operators. It said:

"The conference began at noon. President E. B. Thomas of the Lehigh Valley Company was elected to the chair. Mr. Mitchell made a long speech setting forth why in his opinion the original demands of the miners should be granted. He was followed by Mr. Nicholls of the Lackawanna-Wyoming district of the Miners' Union, who supported Mr. Mitchell's arguments. There were other speeches on the part of the miners, and, in fact, that side did nearly all the talking.

"There was no disposition on either side to recede from the positions already taken or to accept any modification of the demands put forward. Mr. Mitchell's attitude indicated that the counter-proposition made by the operators for a renewal of the working agreement drafted by the Anthracite Strike Commission was not acceptable to the miners.

"At the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell the conference adjourned to 1 o'clock on Thursday.

"The entire situation remains the same as before the meeting. The suspension of work in the anthracite regions will continue pending the negotiations."

Mr. Baer later discussed the conference thus:

"Nothing practical was done. The miners talked at great length without coming to any point at all. They indulged in glittering generalities, they discussed the brotherhood of man, they set forth the rights of the workingmen, but they proposed nothing practical. The employers did very little talking and only asked a few questions."

"Did the miners propose any modifications in the existing agreement?" he was asked.

"Practically," he replied, "they proposed nothing. It was simply a desultory talk, explaining why the miners make their demands."

In answer to a question as to the attitude of the operators, Mr. Baer said he had no statement to make, and to a request for an opinion on the effect of the adjournment on the general situation said:

"How should I know?"

"Will the suspension of work at the mines continue pending a settlement?" was the next question.

"I presume so," was the answer. "There was no reference made to the stopping of work."

Mr. Baer also declared that the employers had been contented with hearing what the men had to say and had heard a lot of good stories.

What Mitchell Said.

President Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad expressed his opinion that there was nothing to show what the outcome of the conference would be, but would not go into further particulars. Mr. Mitchell was still more uncommunicative. He would not even say whether he considered the situation more or less hopeful as the result of the conference, and would enter into no explanation of what he hoped to accomplish by asking for an adjournment for two days.

It was learned, however, from another source that in his speech he had declared that the miners were not demanding the closed shop, but did not withdraw their "check-off" condition. This provides that the companies shall collect for the unions each month such amounts as may be levied by the unions for the expenditures incurred by them in carrying out the agreement between miners and operators. The money is to be deducted from the pay of every miner, whether he be a member of the union or not. The operators fail to see in what way, if this demand were granted, their mines could be considered any longer "open shops."

Mr. Mitchell advocated a uniform scale of wages on the ground that men performing the same amount of labor cannot work with any degree of contentment while the compensation received by them is not uniform, and asked for an increase of wages on the plea of the general prosperity of the country and the particular increase in the earnings of the coal-carrying railroads. He declared that the eight-hour day was necessary, because it was the standard in nearly all the bituminous districts and in many parts of Great Britain and the Continent, and asserted that longer hours would injure the miners directly and society indirectly.

Mr. Nicholls followed, talking on much the same lines without going into particulars, and no reference was made to submitting the differences to arbitration. The operators were content to listen and ask a question or two now and then.

As soon as the conference was over the miners returned to their headquarters at the Ashland House. There the thirty-six members of the Shamokin Scale Committee has assembled yesterday. To them a report of the day's proceedings was made.

A meeting had been called for 7:30 o'clock, and the delegates were waiting quietly till then. When it did convene it was very quickly over. It lasted barely fifteen minutes. After it Mr. Mitchell made this announcement:

Mitchell's Statement.

"The Scale Committee had a brief session to-night. The sub-committee, which was in conference with the operators to-day, made a report of progress. The following letter from Gov. Pennypacker to President John Mitchell and President G. F. Baer was communicated to the committee:

> Executive Chambers, Harisburg,
> March 31, 1906.
> Dear Sirs: The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania expects that every reasonable effort will be made by the parties interested to accommodate the differences between coal operators and coal miners and to avert the strike which is now threatened. Very truly yours,
>
> SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

"No action was taken on this letter, but I have acknowledged its receipt. The committee adjourned until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning."

Mr. Mitchell said he had received encouraging telegrams from the bituminous coal fields showing that the operators were making concessions, and that a joint meeting of the miners and operators of the Central Pennsylvania field had been arranged to be held at Clearfield.

He listened with interest to what the operators had said, but to all requests for confirmations or denials he had only one answer:

"It was agreed we should say nothing. The operators may talk if they like, but you know that when I have promised to be silent, I always keep my word."

R. M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation, was at the Ashland House last night. He spoke to Mr. Mitchell for a few minutes in the hall, but denied that he had any reason to suppose the Civic Federation would intervene at this time.

"It's not a matter for us yet," he said. "Both sides have plenty of people to bring them together, and I don't see why we need interfere just now. I have great hopes of a settlement."

COAL COMING HERE.

Operators Say They Will Ship It To-day—They Blame the Retailers.

The price of anthracite coal here was not raised here yesterday, but the dealers are not feeling kindly toward the operators. They say that for three weeks the regular amount of coal has not been shipped to New York, and that in consequence the retail dealers do not know where they can get supplies for their regular customers. One of the largest dealers in the city said yesterday:

"They are forcing us to go to the speculators. These men have coal in barges, but they have to pay demurrage of $10 a day for a boat of 300 or 400 tons. Naturally, they will have to charge us more for our coal. Some are now quoting $7 a ton, when it ought at this time of the year to be only $4.50.

"On the other hand, within the last few days there has been a great drop in the demand for domestic purposes; but the bakeries and factories need supplies right along. If there is not more coal supplied by the operators, I expect that bituminous coal will have to be used in the city within a fortnight."

Alfred L. Barber of the firm of Alfred Barber's Sons said:

"The operators have treated us outrageously. They assured us there would be no trouble at the mines till April 15, and three weeks ago stopped shipping coal. I have an order from Mr. Degnan, who is building a tunnel under the East River for the Pennsylvania, for 5,000 tons of buckwheat coal at $3 at the dock, but I could get only 1,000 tons.

"The big office buildings are in a bad way. As a rule, the contracts are renewed on April 1, but they cannot be renewed this year. I expect to be able to supply the poor while the strike lasts at 10 cents a pail of thirty-three pounds—that is, at $6 a ton."

This statement was given out yesterday by the coal operators:

> Advices received this morning show that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad is operating six washeries, the Ontario & Western two, the Delaware & Hudson one, and the People's Coal Company one breaker.
>
> The Reading, the Lehigh Valley, and the Temple Coal and Iron Company are not attempting to run any of their plants, although some 2,000 men reported to the Lehigh Valley Coal Company for work this morning.
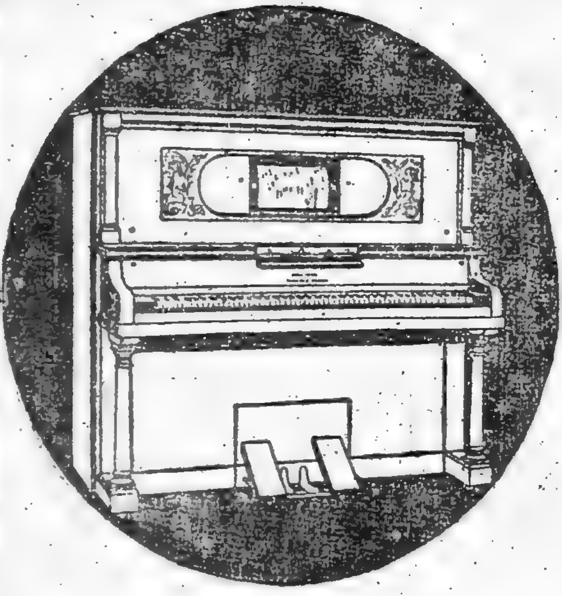
> The coal operators are doing their utmost to secure an even distribution of the supply of coal now on hand. The price of freight has not been raised; no charge whatever is being made for the cost the operators have incurred for the storage of coal, and the price free on board and "alongside" is exactly the same to-day as it has been for some months. There is no excuse for the raising of the price of coal, and the operators are doing everything in their power to prevent it. There is no reason for the public's being inconvenienced by the existing strike. The operators have stored a very large quantity of coal against just such an emergency as has arisen, and this coal will be distributed with as great regard as possible to the demands of legitimate consumers.

As a result of the protests of the retailers, the operators decided yesterday to allow shipments to this city. At Perth Amboy barges and canalboats have been lying for three weeks, waiting for cargoes of coal. Many of them will be loaded to-day.



Special Demonstrations
STUYVESANT
Pianola Piano
WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY
10 to 12 A. M. and 2 to 4 P. M.

THE price of the Stuyvesant Pianola Piano is $550. The demand for an instrument at this popular price has been so great that it is only within a few weeks that we have been able to show a complete assortment in our warerooms.

A series of Special Demonstrations of the Stuyvesant Pianola Piano will be given Wednesday and Thursday during the hours of 10 to 12 A. M. and 2 to 4 P. M. The instrument will be played and explained in a special room at Aeolian Hall, a musical program of unusual interest being provided.

The merely curious as well as intending purchasers are invited to attend these Demonstrations. The Stuyvesant Pianola Piano contains the complete Metrostyle Pianola just the same as our $1,000 instruments.

Persons who have been prevented by the matter of price from investigating this new type of musical instrument should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

SOFT COAL OWNERS SIGNING.

Further Breaks in Their Ranks Expected Within the Week.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3.—The great coal strike began in earnest to-day with the backbone of the operators' resistance apparently damaged in the bituminous fields. F. L. Robbins and some independent operators in the Western Pennsylvania district have signed the 1903 scale contracts presented by the miners. They mine 30,000,000 tons of the 41,000,000 tons normal production of the Western Pennsylvania district and of the 117,000,000 normal production of the central competitive field, composed of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Mr. Robbins has also signed contracts to operate his Ohio and Illinois mines.

A number of small independent operators in Ohio, some in Indiana, and a larger number in Illinois have signed contracts. Compared with the output of resisting operators in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, the independents who have signed in those States represent only a small production, but indications are that from 40 to 45 per cent. of the normal production in the central competitive field will be coming from the mines by the latter part of the week.

Up to this time there is no large break in the ranks of the resisting Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois operators. The friendly attitude of the unions to the non-union operators and miners is calculated, in the opinion of the miners' officials, to give assurance that the West Virginia and non-union fields in Pennsylvania will be kept in operation. Most of the non-union operators have posted the advance in wages, and this news has been hailed with as much delight by the unionists as the reports of signing by union operators.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3.—Negotiations are in progress in the various mining districts of the Southwest that are expected to result in resumption of work by a large number of men within a few days.

The officers of the mine workers of the district, including Western Arkansas and Indian Territory, have received overtures from the operators with a view to signing the scale. There is to be a meeting of the operators at South McAlester to-morrow, and, although there will be no consultation with the miners until after the meeting, there is every reason to believe that the operators of the district will sign and resume work within the next few days.

PITTSBURG MEN WON'T WORK.

Dissatisfied with Settlement—Dolan Ejected from Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—Although the Pittsburg Coal Company and eight independent concerns signed the agreement to pay the new scale of wages to the miners yesterday, none of the men went to work to-day. Not a mine in the Monongahela Valley was in operation, and those of the Panhandle Railroad and the big Ellsworth mines in Washington County were idle. About 2,000 men reported for work at the different workings, but over 15,000 were affected by the settlement reached yesterday. It is averred that the idleness to-day was due to a misunderstanding, and that to-morrow the men will go to work. The men themselves, however, declare they will not work under the scale as proposed.

The independent operators who refuse to sign the scale are making no move, and will make none at present. They assert that they can get plenty of men to work at the old scale.

President Patrick Dolan tried to take his seat as Chairman of the District Convention this morning, and was forcibly ejected from the hall, as was ex-Judge Stowe, who had been called to give legal advice to the delegates. When Dolan called the meeting to order, Steven Whetzel was elected Chairman. Dolan held the chair at one end of the hall and Whetzel went to the other. Both Chairmen hammered for order, and a riot started at once.

After there had been shouting and shaking of fists for an hour, ex-Judge Stowe was sent for to give legal advice. As he entered the hall a brawny miner grabbed him and put him out, shouting, "You're no delegate!" The Judge explained his mission, and was then admitted. He told the delegates they had no legal right to remove Dolan. This created another storm, and he was ordered out of the hall. Dolan refused a similar order to go, and ten sergeants-at-arms put him out. They marched to his seat and dragged him from his chair and out of the hall.

The fight so far has cost the miners of this district over $100,000, and the end is not yet in sight.

The independent operators were in session until almost midnight to-night. John H. Jones, President of the Pittsburg and Buffalo Coal Company, presided, and J. T. Stoneroad of the Carnegie Coal Company was the Secretary. Representatives of twenty operators attended, representing an annual output of 20,000,000 tons. A permanent organization was formed, and after the meeting the following official statement was given out:

"At a meeting of the independent operators held to-night the position taken at the previous meeting was reaffirmed, and no action was taken toward the acceptance of the 1903 scale. The probable outcome of these meetings will be the formation of an independent coal operators' association of the Western Pennsylvania district. Those present were absolutely unanimous against signing the 1903 scale."

JOHNSTOWN, April 3.—To-night a temporary injunction was issued restraining the strikers at Windber from interfering in any way with the non-union miners. The injunction was issued upon the application of the Berwind-White Coal Company and specifically mentions National Organizer Joseph Ginter. A hearing to make the injunction permanent will be held April 8.

ANTHRACITE MINERS HOPEFUL.

Railroads, However, Stop Construction Work and Lay Off Men.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—The friendly spirit in which both sides are reported to have met at the conference between the operators and representatives of the miners in New York to-day has aroused throughout the hard coal region a feeling that the suspension of work will be only temporary.

The situation was practically unchanged to-day. In Shamokin the Enterprise Colliery, owned by W. L. Connell & Co., was operated shorthanded by non-union men. In Scranton the Oxford Colliery, a small non-union operation, and twenty washeries were worked, as was the case yesterday. Aside from these plants there were no attempts in any part of the region to operate the collieries.

Reports from Scranton are to the effect that the Delaware & Hudson and the Erie Companies are making preparations to resume as soon as possible. A number of men have been engaged at the mines of these companies ostensibly for guard duty. In this city the Delaware & Hudson Company has opened two offices for the purpose of employing guards and laborers in and about the mines. Railroad companies have laid off a number of coal crews and telegraph operators in various sections, but those suspended, it is said, have been requested not to leave the region, indicating, according to the miners, that an early resumption is anticipated.

President Baer of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, however, issued orders to-day to contractors on all parts of the system to suspend work until further orders. The notice is construed to mean that he is convinced that an amicable settlement with the miners will not be made, and it is his desire to curtail expenditures as much as possible.

It is estimated that nearly 2,000 men have been thrown out of employment at Reading, Harrisburg, Shippensburg, and other smaller towns along the Reading system.

Several minor disturbances occurred during the day near Wilkesbarre. The companies of the State police again patrolled the roads in the vicinity of the collieries, and reported that good order prevailed.

New Haven Road Reduces Coal Rates.

BOSTON, April 3.—Announcement of a new freight tariff on coal, carrying with it a reduction of 10 cents a ton, which took effect April 1, was made public by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to-day. It was said the reduction was made possible by a decrease in the cost of handling coal in transit, by improved facilities at tidewater points.

MINNEAPOLIS THIEF GIVES UP HIS LOOT

HAD BEEN A HIGHWAYMAN

After a full confession of one of the biggest robberies ever committed in the West, A. E. Bartlett, alias Thomas J. Wainwright and a dozen other names, wrote out yesterday an order to the Cashier of the West Side branch of the Corn Exchange Bank giving Central Office detectives the right to empty his safe deposit box in that institution.

In the box were found the keys to a safety deposit box in the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company. This box will be opened to-day, and its contents, all of which are supposed to be loot from his robberies in Minneapolis, will be removed to Police Headquarters.

In the Corn Exchange Bank's branch were found securities, many of them negotiable, and all valued at between $90,000 and $100,000. They included notes held by Dr. Nicholas J. Pinault of Minneapolis, whose mansion Bartlett looted and whose safe deposit box in a Minneapolis bank he also robbed; the wills of all the members of his family, and stocks and bonds. The notes ranged from $50 to $7,500. A canceled check for $10,000 was found in the mass of papers and securities. Mortgages and certificates of stock, batches of stock in various banks and corporations, and real estate deeds were found. One hundred and thirty shares of stock of the Merchants' National Bank of St. Cloud, Minn., were in the loot. Stock of the St. Cloud Cold Storage and Produce Company worth $8,500, stock and certificates of stock in the Overland Gold Mining Company, and letters of recommendation and introduction made up the large bundle of valuable documents. A silver watch of ancient make and an oval Florentine mosaic casket for jewels were also in the box. These last are said to be French relics of great value belonging to Dr. Pinault's wife.

The Loot Was Rich.

The loot in the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company's box may swell the sum of valuable papers brought East by Bartlett to $150,000. Two trunks laden with silverware and jewels and laces have been found in Providence, R. I. They were shipped there last Saturday night, and a Central Office man has gone to that city to bring them to New York. These, with the furs he stole from the Penault mansion and sold in Minneapolis, the cash and jewelry he has already disposed of in various cities, and the antiques he disposed of in this city, will swell the sum total of Bartlett's Minneapolis robbery to large figures.

When Bartlett confessed yesterday to Inspector McLaughlin he said that he had not intended to be taken alive. That he was prepared to die with his boots on was evident from the weapons taken from him and the way he wore them. After several penitentiary terms for desperate robberies, Bartlett, who is a man of excellent appearance—a "good dresser," as the police say—and with gentlemanly manners, planned his final trick and intended to retire and settle down. He was even busy picking out a wife for himself when he thought his stake was in hand at last. The securities turned into cash, the antiques lost in old shops and the stores of pawnbrokers, and a good cash bank account to his credit, the criminal world would never have heard of him again, he says.

Bartlett carried an automatic magazine revolver hung in a holster over his left breast, under his waistcoat. Passing his handkerchief to his face, he could have drawn this weapon and emptied its magazine in a second, before the officer arresting him could realize that he would fight. It is a trick of the Western crook. After Bartlett was disarmed yesterday, he showed the Central Office men, just for fun, how quick a life could be snuffed out without giving the other man the warning that a reach of the hand to the hippocket usually gives. About his waist was a cartridge belt full of cartridges. At his hip was an ordinary revolver. He said yesterday that if he had not been "smothered" by the three Central Office men and Supt. Dougherty of the Pinkertons, when he was captured on Monday, he would have made a hard fight. He was "jumped" from behind and his arms pinioned by Dougherty, and his weapons taken from him before he could move a hand.

When his armament was removed there was also taken from Bartlett's clothes a publication devoted to the finding of wives for husbands who have no time to go a-courting. In a list of feminine "want ads." there were marked those of various women who promised to be "good, kindly, loving wives, with blue eyes, fair hair, and amiable dispositions." He was not using this publication as a means of fraud, although he has his share of physical attractiveness. He wanted a wife, and in Chicago, he said yesterday, he thought he had found one. She was a pretty woman he met there, who was poor and wanted to get to her home, Milwaukee. He "made friends" with her, he said, bought her the clothes she wanted, and then decided that he wouldn't take her. He gave her $25, bought a new copy of the matrimonial magazine, and sent her home.

"You've got me on the hip," he said to the Inspector, yesterday, and he smiled as he said it. "There's no use my holding back my romance. You have me on the job."

Bartlett then told his whole story. He lived at the Manhattan Hotel when he wanted to interest buyers of antiques and jewelry. When he did not live there, he stayed at 116 West Forty-ninth Street, or 168 West Ninety-fourth Street, or 41 West Forty-sixth Street. He went under a different name at each place, and had a trunk in each place. He kept a careful account of his names and addresses. He carried a bank account in the Corn Exchange Bank under still another name. He was a community in himself.

The Pinkerton people say that they have not run into such a "smooth" person in the burglary business since last they read popular fiction. He had Raffles looking like a fat boy with a stolen apple in his hands and a long-legged policeman behind him.

His plans for the big Minneapolis robbery were laid with care. In the box opened yesterday were found letters of introduction from the Boston Republican Campaign Committee to the Chicago Republican Campaign Committee. There were also letters from bankers of Boston, all stolen and changed, and others forged.

In Chicago he got a place in the department store called "The Fair." He did not want the job for the chance of doing small thieving. He wanted it for a recommendation, and he worked hard and was polite and suave until he was ready to quit with a request for a letter. He got the letter.

Always well dressed, his mustache cropped at the ends, giving him a determined, business look, and with his letters in his pocket, he picked out one of the wealthiest men of Minneapolis as his victim. That was Dr. Pinault. Into the doctor's house he went as Superintendent and general caretaker. According to his confession, the family treated him as a friend, and when the doctor and his wife were ready to go to Florida for the Winter he was left in charge of the mansion, with its wealth of personal belongings and the big safe full of silver, rare laces, relics from historic French days, and other things of great value.

He took his time, disdaining the use of hasty nitroglycerine or dynamite. He worked over the safe until he had solved the combination. He removed the contents and found the keys to the doctor's safe deposit box. With the furs of Mrs. Pinault, her jewels, and the rich ornaments and silverware and laces of the house at his disposal, he was not satisfied. He wanted what was in the doctor's safe deposit box. He left the house and took apartments at the best hotel in Minneapolis. Then he rented a box in the same place where the doctor had his, and frequently visited it, to become acquainted with the employes of the institution.

Getting the Safe Deposit Box.

He was always giving clerks good cigars and ingratiating himself with them in other ways. After three weeks he emptied his own deposit box and told the clerk, by that time his friend, that he would also empty "my other box." He then drew from his pocket the keys he had found in the doctor's safe at home, and his game was successful. He emptied the doctor's box of everything. Then he packed his trunks and went to Chicago and New York. He ran up to Boston, gave a dinner to a Fifth Avenue firm of antique dealers after his return here, established his bank account, his three homes, and his two safe deposit "caches," and began to realize in cash on his booty.

But all this time the Pinkerton agent in Minneapolis was tracing his baggage. It was traced to Chicago. The Chicago agent took up the trail and traced it here. It was traced to Boston and back to New York. It was traced to one and then to another of the houses he lived in here, and at last he was caught.

In the Centre Street Police Court yesterday Bartlett agreed to accept the extradition papers from Minnesota as soon as they arrived. A Minneapolis detective is now awaiting them here. He was remanded to the Tombs until their arrival. Inspector McLaughlin, after a talk with the Chief of Police of Boston, learned that his quarry was wanted in that town on three charges of forgery.

Bartlett's record is interesting. He served seven years in Massachusetts for highway robbery. Although polite and always a gentleman in appearance, he always chose the desperate sorts of crime. After that term he held a pistol to the head of a jeweler in Bridgeport, Conn., while a companion carried off a tray of diamonds. He got twelve years for that, but his term was cut down by his good behavior. It is his hope now that by acting squarely with the authorities and telling where the Pinault stolen property is he will receive some leniency.

DECISION IN RUBY CASE.

The Real and the Artificial Classified Alike by the Appraisers.

A decision which the precious stone dealers have been awaiting with some anxiety was reached yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers in the reconstructed ruby case. The board sustained a protest of Albert Lorsch & Co., 37 Maiden Lane, against the action of Collector Stranahan, who classified artificial rubies as manufactured articles dutiable at 20 per cent. Under the board's decision the articles are classed for customs purposes with natural rubies and are dutiable at 10 per cent.

While this is a victory for firms that deal in artificial rubies, it is a set-back for a number of others which deal in natural stones and have been striving to have the two kinds of articles separately classified by the Government. It is supposed that the ruby case will affect other kinds of precious stones, including emeralds.

The dealers in natural rubies have argued that if the Government should classify artificial rubies with the natural product the trade in the latter would suffer. Unscrupulous dealers, it is contended, would be enabled by such a classification to sell the product of the factory as natural rubies.

General Appraiser Sharretts wrote the opinion, in which he said that reconstructed rubies are composed of the same chemical constituents as the natural stones—oxide of chromium and aluminium.

The Treasury Department will appeal to the courts from the decision of the board.

and the unhappy Long was about to resume his speech, when Bailey arose and called attention to Allison's refusal to answer Foraker's question.

"The Senator from Kansas knows," said Bailey, "that without Democratic Senators this bill could not have been reported. He knows that it can never be written in the statute books without Democratic votes. And I want publicly to complain of a policy by which half a dozen men of one party sit down with the President and agree on amendments without any consultation with the other friends of the bill.

"I complain, not that they conferred, but that, having conferred and agreed on an amendment, they present it to the Senate without any consultation with those without whose aid they cannot pass this bill at all."

After this, spoken in Bailey's most menacing manner, nobody had anything to say. Long picked up his manuscript and plunged again into his speech.

Mr. Long contended that the decisions of the Supreme Court clearly showed that before a court will set aside a rate made by legislative authority, it must clearly appear that the rate is so unjust or so unreasonable as to amount to taking property without just compensation; that the courts will only interfere with rates made by legislative authority when they are confiscatory, and they have defined confiscatory rates to be those which do not give a fair return on the property employed in performing the service. Rates could not be fixed so low by Congress or by a commission, said Mr. Long, as to leave the property of the carrier in the hands of the owner without any remuneration for its use.

It is a judicial question, Mr. Long said, to determine whether the maximum rate fixed by the commission permitted a fair return on the property employed in performing the service, and Congress could not and should not interfere with this judicial function. He declared that all the rights of the carrier were amply protected under the present jurisdiction of the court, which would not be restricted or enlarged by this bill.

TILLMAN EXPECTS COMPROMISE

Believes Republicans Hopelessly Divided—To Limit Courts' Power.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Senator Tillman and his advisers have reached the point where they begin to feel confident of effecting a compromise on the Rate bill. Their analysis of the present situation is that the President has irremediably divided the Republican majority by promulgating the Long amendment, and that the fight from this time on will be three cornered until the Democratic minority gets its desired chance to make an agreement with the majority of the Republicans. The Democratic leaders say that the President has taken as the basis of the Long amendment the first part of the Bailey amendment. They are willing to let the debate run along until it is demonstrated that strength enough cannot be rallied to this proposition to pass it.

Then they hoped to make terms by which the President's Senators will accept the last part of the Bailey amendment, which denies to the courts the power to issue interlocutory decrees. There will be no convergence toward this result for some time. Senator Tillman is still pursuing the passive policy as to getting an agreement for a day on which to vote.

Aldrich and Bailey had a conference to-day, in which they got down to bed-rock propositions. Throughout Bailey turned a cast-iron face to every overture for a compromise. Aldrich came out of the conference with empty hands. Bailey believes he has the making of a law as he wants it in the cards as they are now on the table. What the next play for position by Aldrich and his lieutenants will be remains to be seen. For two days their only resource has been to bait the new and soft Senators who want the Hepburn bill straight and unchanged and without teasing and confusing questions.

There are a dozen Senators who have been quietly taking a poll of the Senate. Every little while when some Senator makes the positive declaration that he will vote for some amendment or the bill, or the reverse, a Senator here and there may be seen to take out a notebook and jot down a note on the statement. In all lists, so far as known, the following Senators are put down to vote against the Hepburn bill and any amendment that falls short of an absolute court review, with the right preserved to the courts to grant injunctions against new rates on application from carriers.

Aldrich,
Alger,
Allee,

Bulkely,
Burnham,
Crane,
Dillingham,
Dryden,

To that list Foraker, Elkins, and Scott may be added, according as they dare to defy sentiment in their States.

The high pitch to which public opinion has been aroused in West Virginia gives the friends of the bill assurances that Elkins and Scott will be forced to vote with the friends of the President's policy. Senator Foraker is counted in the same category because of the action of the Ohio Legislature. Twenty-nine Republican Senators are counted for the President's amendment. These are:

AFTER DEFERRED DIVIDENDS.

Agents Urged to Drum Up That Kind of Insurance Before It's Too Late.

Several of the life insurance companies which have made a specialty of deferred dividend business, now practically doomed in the certainty that the Armstrong Committee's bill prohibiting it will be passed, are urging their agents to write all the business of this kind possible between now and the first of next year, when the new bills will go into effect.

Vice President Tarbell of the Equitable Life, under date of April 2, is sending out a circular to Equitable agents, which begins by saying: "In the midst of this uncertainty and confusion, I direct your attention to this fact, which no amount of agitation or legislation can controvert—that life insurance is an absolute essential to our civilization, based on scientific principles, and that people are bound to have it."

"Let the discussion go on," Mr. Tarbell continues, "but let us whose business it is to write life insurance go ahead and tend to our business."

Of deferred dividend business Mr. Tarbell says:

"Without entering into a discussion at this time as to the merits of the deferred dividend system, you know that there are hundreds of thousands of people, including many insurance experts, who believe that that system is better for the policy holder than any other; and as we believe in giving every man the kind of insurance he wants, we think it entirely proper for you to give all who believe in the deferred dividend plan above everything else an opportunity to increase their holdings at this time."

George G. Haven was re-elected a Director at the annual meeting of the Washington Life Insurance Company yesterday, together with S. S. Clarke, H. Ward Ford, and George M. Hard. Henry S. Hermann, Richard Billings, and Paul Fuller were elected to the board to fill vacancies.

So far as could be learned, the Grand Jury made no demand on District Attorney Jerome for insurance evidence yesterday.

Mr. Jerome appeared in Part I. about 11 o'clock yesterday morning for the first time since Recorder Goff charged the regular Grand Jury that it must follow up the insurance inquiry. The court was crowded, and everybody rose on tiptoe to see what happened. But nothing out of the ordinary did happen. The District Attorney bowed gravely to the court. The court returned the salutation with equal solemnity.

All the Bills Made a Special Order in the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 3.—The insurance bills, as amended by the joint Committees on Insurance and the Investigating Committee, were in general orders in the Senate to-day, but were not reached. The Senate adjourned before they were taken up. All seven of the bills were made a special order for Thursday, and the debate on them will then begin.

Senator Armstrong endeavored to have the bills made a special order for to-morrow, and suggested that they might be advanced to third reading and discussed when they came up for final passage. To this Senator Grady objected, not, he said, because he was opposed to the bills, but because there had been no notice that the amended bills had been placed on the members' desks, and so he had not had time to go over the measures and study them in amended form. Senator Grady asserted that he could not say offhand what position he would take on the legislation, and that he would agree to have the bills made a special order for Thursday.

The indications are becoming stronger daily that there will be little or no opposition to the bills in their present shape. The item relating to assessment concerns may cause trouble in the Assembly, but it has not developed that the Senate will make a serious fight on any of the provisions of the various measures.

The Assembly to-day advanced to third reading the insurance bill which seeks to eliminate the bulk of the evils unearthed by the Investigating Committee. The procedure on the bill was without incident, save that Cox and Palmer served notice that they would offer amendments on its final passage.

Lackawanna's Brooklyn Purchase.

A big deal in Brooklyn water-front property was put through yesterday when the Lackawanna Railroad contracted for the purchase from the Brooklyn Warehouse and Dry Dock Company and the Brooklyn Dock and Terminal Company of a tract of land 390 by 2,000 feet in South Brooklyn. The property is on the pier line, extending from Twenty-fifth to Twenty-sixth Street. It is intended to convert the property into a large freight terminal.

Up-State Bank Cashier Held.

POTSDAM, N. Y., April 3.—Lorenzo A. Smith, until recently cashier of the First National Bank of Massena, N. Y., was held here to-day without bail for the St. Lawrence County Grand Jury on a charge of forgery in the second degree. He is charged with having obtained two loans, one of $8,000 and the second of $2,500, from the People's Bank of Potsdam and the Citizens' National Bank of Potsdam on two forged certificates of stock of the Massena Bank, with which he made good a shortage in the Massena Bank.

Bayonne to Have Paid Firemen.

The Common Council of Bayonne, N. J., passed an ordinance last night abolishing the old volunteer Fire Department and creating a new paid department. It will cost about $50,000, but is expected to cause a 15 per cent. reduction in the fire insurance rates.

APRIL 1906

REFORMERS TRIUMPH IN RUSSIAN CAPITAL

All the 160 Constitutional Democratic Candidates Win.

WITTE WILL NOT RESIGN YET

To Retain Premiership Till Parliament Meets and His Decision Then Will Depend on the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Wednesday, April 4.—The official canvass of the votes cast at the election here on Monday, owing to the unexpectedly heavy vote and the inexperience of the officials, had not been completed at midnight, but it is conceded that the Radical tide has swept to victory every one of the 160 Constitutional Democratic electors.

The supporters of the so-called "Block" ticket, put in the field by the "Octoberists" and Progressive Economists and the Law and Order and Trade and Industries parties saved nothing out of the wreck. The Constitutional Democrats, on the average, received almost two votes where the "Block" party received one.

The Constitutional Democrats naturally are jubilant, as the triumph which they have won at the capital, the headquarters of the Bureaucracy, is bound to have a strong effect on the country at large, and they are now looking forward to a working majority in the National Parliament. They have already nominated a candidate for the Presidency of the lower house, in the person of M. Petrunkevitch of Tver, who is regarded as one of the most able and vigorous advocates of a constitutional government for the empire.

The Russkoe Gosudarstvo, Premier Witte's newspaper organ, which admits the victory of the Constitutional Democrats, attributes it to the vaccillation of the Conservative faction and the intemperance of its organs. The paper also declares that Count Witte will retain the Premiership until the convocation of Parliament, and that his resignation or retention of office then will depend on the attitude of Emperor Nicholas.

There is an intimation that, no matter what may be the political complexion of Parliament, nobody who does not possess the fullest confidence of the Emperor will be elected as Premier.

The Russ, owned by Alexis A. Souvorin, which was suspended on Monday, has appeared once more under the name of Malvo, (Fame.)

The police yesterday confiscated the Polar Star, a weekly paper published by Peter Struve, formerly editor of the Osvobojdenie, (Emancipation,) who was summoned to St. Petersburg from Paris, where he was in exile, by Count Witte last November, and who is a strong upholder of the liberal policy.

WON'T HURT RUSSIA'S FEELINGS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 3.—In the House of Lords to-day Lord Northbourne asked the Government if it would lay on the table any Consular or other reports concerning the anti-Jewish outrages in Russia. He thought, he said, that the publication of such reports might indirectly have some effect in inducing the Russian Government to do its best to remedy conditions that outraged the civilization of the twentieth century.

Lord Fitzmaurice, in replying on behalf of the Foreign Office, expressed sympathy with the humane feelings of Lord Northbourne, but said the Government could not grant his request without committing a great diplomatic impropriety. Great Britain could not interfere in the internal affairs of Russia, and, that being the case, ought not to take steps in Parliament that would give rise to discussions offensive to Russia and would be more apt to harm than help the Russian Jews.

In this view the Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Lansdowne fully concurred, and the subject was dropped.

OREL, April 3.—There is a veritable panic among the Jews here on account of the free circulation of proclamations which seemingly were printed in Government printing offices and which incite to anti-Semitic outrages.

The authorities, who have disavowed the proclamations, are taking the strongest measures to prevent disorders.

RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOAT LOST.

Officers on It Were Witnessing the Trial of a Submarine.

LIBAU, April 3.—In the course of the trial of a submarine boat here to-day, a torpedo boat, from which several naval officers were witnessing the experiments, struck a reef.

Those on board the torpedo boat were rescued, but a snowstorm prevented the salvage of the boat, which sank.

STORER MUDDLE CONTINUES.

Theoretically the Retiring Ambassador Is Not Now in Vienna.

VIENNA, April 3.—Foreign Minister Goluchowski returned to Vienna on Sunday, but no official step with reference to the recall of Ambassador Storer has yet been taken. Official circles, which at first acquiesced in the suggestion from Washington that, pending the change in the embassy here, diplomatic business between Austria-Hungary and the United States be transacted at Washington, are now pointing out that this is somewhat impractical, because small questions are always pending between the embassy and the Foreign Office, making direct communication advisable.

Mr. Storer is still confined to his room. He has not yet officially notified the Foreign Office of his return to Vienna, and so long as this is not done he will, presumably, not be regarded as the American Ambassador, for before Mr. Storer started for Egypt he officially notified the Foreign Office that he was leaving Secretary Rives as Chargé d'Affaires, and this notification has not been rescinded.

An officer of the Imperial household called yesterday to see Mr. Storer, but was not admitted, being informed that Mr. Storer was not able to receive any one.

VIENNA, April 3.—Telegrams from the United States and London reproduce reports that Mrs. Bellamy Storer has been "supported in her clerical propaganda by the French Ambassador at Vienna, the Marquis de Reverseaux."

In the full knowledge of the facts, I am able to say that the report is utterly devoid of foundation.

Scotch Degree for Dean Agnes Irwin.

GLASGOW, April 3.—St. Andrew's University to-day conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Miss Agnes Irwin, Dean of Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass.

GERMAN REBUFF FOR RUSSIA.

Government May Refuse to Support a Second Loan in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 3.—Russian bonds fell on the Boerse to-day as a result of the rumor that the German Government would not support a second Russian loan here.

The Government, it is said, feels that the present is a bad time for a Russian loan, as the German and Prussian Governments are about to borrow large sums.

BERLIN, April 3.—The question of the participation of German finance in another Russian loan is being eagerly discussed.

A good many amateur politicians have been suggesting that the Government ought to forbid or discourage German participation in order to punish Russia for her attitude at the Morocco Conference. On the other hand, it is held to be a mistaken policy to prevent the placing of a loan here, as it would be injurious to the money market and injurious also in that it would tend to deprive Germany of participation in those Russian Government contracts for which the loan is partly intended to pay.

It is understood that in view of these grave considerations the German Government is reserving its decision.

It is expected that the loan issue will take place toward the end of the present month and that the amount will be from £60,000,000 to £80,000,000.

BERLIN, April 3.—The Imperial Government's need of money is partly due to the double-tracking of certain railways in Alsace on strategic grounds, and also to the double-tracking of several Prussian railroads adjacent to the North Sea in the interest of national defense.

As the budget failed to pass the Reichstag prior to April 1, when the fiscal year begins, the Government obtained the passage last week of a temporary bill authorizing a maximum of $87,500,000 of Treasury bills for running expenses and $50,000,000 in loans.

CHINESE-RUSSIAN FRICTION.

St. Petersburg Officials Declare That Japan Is to Blame for It.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 3.—No confirmation has been received of the report from Harbin that hostilities between the Russian and Chinese troops are imminent.

At the Foreign Office, however, it is said that the negotiations between Russia and China over Manchurian affairs are not progressing satisfactorily, and that the relations between the two countries have been somewhat strained. The Russian Minister at Peking, M. Pokotiloff, and Gen. Grodekoff, the Commander in Chief of the Russian troops in the Far East, are acting in harmony, but the Chinese are displaying a great deal of steadfastness, and not only refuse to recognize the private concessions in Manchuria held by Russians, but are constantly pressing the question of the evacuation of Manchuria by the Russian troops.

The Chinese are also asking for a diminution of the number of railroad guards along the Manchurian Railroad, but Russia is resisting the demand until the safety of the road is assured.

It is intimated in other Government quarters that China's attitude is due to Japanese support.

HAGUE CONFERENCE SOON.

Russian Government Proposes That It Meet Early in July.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Unexpectedly the Russian Government to-day made another movement toward the reconvention of The Hague Conference.

Baron Rosen, the Russian Ambassador, presented to Secretary Root a proposal for the reconvention of the conference early in July, and indicated that the Dutch Government had assented to the proposal. It had been supposed that, owing to the complexity of the problems involved in the arrangement of even a tentative programme for the conference it would scarcely be possible for the conference to assemble before late in the Autumn.

The short period of time available will make it necessary for some of the powers which have given little attention to the subject recently to do some rapid diplomatic work in order to arrange programmes according to their own desires.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 3.—It was announced here to-day that Capt. Charles S. Sperry, President of the Naval War College, would shortly be detached to act as American naval representative at the coming Hague Conference.

TO PERSUADE MOORS' RULER.

All the Powers Agree to Urge Him to Consent to the Reforms.

ALGECIRAS, April 3.—The protocol of the Conference on Moroccan Reforms, copies of which are in course of preparation for signature by the delegates on Saturday, is a formidable document of 123 sections.

Final ratification of the protocol will not be later than next Dec. 13 at Madrid. In the meanwhile the Moorish delegates having declared their inability to sign without referring the questions involved to the Sultan, the signatory powers reciprocally engage to endeavor to obtain the Sultan's adhesion to the reforms. The reforms will be effective next Dec. 31.

Existing treaties with Morocco will retain their validity, but in the event of conflict between treaties and the conference's protocol the latter will take precedence.

The resolution on behalf of the Jews in Morocco introduced in the conference yesterday by Ambassador White obtained unanimous and cordial support, even the Moorish delegates favoring it.

GERMAN DUELIST SENTENCED.

Reichstag May Stop Pensions for Officers Hurt in Duels.

BRESLAU, April 3.—The Criminal Court here to-day sentenced Karl Beseler, a lawyer, son of the recently appointed Prussian Minister of Justice, Dr. Beseler, to four months' detention in a fortress for having fought a duel with pistols.

His opponent was Walter Grunow, a young engineer. The meeting, at which no blood was shed, was the result of a personal encounter in a tavern.

BERLIN, April 3.—The Budget Committee of the Reichstag to-day decided to recommend to the Reichstag the insertion in the Military Pension bill of a clause precluding officers wounded in duels from drawing pensions for such injuries.

Lord Grey's Gift to be Here Soon.

A Business Revolution

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has revolutionized the whole method of conducting real estate transactions.

In former times the inexperienced individual engaging in a real estate transaction might be imposed upon at every turn. To-day a ten million dollar company takes care of every detail from the preliminary contract to the closing of the title, at a minimum expense, and then guarantees the result.

EIGHTY-CENT GAS BILL SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR

DUTIES OF CORPORATIONS

Governor Criticises the Self-Interest of Companies and the Effect on Democratic Institutions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—Gov. Higgins to-day signed the Page-Agnew Eighty-Cent Gas bill, and in a memorandum submitted to the Legislature with his approval he says that the action of the investigating committee justifies the bill, and that the challenge of the Consolidated Gas Company made it consistent and proper for the Legislature to deal with the matter directly, instead of abandoning the original scheme of legislation recommended by the committee and waiting for the establishment of the Gas Commission's findings.

The Governor also criticises the self-interest of corporations and its effect in bringing about distrust of democratic institutions, but says the way to reform does not lie in the direction of municipal ownership, but rather in the careful restriction of companies. The Governor goes on to say:

"Distrust of democratic institutions prevails where the self-interest of the few is potent and the self-interest of the many is powerless, where wealth rather than manhood determines who shall enjoy the choicest privileges in the community, and where public service corporations flourish while consumers suffer. Distrust of democracy likewise prevails where wealth is constantly threatened with confiscation by unjust and unequal laws.

"The hope of democracy lies not wholly in municipal ownership, where, the fair incentive of personal gain being withdrawn, public utilities may perhaps be operated in a shiftless manner and at a loss, so that taxation of property must be resorted to in order that such utilities may be enjoyed at less than cost. It lies rather in the careful restriction of companies to a fair return on the value of their investment. Confiscation, if permitted by political expediency, which looks no further than the next campaign for the rule of right to govern its action, is prohibited by the Constitutions of State and Nation.

"When one devotes his property to public use he grants the public an interest in the use, and must submit to be controlled by the public for the common good. The State has the power to make reasonable regulation of the charges for services rendered by corporations engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling illuminating gas. To what extent may this regulation go? The authorities must fix upon a price which is reasonable. The power to regulate is not a power to destroy. The property of a corporation cannot be wrested from it for the benefit of the public. Its stockholders should receive some compensation for the use of the money they have invested. Yet the courts have held that judicial interference should not occur unless the case presents, clearly and beyond all doubt, such a flagrant attack upon the rights of property under the guise of regulation as to compel the court to say that the rates prescribed will necessarily have the effect to deny just compensation for private property taken for public use.

"All laws regulating rates are subject to judicial review. Judicial inquiry may best determine where regulation ends and confiscation begins, but the power and the duty of the Legislature in this case seem clear, and the example of prompt and vigorous action should be a restraint on extortion and greed and welcome evidence of the loyalty of public servants to the interests of the people."

LOCAL OPTION BILL NOT DEAD.

Efforts to Have It Reported by Assembly and Senate Committees.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 3.—The action of the Assembly Excise Committee and the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment of the Senate, in killing the Tully-Wainwright Local Option bill, has aroused widespread sentiment in favor of the measure. The legislators are being deluged with petitions that the bill be taken out of committee and the members lined up to see what their affiliations are. The Rev. Dr. Howard H. Russell, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, who has been in constant attendance here since the bill was introduced, ventured the prediction to-day that the bill was not dead and that it was too early in the game for the brewers to hold a wake.

He said it was true that the committees of both houses had voted against reporting the bill but he believes that an effort to have the committees discharged from further consideration of the measure will be successful.

Mr. Russell said that the same feeling of relief was manifest several days ago when the reports had it that the Prentice bill to make hotels conform with the building laws had been smothered, and yet it was finally reported out and passed the Assembly to-day. He predicted that the same thing would be true of the Local Option bill.

MAY END SESSION APRIL 27.

Legislature Will Probably Adjourn On or About That Date.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—The Assembly this morning adopted a concurrent resolution providing for final adjournment of the Legislature on Saturday, April 21, at 2 P. M.

This resolution must go to the Senate for concurrence, and while it may be passed in this form, it is probable that as usual a later date will be substituted. The general impression is that the Legislature will adjourn on or about Friday, April 27.

Build a bridge a foot too short and it will not bridge. Tailored without the elements of character a garment serves but half its function.

Ours is expressive tailoring. Not that of a mere mechanical impulse, born of habit, but tailoring which seeks resources beyond the narrow limits of a tape string, and finds them.

HOPE FOR A RECOUNT KILLED IN THE ASSEMBLY

The Raines-Murphy Measure Returned to Committee.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST IT

The Bill Sent Back by a Vote of 83 to 47—Party Lines Broken.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—After a fight of four hours the Assembly to-day recommitted the Raines-Murphy Recount bill by a vote of 83 to 47. It is conceded that the measure is dead. Majority Leader Moreland and Minority Leader Palmer united in sending it back to committee. Both spoke at length against the bill. Party lines were broken in every direction on the vote.

Moreland worked for an hour among the members during the debate, obtaining pledges for any motion that he might make. Fire Commissioner John H. O'Brien, Assistant Corporation Counsel Guy, and Assistant Secretary Thomas Hassett, represented Mayor McClellan, who was opposed to the measure. Hearst men, save for John Ford, were not in evidence.

Murphy made the opening speech when called upon to defend the bill. He declared that it was the general opinion that there had been great fraud in the last election in New York City, sufficient, at least, to place a cloud on the title of Mayor McClellan. This cloud should be lifted. His bill, he asserted, would do it.

"Elections are held to determine the will of the people," he said, "and this bill seeks to discover what that will was. The Republican Party has always stood for the purity of the ballot, and it should stand for it now. We all know what changes were shown relative to the few boxes that were opened. If even much less than the average change then shown should be kept up the verdict of the election would be shown to have been different than it now appears."

Tompkins, who represents the Mayor's home district, made a speech that bristled with legal points. He declared that the bill was retroactive, and quoted Chancellor Kent to the effect that such a statute had all the mischiefs of an ex post facto law. He declared that he had no fear of a recount.

What he opposed was the procedure as laid down in the bill and its general faulty legal construction. He asked the proponents of the measure how they would like to have it apply to the office of President and Governor. He declared the bill would establish the most dangerous kind of a precedent, and predicted that if enacted it would surely prove a boomerang.

Assemblyman Campbell made a bitter speech attacking financial interests and naming certain financiers who recently died. He eulogized Hearst and attacked Tammany Hall.

"If Mayor McClellan is an honest man, why don't he ask for a recount?" asked Campbell in conclusion.

Assemblyman Prentice, who was the man behind the resolution calling upon the Attorney General for information as to whether Hearst had begun an action toward a recount, said:

"If the Municipal Ownership candidate really had a plurality of the votes he should be seated, but he now has a legal remedy. If the Municipal Ownership candidates are sincerely desirous of holding office, why don't they proceed with the machinery the law now provides?"

Prentice said he believed the bill impracticable.

HEARING ON BALLOT REFORM.

Senate Committee Urged to Adopt the Massachusetts System.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—There was a long hearing on ballot reform before the Committee on Judiciary of the Senate to-day, when the three Elsberg-Prentice bills to adopt the Massachusetts form of ballot were considered. The bill provides for the adoption of voting machines and for a recount on an order of the Supreme Court. William M. Ivins had charge of the delegation from New York in favor of the bills, and with him were R. Fulton Cutting and ex-Justice William N. Cohen. Delegations from Rochester and Buffalo also attended the hearing.

Mr. Ivins explained the merits of the bill providing for the Massachusetts form of ballot, and said that a separate ballot had been provided for local candidates as distinguished from State candidates, in order to give a freer and fuller expression of local opinion and for the severance of purely local from State questions.

Mr. Ivins referred to the mistakes that occurred at the last election in New York City and to the lack of skill and intelligence on the part of election officers, and said that it was the purpose of the bill to secure a higher order of election officials.

R. Fulton Cutting, Chairman of the Citizens' Union, spoke of the need for some reform in the election law, and said that the Massachusetts form of ballot, which had been adopted in at least a dozen States since the time it was adopted by Massachusetts, seemed to offer the best solution of the question.

Ex-Justice Cohen called attention to the fact that the men who drafted the bills were members of all parties, experienced in politics and in the workings of the bills. As to the present law Mr. Cohen said that the Appellate Division had already pointed out that one of the greatest dangers to the community to-day was the present election law.

FOR HOTEL INSPECTION.

Bill Advocated by the Governor Passes the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 3.—By a vote of 88 to 34, under the spur of an emergency message from Gov. Higgins, the Prentice bill, providing for the inspection of hotels by the Building Departments of cities, was to-day passed in the Assembly. Hackett and La Fetra opposed it.

The bill provides that a license for a hotel shall not be issued unless the building shall be held to conform to the provisions of the Raines law relative to buildings of this kind. The inspection shall be made by the Building Department in cities, and under town and village heads elsewhere. Licenses cannot be issued to a hotel following a revocation of a license unless a new certificate is granted. The Prentice bill is one of the Anti-Saloon League measures.

CAN'T COUNT THESE BALLOTS.

Court Won't Open the Boxes in the Thirtieth Aldermanic District.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum decided yesterday that the ballot boxes in the Thirtieth Aldermanic District cannot be opened. Application had been made by Hubert Slattery, the Municipal Ownership candidate, who protested Alderman John T. McCall's election. Mr. McCall was the Democratic candidate. Slattery alleged a fraudulent count.

One of the most serious of his wounds was a crushing of the skull, which friends here think may have affected the brain. He was 23 years old.

TENNESSEE'S SONS HOLD THEIR FIRST DINNER

WANT SOUTHERN PRESIDENT

U. S. Senator Frazier Thinks That Section Is Entitled Now to Nominate a Candidate.

The Tennessee Society in New York, one of the youngest and certainly one of the lustiest State organizations in this town, held its first dinner in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last night. There was not a vacant seat at any of the tables.

It was an occasion on which Tennessee men talked Tennessee. Every city of prominence in the State was represented and nearly every locality. To quote the invitation, as directed to Tennesseeans, "You are sure to find some one there from your old home." The realization lived up to the prospectus.

Dr. William M. Polk of the Presidential house of Polk is the head of the society. At the table with him were James Edward Graybill, Edgar Bright Wilson, Samuel M. Gardenhire, President of the Missouri Society; the Rev. J. Nevett Steele, President of the Maryland Society; Martin W. Littleton, ex-Borough President of Brooklyn; Major Edward Owen, commander of the Confederate Veteran Camp of New York; William Lindsay, Vice President of the Kentuckians; Ralph M. Holland, President of the North Carolina Society; United States Senator James B. Frazier of Tennessee; Marion J. Verdery, President of the New York Southern Society; Howard R. Bayne, President of the Society of the Virginians; Champe S. Andrews, Walter D. Dawkins, President of the Delaware Society; T. J. McGuire, Vice President of the Georgia Society, and the Rev. Edgar C. Mason.

Dr. Polk, before calling on the first speaker, offered a toast to the President of the United States, which was drunk standing. Then he told of the organization of the Tennessee Society and the great strides it has taken since its birth. He introduced Mr. Holland of the North Carolina Society to speak to "State Societies."

Mr. Holland reminded Tennesseeans of their greatness, their Andrew Jackson, their James K. Polk, and Andrew Johnson, laying claim to all of them on behalf of his own State. He took, in fact, all credit for Tennessee on behalf of North Carolina, while acknowledging that North Carolina was still childless in the way of Presidents.

There was no lack of acknowledgment for the mothering qualities of New York. Mr. Holland told his hearers that he had no doubt they already looked down on the other 76,000,000 people in the United States. He admitted having heard a North Carolina broker, or a New York broker, rather, who hailed from North Carolina, kicking the other day because the markets had been so dull that he had only made $200.

"It is the ambition of the New Yorker," he declared, "to get rich and then go live somewhere else. He lives so fast here and works so hard, he wants to rest and to get back to first principles."

Of course, the ideal place for resting, or anything else, according to the speaker, was Tennessee.

United States Senator Frazier responded to "Tennessee's Part in the Industrial Development of the South." He won applause and laughter by congratulating the members of the Tennessee Society on the success they were bringing to New York, and then paid tribute to the South for the chivalry of its people, their openhanded hospitality, their devotion to constitutional liberty, and the part they have played in the history of the Nation.

In paying this tribute he proclaimed that there could be no charge of provincialism resultant. The hand that drafted the Declaration of Independence and the brain that conceived it were of the South. The man who led in the fight for independence was Southern. In the second great war with England it was a man from Tennessee who turned the British back. Another Tennessean, Polk, was President when the war with Mexico was fought.

"I am one of those," he said, "who is glad that the Mason and Dixon line has been wiped off the map, and that from wheresoever we come we can stand together on the broad platform of American citizenship, but I always recall with pride the achievements of the sons of the South and of the sons of Tennessee. We are no alien race or people. Our prosperity is the prosperity of the whole country, our hopes its hopes, and our destiny its destiny. We are ready, as our forefathers were, to do whatever is necessary to uphold the flag of our reunited land."

In conclusion Senator Frazier gave statistics as to the South's industrial strides—and he did not forget to particularize as to Tennessee. Because of the industrial importance of the South, he argued, and because of the patriotism of its people, it was entitled to take its place in the affairs of the Nation and to nominate a President, without losing a single vote because the nominee came from the South.

"In the war with Spain," he said, "we gave a Schley for a Dewey, a "Fighting Joe" Wheeler for a Roosevelt, and the strains of "Dixie" merged with those of "Yankee Doodle."

"There is no new South. It is the same old South. We are all true Americans. We have never apologized for our part in the civil war, and no brave man will demand that we do so. The South now pays 95 per cent. of the taxes for the schooling of the negro, that he may be able to take care of himself. The race problem is a problem to be solved by the Southern white men and the Southern negro. It will be solved, just as we are solving all other problems that confront us." [Great applause.]

As the Senator took his seat the band played "He's a jolly good fellow," and everybody joined in singing the chorus.

Edgar Bright Wilson told his hearers of their "present duty," warning them that they must not rely for greatness upon the deeds of the illustrious Tennesseeans of the past.

Mr. Wilson was at one time Speaker of the House of Representatives of Tennessee. He touched upon the present hysteria of the people, and said that it reminded him that "eternal vigilance was the price of liberty." The present agitation, he declared, was but the hiss of a snake which gave its warning before it struck.

Mr. Wilson, who is now counsel for the New York City Railway Company, said that New York was a city of graft and greed, and if it were not for the element from other States that New Yorkers would be compelled to eat themselves.

"When I came to New York," concluded the speaker, "I tried to observe the Tennesseean ethics of my profession, but I soon found that if I did I would lose my job. I never dreamed that the seed of corruption was sown so deeply as it seems to be here, and I would advise every person coming from another State to come with nothing, and take away all he can."

Martin W. Littleton spoke to the toast, "The Fiddler of the Tennessee Mountains." "The Tennessee fiddler, he said, "lived in a cabin of hand-made logs, covered with white oak boards, floored with rough timber, chinked with a home-made mixture of straw and clay in the hollow of a broken range of mountains.

"He is the Mozart of the Mountains, the Paderewski of the Pines, the Kubelik of the Cabin, and because I love the memories of his upright life and the music of his unstrained minstrelsy I pay him a tribute and drink the toast."

Champe S. Andrews spoke on "Opportunity," being frequently interrupted by applause. Between every speech and throughout the dinner there was enthusiasm and patriotism to spare. When the National airs were played the diners rose, as did the women in the boxes, and remained standing until the last strain had died away.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF UP.

Lodge Will Ask That His Own Committee Be Discharged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3. — Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Committee on the Philippines, was forced to-day to make the announcement on the floor of the Senate that he would make an effort to get the Philippine Tariff bill out of the pigeonhole to which it was consigned a month ago by his own committee.

Senator Stone, who is going to Missouri for several weeks, gave notice that he desired to make a speech on the Rate bill to-morrow, and while he was on his feet he asked if he could have the privilege of introducing a resolution under which it would be proper for him to make another speech Thursday on the Philippine Tariff bill.

Senator Lodge promptly declared that it was his intention to move at the proper time to discharge the Philippine Committee from further consideration of the bill and so get the sense of the Senate on the question whether the bill should be considered. This, he said, was the only course open to him.

Thus the sight was presented of the Chairman of one of the important committees of the Senate openly announcing that he should move to discharge his own committee from further consideration of a measure.

UNOFFICIAL STERILIZING.

A Statement as to the Betting Agreement of Dr. Slicer and His Friends.

This statement, declaring that the State Conference of Religion, as a body, is not actively opposing the Cassidy-Lansing bill, whatever its individual members, led by the Rev. Dr. Slicer, are doing, was issued yesterday:

> In behalf of the New York State Conference of Religion I request public correction of a gross misstatement. It has been industriously and widely reported through the press that this conference has entered into an "agreement" with the New York Jockey Club, in consequence of which it has not only "withdrawn support" from the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-gambling bill at Albany, but has also "come out in opposition to it." This is a totally false report.
>
> The Conference Committee on Moral Reform has never taken any action whatever, either directly or indirectly, against that bill. Moreover, in its private discussions it has never pronounced any judgment either for or against the bill. The only conclusion it has ever reached in these discussions is to remain passive and silent. This conclusion the committee has understood as granting its individual members entire liberty to act in their individual capacity as they might see fit.

ARRESTED AFTER 7 YEARS.

George L. Jordan, alias Mark Denny, was arrested last night at 210 West Eighty-eighth Street, on the charge of forging a note for $20,000 nearly seven years ago. It is alleged that he signed the name of H. P. Syse to a note which was discounted by H. C. Bennett & Co., brokers, at 18 Wall Street.

Jordan said he was 60 years old, and a cattle drover. He declared that he had no home, except the boarding house in West Eighty-eighth Street. The police could give little information about the case, because no police official could be found who remembered the details. Jordan was arrested by Detective Berry of the District Attorney's office. Col. Asa Bird Gardiner was District Attorney when the indictment was found.

CAT GAVE FIRE ALARM.

Simpkin Saved All Their Lives, the Wilcoxes Believe.

The family of Frank W. Wilcox of 12 Mitchell Place, East Orange, declare unanimously that their pet Maltese cat Simpkin has saved them from death by fire. The blaze started in the kitchen of the Wilcox residence about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Simpkin had been locked in the kitchen. His admirers figure out that he watched the progress of the flames until they burned a hole through the back door, and then darted out.

At all events, Mr. Wilcox, in his room on the second floor, was awakened by the attack Simpkin made with tooth, nail, and voice on the outside of the closed window shutter. As he threw open the shutters there was a crash of glass in the window below his, and a burst of smoke followed by flames beat up in his face. Mr. Wilcox grabbed his little daughter, and with his wife ran out on the street.

The firemen made short work of the fire, which did about $500 damage. When a fireman started to carry Simpkin to safety, the animal flew at him and refused to leave the building until its little mistress came back and carried him off.

NATIONAL QUARANTINE VOTED BY THE HOUSE

OPPOSITION FROM THE SOUTH

Federal Control of All Health Stations Called Centralization Inimical to Self-Government by the States.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—By a vote of 202 to 26 the House to-day passed the National Quarantine bill.

The bill places the control of all quarantine stations, grounds, and anchorages under the Secretary of the Treasury, and directs that as soon as practicable after the approval of the act he shall select and designate such suitable places for them and establish the same at such points on or near the seacoast of the United States on the Mexican border as in his judgment are best suited for the same, in order to prevent the introduction of yellow fever into the United States.

The bill further gives the Secretary of the Treasury the right to establish a quarantine station at the Dry Tortugas Islands, and at such other points at or near the seacoast (not to exceed four in the aggregate) as he deems necessary.

The bill also provides that every common carrier engaged in inter-State commerce shall receive and carry through any State or Territory passengers, freight, and baggage which may have been discharged and properly certified in accordance with the regulations of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, and every person interfering with or obstructing such carrier or any passenger or any instrumentality of commerce in any such carriage or journey shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding $300, or be imprisoned for a period not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

It is provided that this section shall not be construed as giving authority to any person to debark or unload freight in any locality contrary to the lawful regulations.

Divided delegations in the Southern States opposed the resolution in a debate that lasted all day.

Mr. Henry said he would resist with all his might the aim of Congress to take away from the people of Texas the right to make their own quarantine regulations, the right, he said, given to the States by the Constitution.

"I am greatly interested in this bill," said Mr. Williams, (Miss.) "and as its author I want to say that nobody, not an idiot, ever thought that the State had any authority outside of its boundaries. This bill is a public necessity."

Mr. De Armond (Mo.) argued that the bill had been deftly planned in the interest of the great railroads and would in no wise prevent the spread of yellow fever.

"If this bill shall become a law, and the Supreme Court, as is predicted by the advocates, shall support it," said Mr. Bartlett, (Ga.,) "then will all power be centralized in the General Government, and the State Governments will be Governments in name only."

General debate having terminated, Mr. Underwood (Ala.) offered an amendment fixing quarantine stations on the border of the United States and a foreign country, and it was adopted. Finally the bill itself was passed on a roll call.

TARIFF REVISION TALK.

Plan to Have House Committee Ascertain Public Opinion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Not satisfied to have the Massachusetts delegation in the House carry off the only honors for efforts to obtain tariff revision, some of the members of the Wisconsin delegation have taken a hand. Representative Davidson prepared a resolution to-day, with the idea of submitting it to the caucus which is to meet to-morrow night to select members of the Congressional committee. He wants to authorize the Ways and Means Committee to sit during the Summer recess and give hearings for the purpose of ascertaining the state of the public mind on the subject of a general "readjustment of the present rates of duty."

The Massachusetts delegation held another meeting to-day and decided not to press their efforts to have a tariff caucus called just now, but to continue their canvass of the Republicans to find out if they can obtain the necessary fifty signatures to a demand for a caucus. If they fail, they will, as a last resort, make an appeal to the President for help, and some of them seem to believe that he will do something for them.

ASK KNOX TO INTERPRET.

Senators Would Know Significance of Supreme Court's Decision.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Conservative Republican Senators who have contended that the House Railroad Rate bill would be unconstitutional if passed without an amendment giving to common carriers their "day in court" have accepted yesterday's decision of the Supreme Court in the Michigan railroad tax cases as positive affirmation of their position.

Several of these Senators met to-day in the committee room of Senator Aldrich, and after a conference Senator Knox was requested to give his attention to an examination of the decision, with a view to informing them just what bearing it will have on the pending rate bill.

Senator Knox promised to give the decision his closest attention. From a hasty examination he declared that it seemed to be in accord with the opinion he has held since the House bill was reported by the Senate Committee without amendment.

DOWIE SOUGHT A DIVORCE.

Said He Had Had a Vision—Mrs. Dowie Deprived of Her Property.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 3.—It was learned in Zion City to-day that John Alexander Dowie caused papers applying for divorce to be drawn up before he left for Jamaica. The grounds on which he proposed to sue could not be learned, and when the news of his intention became known it caused amazement.

Dowie, it is said, asserted that he had had a vision telling him "to put his wife away because she had disobeyed him in many things." The vision was so clear, he is said to have told his attendant, that he did not hesitate to act upon it immediately. The papers were under preparation when he was attacked by paralysis.

It is further asserted that Mrs. Dowie has been either tricked or threatened into signing away her right in Ben Macdhui, the Dowie Summer home in Michigan. It is stated that two of the men who, under Overseer Voliva's direction, set about the re-establishment of Zion's credit, employed Dowie's divorce mania as a club to force Mrs. Dowie to transfer her right in Ben Macdhui. A man in the confidence of the triumvirate said to-day:

"Under instructions from Dowie, they sought to have Mrs. Dowie sign over a deed of the Ben Macdhui property, which was held in her name. When she refused to do so they threatened to join with Dowie in giving every assistance to him in procuring a divorce.

"Mrs. Dowie signed a paper transferring the control, but she believed that she was still the sole owner of the property. A week ago, however, she met a rude awakening when she was told by the Zion officials that her welfare would be looked after. She answered that she did not need any assistance, that the Ben Macdhui property was ample to support her for the rest of her life. She was then told that she had already signed away her rights, and that the property was in the hands of the Zion management."

Dowie, boiling with indignation, is about to start from Mexico for the greatest fight of his life. He "fired" Voliva by wire to-day and conferred his power of attorney on F. H. Wilhite, who is said to be his only friend in Zion City.

Voliva, Barnes, and other overseers conferred on Dowie's message, and they have taken the last legal steps toward barring Dowie from all power in Zion.

MUSKEGON, Mich., April 3.—A deed transferring John Alexander Dowie's $200,000 Summer home on White Lake, near here, to Deacon Alexander Granger, was recorded here to-day.

The deed bears power of attorney from Dowie and his wife to the new ruler of Zion City, W. G. Voliva.

STOLE IN SLEEP, HE SAID.

Jersey City Boy's Explanation of How He Got Trinkets.

Edwin Moyle, 17 years old, of 6 Magnolia Avenue, Jersey City, was arraigned before Police Justice Manning yesterday charged with a series of petty thefts that have extended over a year. When Detective Gallagher arrested Moyle the victims of the thefts told him he had made a mistake.

But Moyle did not deny the thefts. He said he probably committed them, but he knew nothing about it. He would wake up in the morning, he said, and when he dressed himself he found rings and breastpins and other small articles of jewelry in his pockets. How he got them, he told Police Captain Kelly, he did not know. He supposed he must have taken them in his sleep. Frightened by finding the trinkets in his possession, he threw them down sewers to get rid of them, he said.

One night, he declared, he awoke to find himself in a strange room. Then he heard a scream and jumped out of a window. When taken before Justice Manning he refused to answer any questions, but the charge of larceny was withdrawn and he was held, in order that his mental condition might be inquired into by County Physician Converse.

McInnis "Lurked" Near Gould House—Has Stomach Trouble, Father Says.

William McInnis of 231 East Seventy-third Street was arraigned in Yorkville Court yesterday, charged with lurking at night about the residence of George J. Gould, at 857 Fifth Avenue, and other residences in that neighborhood. Patrolman Collins of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station was called by John J. O'Brien, a private watchman employed by the dwellers in the residences at this point. O'Brien said he had seen McInnis in front of the Gould house many times in the past month, and had caught him peering into the basement windows. He was never able to explain what he was doing, O'Brien said.

Once, according to the watchman, McInnis asked him how many houses he watched over. The charge was that McInnis was a "suspicious person."

"I don't see that he has committed any overt act," said Magistrate Pool.

"He wouldn't explain why he was lurking there," said Collins.

"He doesn't have to explain," said the Magistrate. "If he commits any offense, lock him up, but I don't see that he has. He is discharged."

McInnis's father appeared in court and said that his son had been acting queerly lately because of stomach trouble, but there was "no harm in him."

A DEAD BODY, REAL ESTATE.

Novel Decision of Massachusetts Court in a Trespass Suit.

BOSTON, April 3.—A body after it is buried becomes a part of the real estate, and a relative of the deceased in order to maintain a suit for damages for disturbing it must have some possessory title to the land, according to a decision by the full bench of the Supreme Court of this State to-day.

The decision was in the case of Edward T. Feeley and others against Supt. William Andrews of the Mount Auburn Catholic Cemetery in Watertown. The plaintiffs sued both for trespass to the grave as real estate, and for negligently performing the service of opening the grave for a burial. They lose their action, not having shown that they had an easement or a right to possession of the land forming the grave.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 3.—Playing in front of her father's house this morning, fourteen-year-old Christina Bernard of Hibernia found a detonator used to set off blasts in the Hibernia mines. The explosion blew off her thumb and three fingers of her left hand, and pieces of metal and stone lacerated her face and body.

WOODRUFF MEETS DADY.

Brooklyn Republicans, who have been waiting with bated breath for the sanguinary battle between "Col." Michael J. Dady and ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn Republican General Committee, assembled in the hall of the Temple Bar Building yesterday afternoon.

Just before 4 o'clock, the time set for the meeting, Mr. Woodruff bustled up with a beatific smile. He entered the meeting room and shook hands with all of the members of the Executive Committee who were present, and they in turn, apparently overcome with the honor, surrounded him in deferential attitudes.

Soon thereafter Col. Dady appeared. His brusque "Hello, boys," assured the waiting throng that "something would be doing" in a few minutes. He wore a grim, determined look, and in the back of his capacious overcoat, just where his pistol pocket should be, there was a suspicious bulge.

"Hello, Tim!" he said, holding out his hand.

"Hello, Mike!" responded Mr. Woodruff, with a smile, as he grasped his hand. "How are you?"

Then the doors were closed.

Later when asked why there had been no row Col. Dady said:

"They made one concession that disarmed me. The new meeting room is decorated in water colors, with the green above the red."

After some discussion it was decided to leave Mr. Woodruff undisturbed in his work with the Senate Committee on Reapportionment.

APACHES DISSATISFIED.

Threaten to Leave Fort Sill If President Refuses Their Pardon.

Special to The New York Times

LAWTON, Oklahoma, April 3.—The band of Apache Indians who are prisoners of war on Fort Sill military reservation regard with disfavor the action of the Secretary of War in granting Chief Geronimo permission to join a wild West show. They have held several councils in the last two days.

As a result of these councils the band has agreed that application will be made to President Roosevelt for the pardon of the tribe. If he refuses it, steps will be taken, according to the agreement, to abandon the reservation and return to Arizona.

MRS. MACKAY TO AID CHURCH.

Will Give a New Building to Trinity at Roslyn.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 3.—Trinity Church of Roslyn is to have a new building to cost $40,000, to be donated by Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay. She recently gave a parish house to cost $10,000 as a memorial to her parents.

The whole church property has been surveyed, and the plan is said to be to erect a large church on the site of the present edifice, which is considered too small to accommodate the Summer congregations, which include the Morgans, Whitneys, Beekmans, Mortimers, Thompsons, and many of the other Wheatley Hills residents.

It is Mrs. Mackay's plan to induce some of them to provide an endowment fund of $25,000 for the church.

To Settle Kissam Estate.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 3.—County Judge Jackson to-day granted a decree to W. A. Kissam, Jr., as executor of the estate of his father, W. A. Kissam, permitting him to settle the estate of his father. The amount of the estate is $271,270, and under the decree it will be divided between the widow, Edwina Kissam, a daughter, and their son. Mr. Kissam died in November, 1904, at his home in Port Washington.

Judge Kirkpatrick's Daughter to Wed.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Isabelle H. Kirkpatrick, second daughter of the late Judge Andrew Kirkpatrick of Newark, to Albert Hunt Marckwald of Brooklyn. The wedding will take place next Fall.

FREEPORT CLUB IN COURT.

Lawyer Horace Secor Enjoins It from Making Trouble for Him.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 3.—Horace Secor, Jr., a New York lawyer, whose city home is at the New York Athletic Club, and who has offices in Nassau Street, filed an action to-day against James Dean, President of the Freeport Club and the other officers and Directors of the club, alleging that his rights as a member have been infringed.

The action will come up in Brooklyn next Monday, when Justice Maddox will be asked to issue an order temporarily restraining the club from taking any action relative to Mr. Secor. The proceeding brings to light trouble which has been agitating the club since last Fall.

The club is composed mostly of Manhattan and Brooklyn business men living at Freeport, together with a few selected residents of Freeport. It has about 200 members, and is the social centre of the village. One of the resident members has been Mr. Secor. From his room some clothing was stolen last Fall. He alleged that the theft was committed by an employe of the club.

Mr. Secor contended that the club should make good his loss, and that it must be responsible for its servants. The club refused to take that view, and Mr. Secor sued and obtained judgment for about $200. He asserts that this aroused animosity against him, which culminated one night in the billiard room.

President Dean of the club, who is a former Commander of U. S. Grant Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of New York, entered on this evening, says Mr. Secor, and he having his feet propped up on a table, President Dean brushed them off. Mr. Secor thereupon expressed his feelings pretty freely.

Because of this charges have been preferred against him, and on this account also, he says, his room rent has been doubled. He declares that the officers of the club are conspiring to drive him out, and that they have not been acting in good faith toward him.

SECRETARY LOEB HURT.

Thrown from a Horse Presented to Him by Capt. Bullock.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—William Loeb, Jr., Secretary to the President, was thrown from his horse last evening while riding, and so badly shaken up that he will be unable to be at the White House to-day. No bones were broken, and it is expected he will be at his desk again in a day or two.

He was riding a cayeuse presented to him by Capt. Seth Bullock. The accident happened by reason of the horse shying at an object at the roadside.

Wedding Journey Was His Last.

John Thomas Hoag, 36 years old, died yesterday at his home on Mount Pleasant Avenue, West Orange, after a short illness. His death was caused by typhoid fever contracted last month while on his wedding trip. Mr. Hoag married in Washington, Feb. 22, Miss Elizabeth Ramsburg of that city. He was a broker, and was a member of the Lambs' Club and the Essex County Country Club.

HOTELS GETTING WATER IN ABUNDANCE FREE

Frank Moss Tells Cooper Union Audience About the Leaks.

CATSKILL PLAN IS OPPOSED

The People's Institute held a large meeting in Cooper Union last night to consider the question of the city's water supply. The meeting was virtually a protest against the plan to bring water from the Catskills. The so-called Burr and Smith laws, which prohibit the city from tapping Suffolk and Dutchess Counties to add to its water supply, were also considered. Bills repealing them will come up in the Legislature to-day. A vote was taken on the question by the audience, which unanimously favored a repeal.

The three speakers represented the City Vigilance League.

Thomas A. Fulton was the first. His address was illustrated with stereopticon views of the Long Island and Croton watersheds and systems. He detailed the history of the city's water supply from the time of the Collect Pond, where the Tombs now stands, to the present time. Mr. Fulton declared that Long Island in its gravel bed had an unlimited supply of the purest water in the world, which is easily accessible.

"The late Col. Waring declared," said the speaker, "that the perennial Brooklyn water famine scare was simply a perennial fake to frighten the people into enormous expenditures."

He declared that the proposed $161,000,000 expenditure for an extension of the Croton supply was decided upon simply because of the Dutchess County exclusion act. Mr. Fulton advocated city contral of Ten-Mile River, a branch of the Hoosatonic, by the simple act of brushing away certain existing inter-State laws.

Robert A. Kelly, who was Water Register under the Low administration, told at length of the graft he had discovered in the department; of disconnected water meters and illegal water connections, and how he had compelled merchants and corporations to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars water taxes for water which he said they had been stealing for years. He said the stealing had been going on uninterruptedly from 1843 to 1902, or until he took office. Mr. Kelly declared he found that out of the 332,000,000 gallons supplied every day to the city at least 200,000,000 were unaccounted for. He declared that the Water Department's payroll is now $400,000, but that not a spadeful of dirt is being turned toward increasing the water supply.

Frank Moss was the last speaker. He devoted most of his address to the consideration of leaks. The estimate of $161,000,000 for the Catskill plan he declared to be mere guesswork, as no point had been selected at which to carry the water across the Hudson.

Speaking of leaks, Mr. Moss said that the Central Park reservoirs leaked extensively. He exhibited a big bottle of water to his audience to prove it. He said the water came from beneath a livery stable up town. The water was shut out by building a concrete wall. He said that many cellars in upper Fifth Avenue had to be similarly protected.

Mr. Moss has no patience with the well-known theory of the presence of old water courses in Manhattan.

"They can no longer exist," he declared, "because rain can no longer sink into the ground in Manhattan; it runs over the edges."

Mr. Moss has found a fine bunch of leaks in Forty-second Street. The cellar of the new Hotel Belmont has a beautiful 20,000-gallon-a-day leak. They are storing the water in tanks, he says, and will thus get it free. The Hotel Knickerbocker, at Broadway and Forty-second Street, is similarly blessed, the speaker said, while the new public library in Bryant Park is to have (or already has) almost as valuable a leak as the two hotels.

The speaker said that when the old reservoir was torn down the connections were not properly patched up after being cut off.

PORTRAITS BY MELCHERS.

Robust and Masterly Work of an American Dweller in Holland.

A native of Detroit who has won many honors in France and Germany, as well as here, is showing some portraits at the new Oehme Galleries, 320 Fifth Avenue, corner of Thirty-second Street. Mr. Garl Melchers proves himself a sound and capable portraitist, though he is better known by his figures of Dutch boys and girls, strong in color, and equally strong in characterization.

A bust portrait of "Ik Marvel," the author of "Reveries of a Bachelor," recalls the man who established a very picturesque home near East Rock, New Haven, at a time when such country places were rare in the United States. Donald G. Mitchell will always be remembered as a charming essayist. This strong and interesting portrait would be well placed in the Authors Club. A delightfully frank and pleasing seated three-quarters length of W. A. A. Sprague of Chicago is another fine canvas; alive, urbane, painted without trick or bravura.

Mrs. Frederick M. Alger in black and white lace, with a touch of colored ribbon here and there and some pink flowers on the shoulder, has the rounded, certain craftsmanship which is so rare among modern painters, allying the work to that of the old Dutch masters. It reminds one that Mr. Melchers lives most of the year in Holland.

"Brabant Girl," lent by Mr. Rush C. Hawkins, is an example of a good deal of this painter's work. She stands with her head outlined against a rude painting on the wall, epitomizing the Netherlands—windmills, dikes, and broad-bottomed canal boats—and she wears a large white cap with a wreath of artificial flowers.

Over her shoulders hangs a brown cape, with inwoven flowers of some chintzy material, heavily lined, so that it hangs in broad folds. On her breast is a gold crucifix suspended from a gold chain. She belongs to the peasant class and appears in her Sunday garb, strong in colors, but not indicative of wealth. A shrewd, rather sweet, and very straightforward expression.

There is a seated profile portrait of Gen. Russell A. Alger and a full-length of a real boy, a son of Mr. Stedman Buttrick, standing beside his hobby horse. In the full-length standing portrait of Mr. Edward Chandler Walker, kindly and shrewd of face, we have the likeness of a Canadian notable in business and finance. One should not overlook the quickly brushed portrait of little Miss Creel, in pink jacket and white dress, her red-gold hair and blue eyes making a vivid but delightful color combination with her dress.

These pictures are very much out of the common and should be seen. Undoubtedly Mr. Melchers is one of the strongest portraitists we have, a painter who loves to paint, and does his work with a robust sincerity that marks the kind of work that will live.

PAINTINGS BY KOOPMAN.

The Fishel-Adler-Schwartz Galleries, 313 Fifth Avenue, are showing two dozen oil paintings by Augustus Koopman, a graduate of the schools of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, who has studied for a number of years in Europe. He has shown pictures at the Salon and obtained medals for a seaside picture, "Hoisting Sail," at the Paris Exposition of 1900 and the Buffalo Pan-American.

One looks at these paintings in a kind of helpless amazement on perceiving that any jury has accepted them and, furthermore, that any one should give one of them a medal. With scarce an exception they do not go beyond the first raw suggestion for a picture. They seem to have been painted in a desperate hurry, to clinch an idea, and then left. Muddy color, paint put on with a palette knife, but without real distinction or cleverness of idea or execution, no atmosphere, and a plentiful lack of understanding of values produce the impression of some one who has suddenly determined to be a painter without training or a natural bent toward the arts.

"The Two Forces" took the W. A. Clark prize at Paris. One shudders to think what its competitors must have been if this canvas, flat in idea and repulsive in coloring, was the best in the exhibition. A clumsy boor at the bow of a fishing boat pushes against a dock with an oar.

"The Last Kiss" is an attempt at sentiment, and has actually appeared in the Paris Salon and at an exhibition in the Pennsylvania Academy. An old sailor kisses his child in the arms of the mother, and a formidable number of seaside characters are grouped beside them. The color is something excruciating and the brush work brutal. Mr. Koopman indeed has the patent for some of the most repulsive grins on human faces ever exhibited—if that be a distinction. "Blowing Smoke in Rings" has a group of children with faces distorted in this singular manner. Mr. Koopman's figures are apt to be very defective in drawing and to stick to the background, so that one does not feel any air behind them.

This curious inability to feel perspective is also seen in his landscapes, such as "The Lane in Autumn," "The Golden Day, Picardy," "Returning from Pasture," &c. Coarse, crude brushwork and lack of atmosphere are not relieved by any feeling of power. All is hurried, brutal handling. If this be the result of studying in France nowadays, the sooner American students go elsewhere the better. If anything were gained by such ricketty and coarsely daubed figures of men and horses as one finds in "The Village Circus," in respect of sparkle, dash, or an impression of robust color, the picture might pass; but what one gets is a feeling that the young painter has mistaken clumsiness for vigor and slapdash for cleverness. Yet the catalogue says that the Salon and exhibitions in Pittsburg and Philadelphia have shown this childish performance.

One picture alone has redeeming features. "Old Fishwife" has at least an expression on the face which is not inane or repulsive. A sly smile, not without humor, illuminates the weather-beaten visage. The others are pictures which should never have left the studio, for they are merely large pochades, from which at his leisure a trained artist might make pictures worthy of being shown to the public.

It is a mistake for a young painter to show such noisy and pretentious canvases, executed apparently with the idea that he is doing a very modern trick. A glance at the charm and delicate reserve of an extreme modern like Le Sidaner ought to show him that he is on the wrong track. It would be useless to refer him to the great masters of the past, whom many young painters scoff at because they do not understand their period or their methods.

Their distinguished quiet, their splendid composition, their noble craftsmanship and dignity will only reach them later, if at all. But the living men nature and widened the capacity of the painter, the living and the recent—Manet, Whistler, Monet—he seems quite blind to what they have taught. Fortunately, megalomania is often a passing phase of youth. Mr. Koopman should not exhibit again until he has learned his trade.

THE SOCIETY OF CRAFTSMEN.

Will Take Over Present Quarters of the National Arts Club Next Winter.

Leading workmen and workwomen in the arts and crafts who met recently at the National Arts Club have been perfecting the suggestion made then for the organization of a National Society of Craftsmen. This society, as the name implies, will embrace the entire United States.

The initiative thus taken by the National Arts Club has already borne fruit. A second meeting, for organization, was held last week, and during the next ten days the Committee on Plan and Scope will put the matter in definite form.

The important question of a place for the new National Society of Craftsmen is as good as settled; it will occupy the present quarters of the Arts Club, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street, when that club takes possession of its larger clubhouse in the Tilden mansion in Gramercy Park. This is rapidly approaching completion, and the Studio Annex, which was retarded for six weeks by the strike of the housesmiths, is rising swiftly on East Nineteenth Street.

The organization of the Society Craftsmen at its present stage includes as Chairman Miss Amy Mali Hicks, and Secretary Mr. J. J. Murphy. Art jewelry is represented by Mr. Walter Lawrence, pottery by Mr. Charles Volkmar, ivory carving by Mr. Fred. W. Kaldenberg, printing by Mr. Theodore de Vinne, bookbinding by Miss Foote and Miss Emily Preston, textiles by Mrs. Douglas Volk, ceramics by Mrs. Leonard, metal work by Miss Charlotte Busck. Others interested in the formation of the society are Mrs. A. M. Froelich, Miss Harriet Keith Fobes, and Mr. Arthur Dow of the Teachers College, Columbia University.

MISS KOBBE'S PORTRAITS.

The galleries of J. H. Strauss, on Fifth Avenue, corner of Thirtieth Street, are showing until April 8 a number of portraits in pencil, charcoal, and colored crayons by Miss Marie O. Kobbé, a niece of Major General William R. Kobbé, United States Army, and daughter of Mr. Philip Ferdinand Kobbé of New York.

Miss Kobbé is a portraitist of children and charming young women, but it is not they so much as mere men who bring out her best qualities. Here is a pencil drawing of her uncle, the General; yonder a colored crayon of Mr. George Kobbé, both excellent likenesses. Other good pencil drawings are those of Mr. Alexander V. Sedgwick, Mr. Henry B. Montgomery, and Mr. Paul Revere Reynolds. Not that she is unsympathetic with regard to children, but that the formed features and settled characteristics of adults offer more chance for a display of the individuality of the sitter.

Her children's likenesses are apt to be highly wrought in colored crayons almost to miniature finish, as to the faces, and the rest of the figure more summarily dealt with. Such are the likenesses of Master Robert J. Hare Powell, Jr., of Natalie and Donald, children of Mrs. Walter Wood; of Fifi, daughter of Mrs. T. Tileston Wells; of Master William Ellery Sedgwick and Master William Goddard Iselin, of little Miss Beatrice, daughter of William Fellows Morgan; Elsa, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Howard, and "Marion," a likeness of a child owned by Moses Taylor, Esq.

Among the drawings of adults are portraits of Mrs. Edward Roscoe Mathews, Ernest Warren, Franklyn Brown, Dr. Anthony F. Riggs, and Schuyler L. Parsons. Miss Kobbé catches a likeness frankly and well, and does not elaborate the unessential so as to draw the attention from the face.

AUTOISTS WILL PUNISH RECKLESS MOTOR USERS

State Association Urges Clubs to Form Complaint Bureaus.

HARSH PENALTIES PROVIDED

Will Force Members to be More Observant of Rights of Others—Charles T. Terry's Plan.

The recent action of the New York State Automobile Association in indorsing the plan proposed a short time ago by Charles T. Terry of this city, who advised the establishing of a bureau for complaints in each club, has aroused widespread interest, and its results are likely to have a far-reaching effect toward suppressing reckless driving, and thereby reducing the number of accidents. Mr. Terry drew up at the request of the State Association a general plan of how such a bureau might be conducted. This plan has just been embodied in a circular letter and sent to the seventeen clubs in the State Association by Secretary Frederick H. Elliott of Syracuse.

Provided this system is adopted and put in charge of club members who have the time to devote to its work, and who will be assured of sufficient funds, it means that every automobilist, whether a member of a club or not, who causes an accident, if arrested for reckless driving or other infringement of automobile laws and ethics, will be rigidly investigated by the committee, and if found guilty he will be severely disciplined by his club, in addition to the punishment he may receive in the courts.

The plan, as it has been referred to the clubs of New York State for consideration, contains several drastic provisions, and the mere adoption of it will undoubtedly act as a deterrent to members who have become habituated to excessive driving. It is:

First—To have the club adopt as a part of its by-laws or constitution a provision for a complaint or grievance committee or bureau, to consist of from five to ten members. This committee should perform the duty of considering any complaints of injury by automobilists, whether members of the club or not, and any complaint of reckless driving or other violations of the law and hearing such proofs as any complainant has to offer. If the offense were committed by a member of the club he should be examined by the committee, the charge read to him, and his statement taken. If he pleads guilty, or, if, upon investigation, the committee finds him guilty, he should be punished by the club by the imposition of a fine, graded, say, from $5 to $20. If the offense were a flagrant and willful or grossly negligent, or if it were a second offense, he should, in addition to the fine, be suspended for a proper period, proportionate to the offense; for inexcusable offenses or third offenses he should be expelled.

Second—In the case of complaint against those not members of the club, the statement of the complainant should be heard by the committee, together with the statements of any witnesses who may corroborate such complaint. If it appears to the committee that a good case is made out the committee should invite the offender to reply to the charges. If he should fail to reply, or, if upon making his reply the committee is not satisfied that he has met the charges, the committee or some member of the committee should obtain a warrant and attend to the arrest and prosecution of the offender, perhaps through the attorney for the club.

Third—In case the complainant is able to stand the expense the committee should have him deposit upon the entering of the complaint a sum reasonably sufficient to cover the expenses, reimbursing him the balance, if any, after the case shall have been finished.

Fourth—If the complainant in the case of complaints against non-club members is not able to stand the expense in whole or in part, the balance of the expense within reasonable bounds should be paid by the club.

The seventeen clubs in the State association have a total membership of 2,365. The Automobile Club of America is the largest, with 850. Buffalo is a close second, with 577, and the Long Island Automobile Club comes third, with over 200.

COUNT'S BALLOON LECTURE.

Frenchman Tells How He Controlled Flight Over Mediterranean.

Count Henry de la Vaulx, the celebrated French aeronaut, who has made two ascensions in America since he arrived in New York two weeks ago, gave an illustrated lecture last night in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America to the members of that club and the Aero Club of America. He related some of his experiences in France while ballooning, and showed a large number of pictures, some of the most interesting being a series of views of his experiments in ballooning over the Mediterranean, where he was assisted by the French Government, which detailed a torpedo boat to follow the balloon. Count de la Vaulx used in these experiments a guide rope, an anchor, and a propellor attached to the balloon to guide and steer it, while the propellor also assisted its flight, being drawn through the water from a rope attached to the basket of the balloon.

At no time in these experiments was the balloon very high above the surface. His most memorable trip under these conditions was a journey of over forty-eight hours from Toulon close to the coast of Spain, when by clever manoeuvreing the balloon was brought down upon the deck of the torpedo boat. The remarkable feature of this trip was that at the start Count de la Vaulx began without the aid of his rope and other appliances dragging through the water. After going a certain distance the wind veered, and began carrying him northward toward Marseilles. By throwing out his steering apparatus the direction of the balloon was so well controlled that it went directly eastward until the trip ended near the shore of Spain.

Count de la Vaulx spoke in French, but a portion of his talk was interpreted by Cortlandt Field Bishop. More balloonists and aeronauts were in the audience than have been seen together in this city for a long time. Among those present were Charles Levee, Israel Ludlow, Col. Mesrop Nevton, Secretary of the Persian Legation at Washington; Dr. Julian P. Thomas, Homer W. Hedge, Edgar V. Bronson, Robert Graves, R. M. Owen, Emerson Brooks, Dave Hennen Morris, S. H. Valentine, B. L. Taylor, J. De Mont Thompson, A. B. Gallatin, Charles L. Edey, J. B. Trevor, and Dr. S. S. Wheeler.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

Automobilists on Upper Broadway have viewed with interest recently the relic of early automobile days exhibited in the window of the Covell & Crosby Motor Company, 1,621 Broadway. It is said to be the oldest motor car made in this country. It was designed by Dr. Carlos C. Booth of Youngstown, Ohio, in 1895 and was used by him for two years. Dr. Booth says it was the first motor car in the United States that would go up hill without being pushed. It could climb a 17 per cent. grade on low speed, and on good roads its speed was twenty miles an hour. Before disposing of the car Dr. Booth drove it several thousand miles.

An automobile hill-climbing contest will be held at Wilkesbarre, Penn., on May 10, when the centennial anniversary of the founding of that city will be commemorated. The contest will be held on a hill three miles long in the outskirts of Wilkesbarre. Eight events have been provided for various classes of cars.

A large number of Southern automobilists have entered their cars for the Pablo Beach races near Jacksonville from April 9 to 12. Israel Ludlow, who has been experimenting and flying with aeroplanes, has been invited to give an exhibition of his system of aerial flight.

Plans for the next Winter meet at Ormond Beach are said to be under way by the Florida East Coast Automobile Association. Several changes have been made in the club's officials, and the club has a balance of $3,000 in its treasury.

The American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association has just passed a resolution advocating the holding of dealers' shows in New York and Chicago. This action is virtually an indorsement of the open-air show arranged for May by the New York Trade Association. The Motor Car Association has twenty-four members, and many of them will be represented in the open-air show here at the Empire City track.

Robert Graves expects to have a car entered in the Vanderbilt Cup race. He is watching the prospects of the coming road contest with great interest and believes that a splendid lot of fast cars will be seen.

HILL'S NEW PACIFIC ROAD.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 3.—The report that President James J. Hill of the Great Northern Railroad is building through Canada a third transcontinental line, with which to enlarge his present system of Pacific railroads, was confirmed to-day by Vice President Louis W. Hill.

"The report might be called approximately correct," said Mr. Hill. "It contains more facts than are usually found in stories of that sort." Mr. Hill also said: "Our line includes only 800 or 900 miles that are still to be constructed west of Winnipeg. We could complete the line within three years."

TO CLASSIFY SHIPMENTS.

Railroad Commissioners' Plan for Inter-State Uniformity.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—At the convention of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners to-day, the report of the Committee on Uniform Classification was submitted, and embodied in it was the following resolution:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that Congress enact a law requiring the railroads engaged in inter-State commerce throughout the United States to, within two years after the passage of such act, prepare and adopt a uniform classification of freight articles, and, in case they fail to do so within the time required, that the Inter-State Commerce Commission at once proceed to make such classification, and when so made by such commission, the same shall be the legal classification for inter-State shipments."

MEADOW BROOK RACES.

Attractive Card for Meeting on May 5 5 at Hempstead Farm.

A varied and interesting programme has been arranged for the race meeting of the Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association, to be held at Hempstead Farm, Hempstead, L. I., on Saturday, May 5. The event will be held under the rules of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and entries are to close on Thursday, April 19. Gentlemen riders and jockeys must make their weight not later than one hour before the time appointed for the race in which they are to ride. A bona-fide hunter is a horse that in the opinion of the committee has been kept strictly for hunting purposes and has not been qualified solely in order to compete in hunters' races under N. S. and H. A. rules. The card of races follows:

ANOTHER DECISION DUE IN CHRISTINE LAKE CASE

Fight of Many Years for Place Where Pink Trout Grow.

COOS COUNTY WROUGHT UP

But the Percy Summer Club Says It Owns the New Hampshire Lake, Despite State Law.

The people of Coos County, N. H., are eagerly awaiting the decision of Judge Putnam of the United States Circuit Court in the case of the Percy Summer Club vs. Joseph and Jacob Astle. This decision will be one of the final stages in the twenty-year fight between the five members of the club and a part of the State of New Hampshire for the possession of the lake that has pink trout—Christine Lake—which was away back yonder North Pond, one of the most beautiful stretches of fresh water in New England.

The enactment of a statute in 1890 by the New Hampshire Legislature was an important step in this case. Having been wrought up primarily by the fight over Christine Lake, the Legislature enacted that all fresh-water lakes over ten acres in extent should be public property. The following May the two railroads that pass near the lake gave excursion rates for the crowds that desired to assemble there.

Marching behind the most popular silver cornet band in the State, throngs went to the lake. Speeches were made, everybody went in swimming as much as he pleased, and everybody fished as long as he liked for the pink trout that get their color from some peculiar shell fish they eat in the lake.

It was a great day for Coos County; indeed for other counties that had fresh-water lakes. For the people believed that if plutocrats from New York were allowed to come into the State and take possession of any body of water around which they might buy land, soon there wouldn't be a lake in which the people could now and then cast a fish line, much less go in swimming.

Christine Lake is worth fighting for. In the hollow between two small mountains it sleeps. It is one and a half miles long and about a quarter of a mile wide. There is not a foot of marshy ground about it; it is simply a huge cupful of cold spring water held in the hollow of the mountains. It is 1,400 feet above the sea, and one of the peaks at its head rises 2,200 feet higher. Within sight is another little mountain that the people call Giant's Grave, and Long Mountain and Victor Head and others. The woods around it are wild. Half a mile away is a railway station. The country folk declare that the pink trout taste better than any white-fleshed trout in the world.

No steam craft have ever been allowed on Christine Lake. Only a few cottages are in the woods near by, for there have never been more than ten members of the club.

Very early in the struggle for this little body of water the State Government in New Hampshire came out against the Percy Club. The Attorney General has been under orders to fight the case, with leave to draw on the State Treasury for what money he needs. Philip Carpenter of 111 Broadway now represents the Percy Summer Club, and before him Ossian Ray was its lawyer. Four or five big volumes of argument and testimony have been printed, and the end is not in sight. For it is expected that whichever side loses will take the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the United States Supreme Court.

In 1882 George P. Rowell of New York acquired title to the lands surrounding the lake. Mr. Carpenter maintains that this title can be traced back to grants made by George III. The chief point of his argument before Judge Putnam last year was that the title to the land antedated the State Government of New Hampshire, and that therefore it could not be affected by the New Hampshire statute of 1890 or by any other State statute.

In 1883 George P. Rowell passed the title to the Percy Summer Club, which originally had for members Francis H. Leggett of New York, George P. Rowell, S. H. Kaufman of Washington, D. C.; Charles N. Kent, and Ossian Ray. Mr. Ray and Mr. Kaufman are both dead. Rudolph Kaufman and James D. Platt are members now.

Mr. Carpenter says that the club desires to keep the lake as wild and uninhabited as possible, on which account it forbade the use of steam craft of any kind on Christine Lake and has allowed the building of but a few cottages on its shore.

Trouble began soon after the organization of the Percy Summer Club. It gave notice that Christine Lake belonged to it, and that other than members of the club who fished or bathed in the lake, or who went upon the club's lands were trespassers. The club started a trout hatchery to increase the number of pink trout.

The people of Coos County and of nearby counties had caught the pink trout in the lake by the Giant's Grave, and their fathers and fathers' fathers had caught the same, and they declared that no little body of five plutocrats from away off somewhere should surround the lake and hold it for themselves alone.

In one of the many trials Caleb R. Rich was called as a witness. He lives in Coos County. He was then a middle-aged man. He told that he had fished and swum in the lake as long as he could remember. Asked what was the earliest date he could remember fishing there he answered:

"The first time I went a-fishin' there my father had to lug me up over the snowdrifts."

The Percy Summer Club posted notices about trespassers, and tacked them all around in the woods on the trees. Still the people of Coos County caught the pink trout there, and still the boys swam by the Giant's Grave. The cottagers complained in court time and time again that the boys would not only swim in Christine Lake, but that they would undress in plain sight of the members and guests of the Percy Summer Club.

Throughout the eighties and nineties the question of Christine Lake was a burning one. Candidates in that section of the State had to tell how they stood on Christine Lake before they could be heard on anything else. Legislators were made on the Christine Lake issue. They tell now how Judge Chamberlain of the New Hampshire Supreme Court that had upheld the statute declaring large fresh-water lakes to be public property headed the procession, along with the band, which went to Christine Lake in 1890.

Judge Putnam of the United States Circuit Court had the case submitted to him last Summer. He expected to hand down his decision by September. He hasn't given it yet. But the people of Coos County and the members of the Percy Summer Club are expecting it daily now.

Meanwhile the pink trout in Christine Lake are increasing and the snows are running down to help the two springs in the upper end of the lake keep it full of fresh water that goes down to the Ammonosuc River.

OLIVER TIMS, SERGEANT, HE'D REJOIN THE FORCE

The Cheerful Shakespearean Scholar Tells About It.

AND WHO'D SAY HIM NAY?

Who Thinks the Court Will Down a Man with Such a Mint of Phrases in His Brain?

Now is the Winter of our discontent.

As a matter fact, according to the calendar, it is Spring, but the quotation expresses the sentiment of Oliver Tims, formerly Police Sergeant and always a Shakespearean scholar. For Tims wants to get back on the force, and if the law hath not been dead, and Justice Clinch, now holding Special Term of the Supreme Court here, decides in his favor—why then he'll go back and quote admonitions in blank verse to the offenders at the rail.

He would be a bold man who'd deny that Oliver Tims were not a credit to the force. A stout, yet sinewy, man he is, with a dome of head such as one associates with his namesake Cromwell, and withal a merry twinkle of the eye to light up a face of force. What criminal would not be bettered by the crash of Tims's anger, what erring couple not united by his jovial logic? That's what his friends want to know.

As for Tims, he wants to know why he isn't physically able to run a police station anywhere in New York. What right had Commissioner McAdoo's examining surgeons to force him out? This is the short and the long of it.

"A man I am, cross'd with adversity," said ex-Sergeant Tims quoting Shakespeare immediately after climbing lustily to his flat on the top floor at 365 West Twenty-fourth Street yesterday afternoon. "Yes, I wish I were back on the force, and I hope I shall be soon. You see, I know 'how sweet it is to wear a crown.' The money? Oh, that concerns me not. As Shakespeare tells us, 'seven hundred pounds and possibilities is good gifts,' but it is not for that I ask. It is a matter of pride. My going out on pension was 'flat burglary as ever was committed.' I am able to do the work; I know that, 'and truth is truth to the end of the reckoning.'

"Now, I left the force a year ago with a lot of the other older Sergeants of the city. At first I did not care so much. Then I did,

"For it so falls out
That what we have we prize not to the worth
Whiles we enjoy it, but being lack'd and lost,
Why, then we rack the value; then we find
The virtue that possession would not show us
Whiles 'twas ours.

"I brought suit to get back, basing my claim on the decision in a test case brought by a Brooklyn Sergeant, and now my case is before Justice Clinch, 'an upright Judge, a learned Judge.' I am confident that his decision will favor me. Now, 'true it is that we have seen better days,' but, as the great man wrote in 'The Merchant of Venice':

"Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster?

"And, again, as I might say, 'I have done the State some service and they know't.' I am 'a proper man, as you shall see in a Summer's day,' and when I don my uniform again and take my part in policing the city 'the thief doth fear each bush an officer.'

"And that, friend scribe, is all. You will please me best, if in writing this, you

"Speak of me as I am, nothing extenuate, Nor set down aught in malice."

LENIENCY FOR TURNEY.

Out of Pity for His Family Only the Forgery Charge May Be Pressed.

Joseph A. Turney, defaulting note teller of the National Bank of North America, received Cashier Wire and Vice President Lee of that institution in his cell in the Tombs Prison yesterday and assisted them in straightening out the bank's books.

Messrs. Lee and Wire drove to the prison in the afternoon, their carriage half-filled with the books of the bank. Many of these were old, worn, and moth-eaten, and it was evident that the bank officials feared that Turney's peculations had begun in his early days in the institution and had been hidden and juggled in figures ever since.

"Turney was perfectly willing to help us," said Vice President Lee, after leaving the prisoner's cell. "He did everything he could to help us straighten out matters. I am sure that his defalcation will not run over $34,000. He has concealed nothing from us."

"Is there anything in the stories that Turney had an accomplice in his thefts?" he was asked.

"No truth in them," said Mr. Lee.

Mrs. Turney and her 10-year-old son, who have grieved deeply over Turney's work, called at the prison yesterday morning. It is believed that for the sake of his wife and son Turney will not be prosecuted except on the charge of forgery in the third degree, for which he is now held.

Mrs. Turney and her son, who were living in an expensive apartment house in Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, are said to be without resources. Nearly all of the money earned and stolen by Turney went for his own high living.

RODGERS CHAUFFEUR BAILED.

After spending a night in the New Rochelle Police Station, John Johnson, the driver of the automobile which struck and killed Mrs. Betty Kuchler and her sister, Miss Alvina Stein, at New Rochelle on Sunday afternoon, and then dashed off without looking after the women, was released yesterday on $10,000 bail furnished by his employer, John B. Rodgers, Sr., Subway contractor of this city.

There is so much indignation in New Rochelle over the killing of the two aged women that it is understood the case will go to the Grand Jury at once, although former Judge Crennan, who represents the chauffeur, is pleading for delay.

Johnson is held on the charge of manslaughter. If convicted, he may receive a sentence of twenty years in prison. The case will probably be taken before the Grand Jury on Monday.

Funeral services for both the victims will be held at the German Lutheran Church in New Rochelle this morning.

SILENT LODGER ENDS LIFE.

Hall Said He Would Need His Room Seven Days Only.

When William Hall, a quiet, middle-aged man, engaged a room in a Raines law hotel at Thirty-first Street and Second Avenue a week ago he paid in advance and said he would be only seven days in the hotel. His week was up yesterday, and by committing suicide he ceased to exist.

It is said that he had lost a lawsuit by which he had hoped to win a comfortable living for the rest of his years. Many of the seven days were spent in letter writing. He hanged himself with a trunk strap.

John Mulkern, a lodger in the house, called at the room of the taciturn man to ask him down stairs for a drink and found him hanging dead within the door.

ODELL HERE FOR FIGHT.

May Call a State Committee Meeting on Apportionment Matter.

Chairman Odell of the Republican State Committee has taken the bit in his teeth in the local Republican situation. It became known last night that Mr. Odell is in New York to fight President Herbert Parsons to a finish in the County Committee over the reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts. Friends of Odell even went so far yesterday as to say that Odell might call a special meeting of the State Committee on the reapportionment matter, so confident is he of his position and of the strength he believes he can command.

The State Chairman came down from Newburg yesterday and remained at State headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Hotel much of the day. In the evening he was at the Republican Club, but declined to say anything for publication, although he had been in consultation practically all evening with party organization leaders from both New York and Kings Counties. Odell has his apportionment plan practically all worked out, and the committee named to go over the details, with William Halpin as Chairman, will be ready to report at a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the County Committee to be held to-morrow or Friday.

At this special meeting the real fight between the Odell forces and the Parsons forces will come. Mr. Halpin will bring in the Odell plan in the form of a report from his committee, and William C. Wilson, as Chairman of a committee named by President Parsons, will bring in the Parsons plan. Then the members of the Executive Committee can settle the matter. Last week at the conference called by the Odell men, twenty-two of the thirty-six leaders responded and agreed to stand for the Odell reapportionment of the county in opposition to the Parsons reapportionment, and none of these leaders has since broken away.

In William Halpin's district the organization indorsed Odell last night. Resolutions have been passed by the Liberal Republican Club, of which Josiah T. Newcomb is President, indorsing the Parsons apportionment plan.

ALL VISITORS BARRED.

Jersey City Emergency Hospital Adopts a Rigid Rule.

The Jersey City Board of Health at a meeting which lasted until 12:30 A. M. adopted a resolution yesterday excluding all visitors from the Emergency Hospital. It is on the Hackensack Meadows, and is reserved for contagious disease cases. The original resolution, as offered by Dr. William McLaughlin, provided only that the parents of children should be excluded from the hospital. He said he knew it was hard to deny a mother the consolation of seeing her child when possibly it might be near death, but it is necessary to prevent the spread of disease.

Dr. Frank Gray, President of the board, said that the exclusion of parents would only partly guard against the danger. He offered an amendment providing that no persons should be admitted to the hospital to visit patients. He said there was a natural inclination to make an exception in favor of the parents of dying children, but that the public safety must prevail over merely sentimental considerations.

Dr. McLaughlin accepted the amendment, and the resolution was adopted.

SPARRING ISN'T FIGHTING.

So It Appears to Magistrate Wahle, at Least.

Magistrate Wahle, in the West Side Court, construed Section 458 of the Penal Code, relating to prizefighting, yesterday.

Inspector Walsh arrested on Monday the two referees and four principals in a sparring exhibition held in the Marlborough Athletic Club, in West Forty-fourth Street. After hearing evidence Magistrate Wahle said:

"The section makes a distinction between a prizefight and a sparring exhibition. In a prizefight all who aid or help in the training are liable, but if, as the officer tells, this was a 'sparring exhibition,' I will discharge the referees."

Regarding the four boys arrested for fighting, the Magistrate held that they did not know that admission was being charged, as far as the testimony showed.

Inspector Walsh was told to submit briefs by Friday and that a decision would be rendered Sunday morning. The four fighters were held in $300 bail, which was quickly furnished.

HIT SALVATION ARMY WAGON.

Miss Marian Ropes and Coachman Thrown Out by a Collision.

Miss Marian Ropes of 28 West 136th Street and her coachman, Barney French of 45 West Thirtieth Street, were overturned and injured in a runaway yesterday afternoon in Central Park.

The victoria which French was driving crashed into a Salvation Army wagon. Miss Ropes was spilled with her coachman, and the Salvation Army driver saved himself by a jump. Miss Ropes was not seriously hurt. The coachman was taken to Bellevue Hospital with concussion of the brain.

JOINS SPELLING REFORMERS.

George Wharton has resigned as private secretary to City Supt. Maxwell to become assistant secretary to the Carnegie Spelling Reform Commission. His resignation comes as no surprise, for several months ago he announced his intention of taking some such action. Such a post is not provided for in the charter or the Board of Education's by-laws, so he may have no successor.

Nothing for Goslin Creditor.

Deputy Sheriff O'Neil endeavored yesterday to serve an execution on Cristo G. Cosmides, who is under arrest in connection with one of the Goslin frauds, but was unable to find anything that would satisfy a judgment for $1,577 against him granted in favor of Albert Freeman of Albert Freeman & Co., stock brokers. The Deputy Sheriff went to the Orient Fruit Company, at 267 Greenwich Street, of which Cosmides was formerly the manager, but found that Cosmides was no longer connected with that business.

500 BOXES OF FLOWERS FOR TENEMENT POOR

WORK OF THE FLOWER GUILD

One Woman Feared if Flowers Died She Would Die, Too—Invalid and Cripple Win Prizes.

Five hundred window boxes are in process of manufacture for the benefit of New York's submerged tenth and 500 families are to be made happy this coming Summer with the boxes filled with flowers. The New York City Branch of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild has started its warm weather work and this is one of the most important features of it. The orders are sent in early that they may be completed before the rush season begins and by the last of April or 1st of May the 500 boxes, filled with flowers, will be in place in as many tenement house windows.

The boxes are 31 inches long, made to fit a tenement house window. They have no drainage holes, and are warranted positively not to drip. All are filled with the same kind of plants, hardy ones that will grow with the slightest encouragement under adverse circumstances. There are three or four geraniums in each, two English ivies, and one other vine.

Screws and wires are an important part of the flower-box outfit and are furnished with each. The florist delivers the boxes, but does not put them in place. There is a $10 fine for every box which falls from a window, whether it chances to hit a head or not, and the individual putting the box in place is responsible for it.

Every nationality in New York, excepting only the Chinese and Japanese, were given window boxes last year, and this Summer the Chinese are to be included, and if any one knows a Japanese settlement or mission through which the Japanese may be reached they may have them, too.

The Rev. Earnest L. Fox of the People's Home Church and Settlement, at 543 West Eleventh Street, who is interested in the Flower Guild's work, is planning to decorate his own church and settlement house, and the windows of two houses, one on either side of the other buildings, which will give an effective four-house mass of floral decorations. The guild is anxious to have the wealthy churches of the city do similar work in their various missions.

Last year 205 window boxes were distributed in the city and the result was more satisfactory than the guild could have hoped. In only one instance did the flowers in the boxes die, and this was through an accident in a settlement. Guild visitors called at the different places where boxes had been distributed and gave instructions in the care of the flowers.

They found strange ignorance concerning flowers. In some cases the people were afraid to water the flowers for fear it would hurt them and spoil the box. In other places they could not at first be persuaded to pick off a faded, yellow leaf, for, they said, how could they be sure that, being different in color, it was not a flower?

One woman objected to taking a box because she felt sure that if the flowers should die, she would, too. Having this feeling it was with great alarm that she discovered that her upstairs neighbors were throwing their coffee grounds and egg shells on the box. They did it unintentionally, however, and when they discovered that the practice might be the cause of a woman's death they desisted.

Many men were so interested in the boxes that they took the entire care of them, and one man with a guild window box at a front window invested in a soap box which he put in a back window and started a garden of corn and beans. A woman who lost a little child after receiving the box carried it out to decorate the little one's grave. Another woman took the flowers from hers to use for a similar purpose. Last Fall, where it was possible, the boxes or their contents were taken indoors and some of the plants were slipped. Prizes—two above and two below Fourteenth Street—were given for the best boxes at the end of the season. One went to an invalid colored girl and another to a little Italian cripple. Framed pictures of country scenes were the rewards, and they were very gratefully received.

The guild's work is limited only by its finances. The boxes cost $1.25 each, and to any one wishing to purchase them they sell at wholesale rates. It costs 90 cents to refill a box, and in some of the city schools the boys are making boxes which the guild will fill with flowers.

WOMEN WRITE GEN. BINGHAM.

Political Study Society Wants Traffic Squad Men Put Back.

The Society for Political Study has its eye on Gen. Bingham and the Traffic Squad. The Police Commissioner will know that this morning if he receives the letter which the club voted to have sent to him yesterday.

The society held its regular business meeting and received reports yesterday from its members as to the presence of the mounted police in congested points in the city where the organization relied upon the Commissioner's promise that they were to be retained.

"There is now one mounted policeman at Columbus Circle," said Mrs. Winifred E. Judge, the society's President, "where heretofore there have been four. He has been sent this past week, since our last meeting, and I presume that was because we spoke of it and the comments through the papers have interested people to write Gen. Bingham letters."

"One of the mounted men at Twenty-fifth Street and Broadway told me," said a member, "that the men of the Traffic Squad were put on at noon and taken off at 4 o'clock."

"There are no mounted policemen at Forty-second Street and Broadway at night, when the theatre crush is so bad," said another member.

Mrs. Judge drove to Fifty-ninth Street and Broadway last evening to see if any members of the Traffic Squad were there. She reported that none was to be found. The letter to Gen. Bingham will ask that these men be restored to their old places.

INSURANCE PROGRESS.

The first batch of reform bills proposed by the Armstrong Committee numbered twenty-five, and more were promised. A month only has passed, and now one of them is law. It might fairly be said that so much is included in the first bill that the fate of the others is matter of comparative indifference. The others relate to details, while the first bill, now law, is fundamental. Bills regarding perjury, rebates, false statements, and so on are important enough in a way, but it cannot be said that such crimes are so peculiar to the insurance business that its salvation is dependent upon such legislation. The evils exposed were accompanied by acts of that sort, but the trouble lay deeper than that, and if nothing more were to be done this generation would be safe against their repetition.

The new law ousts the old Directors of mutual companies, and places the power of choice of new Directors in the hands of their policy holders. Even existing proxies are annulled. There could not be a cleaner sweep, nor clearer responsibility for future wrongdoing. If the policy holders fail to appreciate their opportunity, they have only themselves to blame for what will follow. In a sense that is true regarding what they have suffered already. If hindsight were equal to foresight, what has happened would have been prevented. There was power enough to have elected efficient Trustees, or to have turned out bad ones. Bad corporate citizenship was one of the roots of the trouble. Policy holders who refused to vote, or who declined to take the trouble to learn enough to vote rightly, were the architects of their own misfortunes under the old régime, as they will be under the new if the old conditions are reproduced. But we have now what was lacking before—fuller knowledge of necessities and conditions, and an awakened sense of the responsibility of suffrage.

Perhaps it is not too much to say that now it is impossible that proxies should be placed in the hands of irresponsible self-seekers, as they were before, probably in disgust and despair of otherwise securing a new deal. That folly should not be repeated, but lest it should be it is well to repeat Gov. Higgins's warning against anxious and hungry adventurers, of self-guaranteed integrity, whose loud assurances of good-will mislead confidence. That is plain enough, even if no names are mentioned. An election under such auspices would be a calamity. Perhaps it is prudent to tremble a little, remembering the magnificent stake, lest the unclean spirit, returning to an empty, swept, and garnished house, shall take unto himself seven other spirits more evil than himself, and the last state be worse than the first.

However, this risk had to be taken, and it is altogether superfluous to borrow trouble over it. If the seven devils should come into control, they will find their hands well tied by the laws yet to be enacted. And, as already said, we attach more importance to this first bill than to any of the others. Partly because it is the first bill, and it is the first step which costs. A field may not be ripe for the harvest when one ear is fit to pluck; but when that ear is mature it is proof that the crop has ripened, and that other ears are all but ready for the reaper. The garnering of this ear is proof of two things: First, the magnificent financial soundness of the companies. Never have any passed through such a trial so splendidly. And, secondly, the moral soundness of the American people. Usually it requires adversity and distress to arouse consciences and quicken morality. We have had an unmistakable challenge to our popular morals, and the response leaves nothing to be desired. Nothing is stronger than intrenched capital and respectability. Boss Tweed himself was in no position of equal assurance to demand, What are you going to do about it? Never again will it be possible to doubt that the heart of our people is sound, and Chadbands will forever fear popular wrath more than the law which they know how to dodge. While courts and prosecutions are halting and limping, the popular mandate cuts all Gordian knots and gives a result while you wait. The weapon is too heavy to be wielded often. Ulysses's bow is not for every-day use, nor by every reformer, but we have a demonstration that in emergencies the people have a remedy superior to the courts, and beyond the power of resistance of even the strongest.

THE RUSSIAN ELECTIONS.

It is curious to observe the Russian ineptitude for using the machinery of elections imported from more advanced countries. For that matter, the manufacturer of modern agricultural implements, for example, would hardly choose to have them operated by Russian mujiks on a test of their merits, but would prefer to send his own operatives, at least with his first consignment of reaping machines or thrashing machines. The political machinery of elections in the politically advanced countries is the product of a secular evolution, in obedience to a demand from people who knew beforehand exactly what they wanted to do with it. They wanted to provide a means of expressing and enforcing their will. In Russia the notion of allowing the people to express their will appears to the ruling class a kind of blasphemy, and to the majority of those who are intrusted with the suffrage as a kind of mystery. When for generations "absolutism" has been tempered only by "assassination," there must be many who cannot conceive of its being effectively tempered otherwise. Accordingly the Russian revolutionists show a disposition to continue their own old violent courses, in spite of the offer of a more peaceful method.

In this they are almost necessarily aided and abetted by the reactionaries, the rulers of Russia under the old régime. These reactionaries are anxious to demonstrate that all this new-fangled and imported machinery does not really afford a safety valve for popular discontent. Every revolutionary outrage, pending the meeting of the Douma, tends of course to discredit the electoral plan and the electoral machinery. The pernicious effect of the want of political training is as manifest with the extremists on one side as on the other. It is not often expressed so naïvely as by that hardened old militarist, the Governor of Odessa, who undertakes absolutely to nullify the Czar's manifestos by refusing to recognize the choice of the qualified electors, and who bluntly orders those electors to choose other representatives of his and not of their way of thinking. This must be pure ignorance on the part of Gen. Kaulbars. He is honestly unable to perceive "how the Czar's Government is to be carried on" if the Russian people are to have anything to say about it; and this although the Czar had distinctly promised them their "say."

On the other hand, at the capital there is proof of a liberality as surprising as it seems wise. Some of our contemporaries conjecture that the "Constitutional Democracy" which has won such triumphs in the district of the capital must be a reactionary party masquerading under a progressive title, inferring that, we suppose, from the immunity of the voters and the candidates. It is in truth astonishing that the Czar, after all his care in safeguarding the principle of autocracy, should permit, without an effort to prevent it, the canvass of a party of which the very name challenges that principle. But it is merely incredible that a party with such a name should be in the field with the connivance of the reactionaries.

Whatever may be the fact about this particular manifestation, we may rest assured that the present political developments in Russia will prove no exception to the rule that "revolutions never go backward."

THE WASHINGTON POST OFFICE.

The President's promotion of one of his private secretaries to be Postmaster of Washington has one obvious disadvantage. It recalls a painful incident in which Mr. Barnes played a conspicuous part, an incident which, in any view that can be taken of it, everybody concerned must desire to have forgotten, and object to having recalled. The Senate distinctly refused to institute any investigation of the incident. But an investigation of it, or at least a discussion, in executive session, seems to be inevitable when the nomination comes up for confirmation or rejection.

While this is true, the ground taken by part at least of the Washington press about the matter does not seem to be very tenable. Mr. Barnes is objected to as a "carpet-bagger," although he has been a virtual resident of Washington for eighteen years, while retaining a legal residence in New Jersey doubtless, very possibly for the purpose of securing his right to vote. If he does not know the local needs of the capital by this time, his ignorance is incurable. It is inconceivable that he would make a less good Postmaster of Washington for having been all these years a voter in New Jersey.

But the Washingtonian contention appears to be that legal as well as actual residents of the District are exclusively entitled to all the local offices. There is neither law nor custom, principle nor practice, to that effect. The present Postmaster of Washington is a legal resident of New York, and is going back, at the expiration of his service, to his own place. The claims of the Washingtonians have never been allowed, and have often been disregarded. But their belief that they are entitled to the local offices is unshaken. That Uncle Sam ought to take care of them seems to be a tenet of the local faith. Nowhere else in the country, probably, was Mr. Cleveland's declaration that it was not the business of the Government to support the people received with such deep disgust as in the capital. Since the District is not directly represented in Congress, it is not likely that this local jealousy will have much weight when the nomination comes to be canvassed in the Senate.

THE FUTURE OF ALASKA.

"Seward's Folly" was the name not uncommonly applied to the Territory of Alaska when it was bought of the Russian Government twoscore years ago at what was then regarded as the extravagant sum of $7,000,000. Long after it figured in the calculations of the United States mainly as the seat of valuable but not very secure seal fisheries. Later it became the subject of a strenuous dispute with Canada as to the boundary line, which had become important on account of access to the gold districts. To most of us even yet it remains a vague strip of snow-bound land on the far verge of the continent, whence irregular mining has brought out a good deal of gold.

As a matter of fact the area of Alaska, 575,000 square miles, in round numbers, is greater than that of the eight States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, and Nebraska, and is about 70 per cent. of the area of the whole Union in 1800. According to the most recent estimates it has already yielded some $100,000,000 in gold, and in the opinion of Mr. Daniel Guggenheim, speaking of the plans of himself and his associates for the development of the resources of the Territory, this bears about the same ratio to what the Territory will yield under adequate exploitation as did the placer gleanings of the California adventurers of 1849 to the subsequent product of the State. Nor is it the possibilities of gold alone that have invited the study, the energy, and the enterprise of the captains of industry represented by Mr. Guggenheim. They count on the yield, under proper conditions, of the deposits of copper, iron, and coal and upon the water power capable of development and utilization. Here are the chief essentials in the mineral wealth of the Territory. The gold, copper, and iron for the market, the water power for direct use and for the production of electric energy, and the coal for fuel in transportation and in other uses.

The plans outlined by Mr. Guggenheim seem even now on a scale which the ordinary mind grasps with difficulty. Twenty years since they would have seemed to the best informed and the most courageous as visionary as commercial communication with other planets than our own. There is nothing in them which the present state of expert knowledge will condemn as impracticable. Their success is a question of time, of capital, of intelligent business and technical administration, and of reasonable Territorial government. Given the ores known to exist, with the fuel and water power available, their extraction, reduction, and marketing are matters for much more accurate and trustworthy calculation than the handling of the wheat crop of a hundred acres of land in Western New York was when Alaska was purchased. It suggests the wonders of Aladdin's lamp, but the man who first rubbed amber with silk started a train of marvels beside which those of the Arabian Nights pale their ineffectual fires.

IMMIGRATION.

If the people of the United States were obliged to supply information as to their "favorite recreation," as is done by notabilities in the list of the British "Who's Who," we should say that about nine out of ten would have to designate "urging legislation." If there is any National pastime more affected than that, we are unaware of it. On the score of the number of participants, baseball, football, bridge, and all games of chance except playing the horses and the stocks are not in it.

Look, for example, at the fuss that is being kicked up in Washington over amendments to the immigration laws. Under pressure from organizations or in obedience to Congressmen's invincible desire to pass laws, about a dozen bills are being more or less discussed. As a matter of fact, the laws we have are not half-way enforced, and cannot be under existing conditions and with the force supplied by Congress. Of course the recent gorging of Ellis Island and the dispatch that was compelled by the flood of immigrants happening within a short time rendered things more difficult than usual. But laws should provide for such emergencies, which have occurred before and are sure to occur again. We have certain tests of admission. They are specific, and whether they are sufficient or not, they should very carefully, systematically, and continuously be applied, and this it is quite impracticable to do under actual requirements and provisions. Until these tests are made to do all they can do in the way of selection, it is folly to impose others still further to strain the overworked force at the command of the Government.

We know of no more promising candidate for the Chairmanship of the Democratic State Committee to succeed Mr. Cord Meyer than young Mr. Francis Burton Harrison.

The coal strike curiously affects the National Treasury. Secretary Shaw has called Speaker Cannon's attention to the limited storage space for fuel at the Mint in Philadelphia, and to the danger of stoppage of the entire work in case of a protracted strike. The Secretary submits the following item for an appropriation:

> Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Mint: For coal bunkers and necessary mechanical appliance in connection therewith, to be constructed partly under the sidewalk, twenty thousand dollars, ($20,000.)

> Mr. Nicoll's speech at the Democratic Club a week ago indicates undying hostility to Hearst and a willingness to back Bryan. This change of heart is not due to any overweening love for Bryan, but rather to a feeling that if any Democrat is going to be elected he will have to be a radical, and Bryan is less objectionable than Hearst.—The Tribune.

Well, folks are beginning to believe, after perusing his remarkably lucid and sober article in The Century Magazine for April, that Mr. Bryan is not much more of a radical, say, than Mr. Roosevelt.

The Republicans of Trego County, Kan., have distinguished the President, Gov. Hoch, and themselves by standing pat on the briefest and most mutually complimentary platform ever constructed by a political convention in the United States. It reads:

> Resolved, That we let well enough alone.

We recommend that this model of brevity, pith, and discretion be adopted by the Republican Party as a whole in all the States. But if they rear it on the lengthy, lofty Babel of their tariff schedules, the public is still liable to find out that their schedules are not "well enough."

New York has slaved meekly for years piling up huge postal profits for the country in its low, gloomy prison of a Central Office downtown. It rubbed its eyes, therefore, when told of an appropriation for a commodious sub-station near the new Pennsylvania terminal—though this would have proved quite inadequate for the growing city. And now comes news of a definite plan formulated at Washington to establish a great Central Post Office uptown. We trust this liberal policy will be amply supported.

It seems, according to a letter of Mr. Barnes, Treasurer of the Association for Promoting the Interests of the Blind, that the mistaken impression was given in the press that the association raised, at its meeting the other night, the $15,000 it needs. In fact, only a beginning was made, and the association asks that the sum be completed. It should be. The work is an excellent one, and it is in excellent hands.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Chief Croker as a Diagnostician.

Chief Croker allowed his long-standing hostility to the police to betray him into an entirely untenable position at the fire under the Brooklyn Bridge Monday night and revealed an entirely unreasonable obstinacy that is a disquieting trait in a man with his peculiarly heavy responsibilities. Mr. Croker's ability as a fire-fighter has rarely been questioned, while his courage and devotion to duty as he understands it have been displayed too often to be impugned, but when he assumes to tell an ambulance surgeon whether one of his subordinates should or should not go to the hospital he goes as far beyond his knowledge as beyond his rights and puts himself laboriously and completely in the wrong. In this particular case, no sooner had Mr. Croker gained his point than even he saw that he had made a serious mistake, and the half-suffocated fireman was hurried where he should have gone a good many minutes before—that is, to a hospital. This made almost ludicrously obvious the unwisdom of his previous announcement that "no man of mine shall go to the hospital to-night." Mr. Croker is the last of persons to say that, for his methods of dealing with a fire are the very reverse of timid, and he sets an example of indifference of danger that naturally has its effect on those under him and makes the need of hospital treatment an ever-present probability. Only a few days ago Mr. Croker seemed to some to have carried courage to the point of recklessness and to have ordered, or at least to have permitted, firemen to linger under tottering walls so long that several of them were killed when the inevitable crash occurred. The accusations that followed were probably ill-founded, but the episode has its bearing upon this one of the conflict with the police and a surgeon over the disposition to be made of an apparently dying fireman. It is evident that the question of authority in such cases should be settled at once, and that the settlement should leave the matter of diagnosis to the doctor and not to the layman. Ambulance surgeons have strong nerves and are little likely to exaggerate the ills or injuries from which a fireman is suffering—little likely to remove him unnecessarily from the scene of duty. We all know the courage of the men in the Fire Department and their readiness to take the most desperate of risks in saving life or even property. There should be somebody to tell them when they have done enough, and except in the actual work of fire-fighting that somebody should not be—as a matter of fact is not—Mr. Croker.

Prophesying Weather Conditions.

Not until next December, according to present information, is the attempt to make long-distance weather prophecies to begin, and the effort will be, not to predict rain or shine for particular days, but simply to tell in a general way whether a coming month or season will be warm or cold, wet or dry. Success is expected from study and interpretation of solar influences of one kind or another, and of course there is where it is to be looked for, since all our weather—like practically everything else of ours—comes in last analysis from the sun. But the complications are enormous, and expectations should not be raised too high. How Prof. Moore, the Chief of the Weather Bureau, views the situation and the prospects is sufficiently explained in one of his recent reports. "The climate and crop conditions," he said, "from year to year depend largely upon the invisible and subtle solar radiations, known to exist as waves, like those used in wireless telegraphy. The space between the sun and the earth—that is, the cosmical ether—is filled with wireless messages which science is laboriously learning to interpret. Its votaries do not understand the solar code very well, and the process of deciphering it is like that of learning to read the Babylonian inscriptions—namely, by putting this and that together, learning to read a bit here and there, by intercomparisons, trial, and failure, till at length the language of the sun shall be understood. The time may come when it may be possible to interpret the seasonal weather from year to year in advance. It has not yet arrived. The sun moves leisurely through its cycles and the terrestrial conditions seem to follow loosely. At present all available information concerning these matters comes in scattered form from observatories, in reports two or three years old. It is necessary, therefore, to have instruments, trained research observers and computers, and a discussion of results, subject to the direct control of the Weather Bureau." Much use will be made of balloons in the new experiment, and there is at least a chance that at last these toys may begin to pay for all they have cost in money and lives.

RANSDELL GOT RECOGNITION.

A Little Incident Illustrating the Method of Managing the House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—After waiting and watching all day for the psychological moment for an effective butt-in, John Wesley Gaines at last thought he recognized its familiar outlines rising above the horizon of the lively debate that was marking the approach of the hour set for the vote on the Quarantine bill this afternoon. He leaped up to meet the opportunity, but for once he was mistaken. Instead of a merry recognition he got from the Speaker a frigid and peremptory turn-down. Bang went the gavel as soon as Gaines began to talk.

"The gentleman is not recognized," calmly remarked "Uncle Joe." "The chair desires to recognize the gentleman from Louisiana, Mr. Ransdell."

Ransdell was not looking for the psychological moment at all. He had his back turned to the Speaker's desk and was busily engaged in private conversation. When his name was called he looked around, almost as much surprised as was Gaines. Then he slowly got to his feet, while Gaines stood for once speechless. But before Ransdell could get started Gaines recovered.

"I was not aware that the gentleman from Louisiana had asked for recognition," he said, with withering sarcasm.

Bang went the gavel. "The gentleman from Louisiana"—bang—"has asked for recognition"—bang—bang—"has been promised recognition"—bang—bang—"and now has it."

HELPING THE ADULT BLIND.

All of the Money Needed Has Not Yet Been Raised.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some of the newspaper accounts of the first public meeting of the New York State Association for Promoting the Interests of the Blind, held in the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom on the evening of March 29, gave the impression that $15,000 was raised spontaneously that very evening, as the result of the eloquent appeal of Mr. Clemens and Mr. Choate. The reporters who made this statement doubtless did so with the best intentions and in kindly enthusiasm. There were two objects in view when this meeting was planned—first, to introduce the comparatively new association to the public and to arouse interest, and second, as our programme shows, to make a start in raising $15,000, to establish and maintain workshops for the blind, to establish classes in reading, writing, and trades for the adult blind and to provide salaries and equipments for visitors and teachers for the adult blind. The reporters saw very clearly that the first object was attained, and, being compelled to leave before the end, they doubtless thought that they might just as well give us credit for as great success in our other object. They probably thought that it would do us no harm, anyhow. Unfortunately, it did, for two out of every three persons who congratulate us upon our meeting congratulate us also upon raising the $15,000. We have secured only a part of it, and we want the rest. We will do good work with it, both for the blind themselves and for the community at large, because in helping to make any blind person self-supporting, even if only partially so, we lift a burden which now rests upon the general public.

We will get the money in time, but if people think that we already have it, as many do, they will not contribute to us, as they might if they understood that we have only made a beginning in this direction.

Will you not help us by giving publicity to this correction?

I will gladly acknowledge all checks sent to me as Treasurer of the association.

"WEARY WAKENER'S" CASE.

More Advice as to How to Cure "That Tired Feeling."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Tell "Weary Wakener" to try eating light dinners or suppers and to thoroughly masticate what he eats. Tell him to drink no ice water whatever, and to drink little or nothing at his meals. He can take as much distilled water or spring water as he wants a half hour or three-quarters before eating, and it will do him good. If he drinks a quart or three pints a day, so much the better. If he can manage to walk a mile briskly, or possibly two miles, in the evening before going to bed, so as to enable him to inhale plenty of fresh air, that also will have a beneficial effect. Have him try this plan for two weeks and report the result in the columns of The Times for the benefit of others. M. T. R.

New York, April 2, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the case of your correspondent, "Weary Wakener," I can give him a very simple remedy which will afford him immediate and lasting relief. He should take plenty of exercise in the open air, drink water freely—not with, but after meals—avoid pork of every description, and eat two Bermuda onions daily.

A FORMER SUFFERER.

Revolt Against Doctors.

"Lady Phyllis" in The London Bystander.

Human nature is beginning to revolt at what it calls "that modern tyrant" the doctor, for it is a fact, and rather a sad one, that doctors have got the upper hand of us in these days; that when we are ill we go through medicinal tortures, and when we are well we endure a preventive system hardly less wearisome and painful. The truth of it is we are all become faddists, and the doctors are the very worst ones.

The Coincidence.

From The Savannah Press.

"He loves me," she breathed.

"Wants to marry you, hey?" the old man grunted.

"Yes, Papa."

"What's his income?"

She started.

"I don't know," she murmured, "but the coincidence is very strange."

"What coincidence?" asked her father.

"Clarence," she answered, "asked that very same question about your income."

MEMORIAL TO MRS. GILBERT.

A Statement by the Committee in Charge of the Undertaking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article appeared in your paper of last Thursday, the 29th ult., in which a former employe of the artist to whom was awarded the commission to make the Mrs. Gilbert Memorial, makes the astonishing claim that the model accepted by the committee was his in its entirety, and that his employer had no right to place her name on it; that the committee were deceived, &c. In order that the public may be able properly to judge of the matter, the Mrs. Gilbert Memorial Association has appointed the undersigned a committee to place the facts before them.

Prior to Mrs. Gilbert's passing, a lady, now a member of the above association, suggested to Mrs. E. St. John Matthews, the sculptor, that she make a small statuette of Mrs. Gilbert for a specific place and purpose which she had in mind. The suggestion appealed strongly to the artist, who admired Mrs. Gilbert very much, and she called on the latter to get her permission and ask her to pose for the work. Mrs. Gilbert was delighted with the idea, and said she would gladly give the necessary sittings, and made some suggestions concerning the work. But the best-laid plans oft go amiss, and the time came for Mrs. Gilbert to leave the city on her professional tour without any of the sittings having been given. She promised, however, that on her return home it would be one of the first things she would attend to, but she came home silent, her work finished, and the last call answered. The artist who had proceeded with the work and had it about two-thirds finished when this event occurred completed it.

It was but natural, then, that when the movement to erect a public memorial to the woman so many loved took form the artist who had made such a splendid likeness of her should be consulted and afterward given the commission to do the larger work. During the Winter the artist, with the committee's consent, changed the design for the memorial, completely destroying the model first made. These changes were made in the presence of members of the committee, who frequently visited the artist's studio to watch the work as it progressed, and it would have been impossible for another to have worked on that model without their knowledge. Ofttimes while the artist was working at the figure the members made suggestions that were accepted and immediately carried out. This man who claims he did the work was not then and had not been in Mrs. Matthews's employ for many months, and, inasmuch as the several members of our committee have seen the work torn down and rebuilt several times, in order that changes could be made, we feel that it is but right and proper to denounce his assertions as false. However, the artist is now at work on another composition, which the committee will undoubtedly accept.

And we likewise denounce the arrogance of one of the managers of the Theatrical Trust, who claims the privilege of owning the sole right to Mrs. Gilbert's memory, and who insists that he and his friends only shall be the judges of the manner in which it will be perpetuated. "How soon the brickmaker becomes the taskmaster when the opportunity occurs!" The members of the theatrical profession may be compelled to say yea and nay, whether it expresses their sentiments or not, but not so the public, and if they deem it proper to emphasize the personal purity of Mrs. Gilbert's life in order that it may be an inspiration and encouragement to others; if they desire to use it as an object lesson that may help those who come after in the same path in life, to resist the many temptations that assail, certainly they will not ask the permission of our Theatrical Trust friend to do so.

Did Not Eulogize McCall.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to correct the report of my words at the exercises connected with the unveiling of the memorial to Mr. Edward Marsh Brown in the Fruit Exchange yesterday.

I did not "praise McCall," nor did I refer to "the late President of the New York Life Insurance Company" as being "one of the most honest and upright of men," to whom "a similar memorial should be erected."

I did not say that "John A. McCall did not get the credit he deserved." I never mentioned his name or had him in mind. My reference, without name, was to another sort of a man; a man of perhaps less striking ability, but of a simpler and more old-fashioned conception of a fiduciary Trusteeship. The reference was to the President of the one big insurance company which has proven itself to have been managed in the interests of its stockholders and not of "high finance"; the President who drew a salary of only $25,000, and died worth too little to mention in the annals of life insurance history. A man of whose character and career I was reminded by the thought of that sterling soul, Edward Marsh Brown. R. HEBER NEWTON.

The Transfer Rule.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How long will passengers of the New York surface cars submit to the insolence of conductors arising from the new system of conferring transfers? Will it be necessary to carry witnesses to testify to one's request for a transfer, or shall we eliminate the present difficulties by arming ourselves and demanding transfers each time we pay a fare, whether we need them or not? The "Man Who Told."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The force of the office in which I spend my waking hours has lately been enriched by the addition of a new boy, a youth of no previous business experience. The other day when "extras" were calling this hopeful came in and announced the robbery of a bank, adding that the "man who told" had been arrested. Long we pondered the meaning of the quoted words, finally deducing the intelligence that a "guilty teller" had been taken into custody.

ATHLETICS FOR WOMEN.

Misdirected Physical Exercise May Do Injury Beyond Repair.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial on "Athletics for Women," in yesterday's Times, you pertinently remark: "Among the games which he [Dr. Sargent] distinctly discommends for them are not only foot ball, boxing, and pole vaulting, but also the basket ball, which is perhaps at present the game most in favor in girls' schools. We may expect to see his judgment on this point challenged."

Probably it will be challenged, but not by the individual of well-determined sex nature or whose education has been along proper sex lines. Woman is physiologically other than man, and no proper education can change her, but false education can pervert her, and misdirected physical exercise can injure her beyond recovery.

It is unfortunate that in some of the colleges there exists a class of teachers who are apparently ashamed of their sex and will not acknowledge that woman is different than man. These teachers say a girl should try vaulting, high jumping, sprinting, and broad jumping, and make an effort to equal the record of man. These forms of exercise are dangerous and injurious to the young woman, especially to the nerve-tensioned American girl, as I have reasons to know, for many, who think they have only temporarily strained their physical endurance have in reality injured their nervous systems.

Any form of exercise that causes undue psychic excitement, such as personal contests or basket ball games between rival schools, is too great a strain on the developing nervous system; for in the adolescent girl every organ and tissue is trying to get adapted to the new life, and this will never bloom again with all its righteous beauty and strength if deprived of one minute's growth of nerve power. The unavoidable psychic excitement accompanying contests where personal or team efforts are strained to win from rivals takes force and activity from growing nerve cells, and the result will be a riotous rebellion in some part of the girl's physiological functions. It may be delayed until later in life, but it will come, for nature never forgives robbery or insult.

It is to be regretted that many facts of importance to mothers and teachers relating to the subject are not allowed, through prurient prudery, to be published where it would do the most good. However, if parents will consult their physicians these will direct them to reading along a line that will redound to the better health of the average school girl, or at least will keep them from becoming later in life pitiable invalids.

Everything that moral example and hygienic instruction can do to develop the girl into a healthy woman should be done. The normal woman was not intended by nature to be a high jumper or a performer on the trapeze, but to be a wife and mother, and with such a glorious future she should be educated that her physical condition is always a pleasure to herself and a blessing to her husband.

"With a woman to be is better than to do."

Not Afraid of the Dreadnought.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was with much interest that I read in The Times of the 30th ult. the letter concerning the probable greatness of the Constitution to be as compared with the Dreadnought. The writer unfortunately seems pessimistic as to our ability in ship construction.

As I review the work of the old Constitution in 1812 I am content that our new vessel should if need be come forth inferior to the Dreadnought or any other vessel England may build in the next five years.

Were we not at that early date, even against fearful odds, amply capable of meeting the then admitted "Mistress of the Seas"?

Surely we admit no retrogression.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the last publication of the "Roosevelt Bears" Mr. Piper refers to the bears standing on the Concord "Green," and seeing the statue of the minuteman in front of them. Also natives of Concord say "common" instead of "green," although this last criticism is not necessary. I should advise you to be correct in your geography next Sunday, Mr. Piper.

Gas Bills That Grow.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allan R. Fergusson's experience in "increased gas bill" tallies exactly with my own. My bill, received to-day, is one-third larger than the previous month's, under the same conditions, same number in family, and shorter days!

The present indications point to larger bills, not smaller—even when gas shall cost 80 cents. How many others can report similar experiences in suddenly pushed-up gas bills?

The 'phone line from Whitesburg to Judge Blair's is a good one. All kinds of talk goes over the line, and when one wants to talk business it is impossible, for the confusion on the line. People want to use their 'phone; they have paid their money for it. The other day while a lady was talking to her brother over the 'phone some half-raised scoundrel spoke and said, "Hello! honey," and the lady that was talking was the writer's mother, and we say in all candidness that the person who did so was no gentleman, let him be who he may be, and we think the manager of the line should take some step to stop such work, as no enterprise can prosper with such work as this.

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM GETS 16 NEW PICTURES

Sir Purdon Clarke Announces Important Acquisitions.

A COLLECTION OF LACES, TOO

These, Says Sir Purdon, Will Be Valuable as a Test for Purchases and Heirlooms.

Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, announced at the museum yesterday afternoon the new acquisitions, including loans, gifts, and important purchases with the income from the Rogers fund.

Sixteen new paintings of the Dutch, English, French, and Italian schools were shown by Roger Fry, the curator of paintings, who spoke on art, and described each picture as it was displayed. The new paintings are considered the most valuable acquired by the Museum recently, and include an interesting Goya—a portrait of Don Sebastian Martinez and an example of Goya in his middle period. The portrait is of a Don seated in a chair and holding in his hand a paper, on which is inscribed "Don Sebastian Martinez, por su Amigo, Goya, 1792." This work was purchased in London. Among the new acquisitions is the portrait of a young man by Lorenzo Lotto, which also was bought in London. This is considered a hitherto unknown example of Lotto, and is said to be of his early period.

"This portrait is totally unlike the contemporary portraits," said Mr. Fry. An important work of the Italian school is a large Luca Giordano, entitled "Adoration." An allegorical figure by Carlo Cagliari of decorative design has been given to the Museum by Louis Ehrich of this city. The picture is considered an admirable example of Carlo Cagiari's style, and illustrates the methods of the great decorative painter of Venice.

Purchases from the Rogers fund also include "The Holy Family," by Baroccio, a small picture of the Holy Family by Federigo Baroccio of the sixteenth century, who was a noted mannerist of his time. An unusually important acquisition is a large canvas of the Italian school, "The Grand Canal," by Guardi, and representing a water fête in Venice, with the Rialto in the background.

An Early Murillo Example.

"Here is a good example of Murillo of his early period, when he showed the marked influence of Velasquez," said Mr. Fry.

The picture came from the celebrated Leigh Court collection of London. Rather an unusual landscape by Van Goyen is a large picture of a river valley and with a gray sky veiled with moving clouds.

Other purchases include the portrait of an old woman by Nicholas Maes, an artist who was a pupil of Rembrandt, and two important drawings by William Blake, showing the imaginative style in water color of this artist and entitled "The Creation of Eve" and "The Rest in the Flight Into Egypt". These drawings have just been received by the Museum from the Lord Houghton collection of London.

The Monthly Bulletin of the Museum was issued yesterday, and among the other acquisitions mentioned are three pieces of sculpture, including a bust of Miss Susan B. Anthony, by Adelaide Johnson, a gift from Mrs. M. W. Ferris; a bust of Chancellor John Watts, by Ball Hughes, and a statuette of Col. Abraham de Peyster, gifts of Gen. J. Watts de Peyster. Also among the paintings is an interesting landscape by William Morris Hunt, an American artist, who is now represented in the Museum for the first time. Several pieces of furniture of the Flemish period of the sixteenth century, including a walnut cabinet, an oak statuette, and a walnut stall, have been purchased.

Memorial to John Hay.

A cameo locket containing hair of Washington and a memorial to the late John Hay are the gift of Mrs. A. B. Stone. Two miniatures, one a portrait of Parke Godwin, and one of a lady by Miss T. W. Thayer, have been presented to the Museum by the American Society of Miniature Painters. An American picture of "A Girl and a Cow," by Theodore Robinson, is a gift to the Museum from William T. Evans. This picture was not shown among the others, however. A water color drawing of the famous Ascoli Cope has been presented by J. Pierpont Morgan.

A collection of French furniture of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries has been purchased, and Prof. Bashford Dean has presented to the Museum a collection of Egyptian antiquities of one hundred and seventy-odd specimens.

The Souhami collection, including 100 Roman and Merovingian keys, are among the metal objects purchased by the Museum. Four pottery whistles from Costa Rica have been added to the Crosby Brown collection, the gift of Dr. John M. Keith, and one hand drum from New Zealand has also been added to the Brown collection, the gift of Mrs. John Crosby Brown.

After the exhibition of the paintings, Sir Purdon received the visitors in the reception room. There he gave a brief talk on the lace collections in the Museum and also mentioned several recent acquisitions.

"The last collection given the Museum is from Washington," he said, "and it is an exceedingly fine one. It has been presented to us by Mrs. Julian-James of Washington and includes many fine examples of Venetian, French, and Belgian laces, and is now being arranged by an expert, Mrs. W. Kubasek, for the Museum.

A Test for Heirlooms.

"The principal value of these laces," he continued, "is to enable people who have bought laces, or who have received them as heirlooms, to verify them." Sir Purdon added that he was now fully acclimated to America, and that he thoroughly enjoyed living here.

Gallery No. 24 is being rearranged and redecorated, and is rapidly nearing completion. "It will soon be opened," said Mr. Fry, "and when rearranged we hope to show the public what the Museum is aiming at."

CITIES TO RULE COUNTRY.

Future of Our Government Is with Them, Says Justice O'Brien.

Justice Morgan J. O'Brien lectured last night at the Democratic Club on "The City of the Twentieth Century." He said that the future of our form of government rested with the cities. The hope of the country lay in the spread of religion and the love of institutions founded on the struggle for independence. The men who had conquered the continent, he felt sure, had left a hardy race of those who loved justice and virtue so much that they were willing to lay down their lives at any time for their preservation.

Justice O'Brien said that while all the world was looking toward an era of war between Socialism and materialism in this country, the deep-seated morality of the Nation would save it from anarchy.

Standard Rope and Twine Sale.

BOSTON, April 3.—The Massachusetts property of the Standard Rope and Twine Company, a corporation with headquarters at 17 State Street, New York City, was sold to-day at public auction to Alvin W. Krech of New York, who purchased it on behalf of the Bondholders' Committee of the company. The price was $500,000. The sale was on a mortgage foreclosure by the Manhattan Trust Company of New York City, acting as Trustee under the mortgage.

MESSENGER GOT $55 TIP; NOBODY WILL TELL WHY

CASE PUZZLES THE POLICE

Arrested Messenger, Then Let Him Go—All a Joke, Says Lawyer, but the Point Is Hid.

The joke is supposed to be on Postal Messenger No. 1,188, by name Abraham Woldowsky of 351 East Seventy-second Street, and he has been forbidden to talk about it. But as he got a $55 tip, part of which he expended, he says, on the "swellest spread" he has had in a long time, after the police turned him loose last night, he is not complaining.

The joke had its beginning on Monday afternoon, when he was sent from his office, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, to answer a call at 36 East Fortieth Street, the home of Thomas A. McIntyre of the firm of Thomas A. McIntyre & Co., brokers and bankers, with offices at 71 Broadway. A young woman of about twenty, who was, from all accounts, Mrs. Mitchell, stepdaughter of Mr. McIntyre, in whose house she has been living, gave him an envelope in which was $450. It was to be delivered to Parker & Aaron, lawyers, of 52 Broadway.

Abraham was going to catch a car, he said later, when he was stopped at Madison Avenue by a man who said:

"You're going to take an envelope to 52 Broadway, aren't you?"

"Yes," answered Abraham.

"Well, I'm the man you want to see," said the man.

"Then, the boy says, when he was not satisfied that the man was really the person who should take the envelope, he was led into a near-by drug store. There the drug clerk told Abraham that the man was Thomas A. McIntyre, stepfather of the sender, and therefore had a right to take the envelope.

Whereupon the man took Abraham into the Murray Hill Hotel and gave him a receipt for the envelope. Abraham then got his $55 tip.

Late in the afternoon Herman Aaron, who had been expecting the envelope, telephoned about it. He was told that it had been sent. The Postal office was communicated with, and late in the afternoon Abraham was sent down. According to Mr. Aaron, the boy went to the Old Slip Police Station along with the lawyer's office boy to report the loss of the envelope. Detectives Connor and Trayer locked Abraham up on the charge of stealing the $450.

Though most of those directly concerned said yesterday that there was nothing to the story, and it was all a huge joke, Abraham Woldowsky, who appeared to be about 15 years old, was arraigned yesterday in the Tombs Court before Magistrate Moss on the charge of stealing the $450. Mr. Aaron was present. He said that the money had been taken by a person who had a right to take it, and that Mrs. Mitchell wanted the matter dropped.

Magistrate Moss was not satisfied with the explanation. He held Abraham for a while, so that Connor and Trayer could investigate. They did so to no purpose, and yesterday afternoon Abraham was paroled until this morning, when Connor and Trayer will again try to report the causes of the boy's arrest.

At 36 East Fortieth Street it was said that both Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. McIntyre were out of the city. At the office of Mr. McIntyre it was said that he was at home sick, and had been there for several days. At the office of Parker & Aaron Mr. Aaron said:

"There is nothing to all this. If it weren't for family reasons this could all be told as a huge joke. It's funny. The boy started with the money for my office. He was headed off, and the envelope was taken from him. That was all right. Mr. McIntyre is the boss of his own house. Mrs. Mitchell didn't know that the money had been intercepted until this morning. I can't say any more. It's too bad that the boy had to suffer."

Why Mrs. Mitchell sent out $450, and why her stepfather went out to head it off and seize it, if he did, could not be learned yesterday.

Abraham Woldowsky was taken back to work last night. Everybody in the office was forbidden to talk about the case. Last night some one in the McIntyre home who said haltingly that he was Mrs. Mitchell's uncle shattered all previous theories that had been built upon the stories of the detectives, the lawyer, and the boy, by making this statement:

"Yes, Mrs. Mitchell did send $450 by a messenger boy. But he dropped it on the ground. He was arrested. I can't say how it was done, but somebody picked up the $450 and brought it back to where it belonged. It wasn't Mr. McIntyre. And now everybody is happy, and nothing should be said about it in the newspapers."

Anyway, Abraham Woldowsky was the lion of the messenger office last night. Surrounded with deep mystery about which everybody was forbidden to talk, "mixed up with the secrets of Fifth Avenue mugs," as one companion expressed it, with the remains of a $55 tip on his person—Abraham felt the burden of notability pressing heavily upon him.

BOSTON'S NEW ARCHBISHOP.

Mgr. William H. O'Connell Proclaimed as Coadjutor.

BOSTON, April 3.—The Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the headquarters of the Archdiocese of Boston, has seldom held a greater throng than assembled there to-day to greet the most Rev. William H. O'Connell, the recently appointed Archbishop Coadjutor of Boston. More than 500 clergymen, representing nearly every parish in the archdiocese, and most of the Bishops in the Boston jurisdiction, were in attendance.

The Rev. Robert J. Johnson, rector of the Gate of Heaven Church of South Boston, delivered an address welcoming Archbishop O'Connell, and congratulating him upon his appointment. To this Archbishop O'Connell responded in part as follows:

"Nearly three years have passed since the venerable prelate of this see, himself the first to recognize the need of help, turned to Rome, whence alone that aid could come. Rome has made her irrevocable decision. I stand before you with the mandate of the supreme pastor of the universal church in my hands. I come from Peter's presence into yours.

"I believe as strongly as I believe that there is a God, that that God has placed me where I am. And that faith compels the solid conviction that even when the time comes—may it be long—when the greatest man that has ever ruled this see is taken from it, He who is omnipotent will still be with it. In that perfect faith I place my trust—less faith than that were pusillanimous."

NEW HAVEN CENSORSHIP.

Chief of Police to Pass Upon All Theatrical Performances.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 3.—The new city ordinance regarding the licensing of theatrical performances goes into effect to-day and requires that each separate performance of a theatrical nature shall be licensed. The censor is to be the Chief of Police, who shall have full power in passing on all amusements presented in this city.

He may order the discontinuance of a performance at any time. The Chief of Police is also to be the censor of posters and show bills, and his appointment as such resulted principally through a petition signed by several ministers of this city protesting against the show bills advertising certain plays. The new ordinance provides that "no poster or show bill shall pictorially represent the commission or attempt to commit any crime or act of bodily violence, or any picture that is lewd, vulgar, and indecent."

THE OLIVE MEAD QUARTET.

An Enjoyable Presentation of Chamber Music at Mendelssohn Hall.

That very deserving organization, the Olive Mead Quartet, gave a particularly enjoyable concert last evening in Mendelssohn Hall. The ensemble numbers were Haydn's quartet in G major, not one of the most hackneyed of the long series, but having the qualities common to all of them of spontaneous melody, perfection of form, and idiomatic writing for the instruments.

The performance gave equal testimony of the qualities to which the quartet has accustomed us—evident care and conscientiousness of preparation, musical intelligence, and beauty of tone, this latter marred much less by falseness of intonation than by the stridency, amounting sometimes to rawness of the first violin, meaning the instrument, not the player. This defect for some reason was less manifest in the other ensemble number, the D minor quartet of Schubert, of which only the variations are often heard, and which the rather portentous length debars from the appreciation its beauty deserves. It is of course much more exacting than the Haydn number, but it was equally well played.

Miss Littlehales, the 'cellist of the quartet, gave a very effective performance of a sonata for her instrument by Marcello, a contemporary of Corelli, and a composer of his age with the unpretentiousness and the soothing intention and effect which increasingly endear the old music to those who miss those qualities in the newest. Miss Littlehales's performance was marked by purity of tone and dignity and repose of style.

MANSFIELD AS ALCESTE.

Actor Again Essays Chief Role in Famous French Classic.

Mr. Mansfield's Alceste in Molière's "Le Misanthrope," which was first acted on the stage of the New Amsterdam Theatre April 10, 1905, again served last evening to draw a large assemblage to the same house. That the play has been billed only once during the actor's present engagement, however, serves to prove the prediction made in these columns on the occasion of its original production: interesting as is the opportunity to see on the English stage this famous French classic, and satisfying as is the chief actor's share in its setting forth, the work, by its very nature, is unsuited to general presentations in a theatre where action is always a primary and important consideration.

Molière's "Le Misanthrope" is in effect a negation of all the vital laws of drama as we have come to understand them, and in its actual representation it fails to develop such progression of incident, event, and character as is essential to general interest.

Such value as the play has in its Englished version arises chiefly from Mr. Mansfield's often demonstrated versatility and virtuosity. His Alceste is interesting chiefly by reason of a pervading quality of naturalness, punctuated by occasional passages of particularly happy expressiveness and beautiful in graceful and fluent utterance. In gesture, voice, and pose the actor expresses with fluid facility the man whom Molière has drawn, sending his varying moods across the footlights with unmistakable clearness and directness.

To-night Mr. Mansfield will be seen in his familiar characterization of Baron Chevreul in "A Parisian Romance."

CHIEF MURPHY'S NEW PLAY.

Jersey City Police Head's Latest Is "Guardians of the Law."

For several years Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City has written a sketch for the annual benefit of the Police Mutual Aid Association. The performance takes place at the Bijou Theatre and has two performances daily for a week.

This year the benefit begins on April 16. The Chief's playlet was put in rehearsal yesterday. It is called "Guardians of the Law" and deals purely with police matters. All the characters but two are policemen, and all the players but one are policemen. The stage represents a police station and the incidents are such as naturally occur in such a place.

Policemen enter and make their reports to the Sergeant behind the desk. A truant boy is brought in and frightened out of his wits by a threat to send him to a reformatory. Then an order is given to send the patrol wagon for a "porch climber," who has been arrested, but who when arraigned denies that he is a thief. He is identified as a burglar whose picture is in the "Rogue's Gallery" and he breaks down and confesses.

The part of the truant boy will be played by Thomas Devine, a boy who was once arrested for truancy. His experience gave him such a fright that he has never missed a day from school since. The incident won his lasting gratitude, and he asked the Chief to put in the part of a truant boy and let him play it. The scene concludes with the sending out of the "midnight squad" for their tour of duty.

"SAMSON AND DELILAH" SUNG.

Fourth Concert of the Oratorio Society at Carnegie Hall.

A splendid audience gathered in Carnegie Hall last night at the fourth concert of the Oratorio Society, when Camille Saint-Saëns's three-act opera "Samson and Delilah," was excellently sung under the direction of Mr. Frank Damrosch. This work has been sung twice before by this society under Walter Damrosch, and was also given at the opera in the days of Tamagno. Last night the society had the assistance of Miss Janet Spencer, who sang the music of Delilah, and of Ben Davies as Samson, Gwylim Miles as the High Priest, and E. A. Jahn in the double rôle of Abimelech and the old Hebrew spokesman of his people.

Mr. Damrosch had his chorus well trained, and the performance was carried off with spirit and effectiveness by all the participants, except the orchestra, which was not at its best. Miss Spencer was in good voice, and sang the difficult music of Delilah with finish and power. Mr. Davies has returned to New York with a voice still powerful, but showing the effect of wear, and at times last night it failed him sadly. Mr. Miles did his work, as always, in a satisfactory manner. Mr. Jahn was only acceptable in the small contributions he had to make to the evening's offering.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Roumanian actress, Agathe Barsescu, will give a farewell performance to-night at the Irving Place Theatre, appearing as Messalina in Wilbrandt's tragedy, "Arria und Messalina."

Frank Gilmore has been engaged to play one of the leading roles in "What the Butler Saw," which will soon be seen at the Garrick Theatre.

Josephine Lovett, for several years leading woman for Andrew Mack, has been engaged by Henry B. Harris to play the part of Shirley Rossmore in one of the four companies that will present "The Lion and the Mouse" next season.

John Philip Sousa will lead the orchestra at the performance of his new military comic opera, "The Free Lance," at the Chestnut Street Opera House, in Philadelphia, next Monday evening.

John Drew, who is to star next season in Pinero's play, "His House in Order," will close his present season on April 28, and soon afterward will sail for London.

The members of the Bertha Calman Society, a Harlem charitable organization, will give a musical comedy, "Twixey Wixey," at Palm Garden this Saturday evening. The proceeds will be donated to charity.

MARK TWAIN TALKS TO COLLEGE WOMEN

Says He'll Only Speak to Alumnae After This.

TELLS THAT TWICHELL STORY

Five Hundred Women Shook Hands with Him and Showered Him with Pretty Speeches.

The Women's University Club and Mark Twain entertained each other yesterday. The club gave a reception, with the author as the guest of honor, and the entire club and a good many of its relatives and friends turned out to meet him. There were 500 of them at least, and each one had something to say to Mr. Clemens when she shook hands with him.

Some one who was looking on said that a good many "repeated" and went up twice to shake hands.

Mr. Clemens in the course of a long life has had other experiences in which college girls have had a part, and he was somewhat reminiscent. The girls he talked to yesterday were some of them grandchildren of other girls he had met in other days.

"I don't have to say anything, do I?" said one girl, who had not been able to think up an interesting remark, as she shook hands with the guest of honor.

"No, indeed," said Mr. Clemens, "I'm shy that way myself."

"I have been waiting since I was three years old for this," said another girl. "It was as long ago as that that my father pointed out the pictures in 'Innocents Abroad' to me."

"I bring a message from two little girls," said an older woman. "They want you to write another story as nice as 'The Prince and the Pauper,' and send them the first copy," and Mark Twain gayly promised that he would.

Mr. Clemens had promised to speak at the club, but, having a cold, asked to be excused. He was persuaded, however, to "tell a yarn."

They brought in a little platform that had been in readiness for the address, but he was not satisfied with it.

"I don't think that is high enough," he said, "because I can't tell what people are thinking unless I see their faces." Then at his request they brought a chair, which was placed on the platform, and he stood on it. The veteran author never spoke to a more appreciative audience.

"I am not here, young ladies, to make a speech," he said, "but what may look like one in the distance. I don't dare to make a speech, for I haven't made any preparations, and if I tried it on an empty stomach—I mean an empty mind—I don't know what iniquity I might commit.

"On the 19th of this month, at Carnegie Hall, I am going to take formal leave of the platform for ever and ever, as far as appearing for pay is concerned and before people who have to pay to get in, but I have not given up for other occasions.

"I shall now proceed to infest the platform all the time under conditions that I like—when I am not paid to appear and when no one has to pay to get in, and I shall only talk to audiences of college girls. I have labored for the public good for many years, and now I am going to talk for my own contentment."

Then Mr. Clemens told his "yarn."

It was a yarn about a walking tour with the Rev. Joseph Twichell that the public has found entertaining. The college women appeared to be entertained by it.

DAY BROKE MOST MERRILY.

Why the Audience at the Belasco Was Unusually Impressed.

David Belasco's carefully planned scene of the breaking of day in the last act of "The Girl of the Golden West," which takes three minutes of the act for the shading of lights, was presented on Monday night with effect so fitting that the audience, instead of sitting spellbound, let out a shriek of laughter.

"The day's breaking."

The audience took it for granted that the day had gone all to smash.

DINER AND SLEEPER IN ONE.

New Type of Car Tried by the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

A new type of combination dining and sleeping car is being tried by the Central Railroad of New Jersey in tri-weekly trips between Jersey City and Philadelphia.

The car, which was built by the American Palace Car Company, carries its berth furnishings in steel pockets under the floor. During the day it is furnished with chairs after the fashion of a parlor car, and all the necessary facilities, including kitchens, are provided for the serving of meals.

STREET SIGNS FOR QUEENS.

Joyful News for Policemen Transplanted from Town.

Borough President Bermel of Queens awarded contracts to the amount of $5,607 yesterday for street signs. Many of these will have to be placed on trees, fences, and gate posts in the rural parts of the old town of Newtown, Flushing, Jamaica, and the old Fifth Ward, which comprises the Rockaways.

The news was received with joy by policemen recently transferred from Brooklyn and Manhattan. Many a guardian of the peace has lost his way in the rural parts of the borough in a search for his precinct.

PRAISES SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

Mrs. Catt Calls Her the Greatest Woman That Ever Lived.

Teachers College students, mainly the feminine element, listened to a talk on Susan B. Anthony by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt yesterday afternoon. She spoke of Miss Anthony as the "greatest woman that ever lived."

"Thirty years ago," said Mrs. Catt, "Susan B. Anthony was the most ridiculed and derided woman living; but she died the best known and most beloved. Her life measures the changes in the life of woman. A century back woman had no rights, no privileges either in the churches or the colleges. She could not control property for herself, she could do nothing, but was forced to marry to avoid the disgrace and opprobrium attaching to the old maid. Further, the woman of those times had little or no social life, and clubs were a forbidden thing.

"All this was done away with by the work of Susan B. Anthony. She established women's organizations and gained for her fellow-women the right to be heard in public. There is not a woman in the world who does not owe a debt of gratitude to Susan B. Anthony."

Proposed Memorial to Miss Anthony.

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 3.—The Executive Board of the National Council of Women, in session here, will propose the erection of a memorial to the memory of Susan B. Anthony. Mrs. Harty Barb of Chicago, Vice President of the National Council of Jewish Women, reported that, in addition to the $1,500,000 donated by the Jews of the United States to Russia, members of her council donated $30,000 to the Jews of Russia.

One of the most beautiful ideas in machinery ever made is the Jacquard loom. It is so intelligent it almost thinks. It weaves regular patterns in silks and other fabrics, because it has been constructed to do automatically the sort of things that one would think could only be done by the close attention of a human mind.

A great advertising medium like The Ladies' Home Journal works like a Jacquard loom. It gives automatically the sort of discriminating salesmanship that only a highly intelligent, human salesman could give. It presents to the buyers of the home food products and dress-goods, household utensils and toilet articles, in close association with intelligent instruction on how to keep house, how to cater to the table and the other vital questions of the housewife's life.

The operation of presenting your goods to the women in these millions of homes is repeated in every home in such a way that the desire to buy is met by the willingness to buy and the ability to pay the price asked.

JAY GOULD WON FIRST GAME AT COURT TENNIS

Defeated J. J. Cairns of Boston in National Championship Tourney.

OUTCLASSED HIS OPPONENT

Jay Gould, the 17-year-old son of George J. Gould, made his début yesterday in a National Court tennis championship, defeating J. J. Cairns of Boston in the easiest possible manner. The pair met in the first round of the tournament at the Racquet and Tennis Club, and the brilliant playing of the young Lakewood expert stamps him as one of the most promising court tennis players in America. While Gould's opponent was not particularly strong, the victory was so pronounced that he has already been installed a favorite for premier honors. Gould won in three straight sets, 6-0, 6-0, 6-2. In the second contest Charles E. Sands of New York defeated Austin Potter of Boston, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4.

The opening of the tournament was made the occasion of a big society gathering, which followed the match with great interest. The galleries were filled long before the game began, and among the spectators were noticed Louis E. Larocque, J. H. Smith, H. K. Vingut, L. Gregory, H. M. Inman, Eben Wright, Harry La Montagne, George Vingut, C. T. Emmett, C. W. Vaughn, B. W. Leigh, H. C. Mortimer, H. M. Brooks, J. Clyde Clarke, Richard H. Williams, Morton S. Paton, De Forrest Weeks, H. R. Duval, G. E. Sancton, J. A. G. Beales, A. D. Irving, H. W. Slocum, and R. A. Rainey.

Gould, on yesterday's playing, could concede 30 to his opponent. He played in a listless, confident manner, and contented himself with lobbing during the three sets. He took Cairn's measure before he had been playing five minutes, and was not called upon to show his true form once.

The first set was a love one for Gould. In the fourth hand deuce and vantage was called twice before the young player won the point. He quickly added the 2 points, making the score 6—0. The first game of the second set was a vantage one, but Cairns was unable to take advantage of it, and Gould won. Twice only was Cairns able to reach 30 in the next four games, but in the sixth he led Gould 40 to 15. The latter made it a deuce set, and vantage was called twice before Gould could claim the set 6—0. Cairns won the first game in the third and final set, Gould going out of court twice. The Lakewood player annexed the five following games, but lost the sixth to Cairns after vantage had been called twice. Gould had no difficulty in capturing the final point and the match.

Austin Potter of Boston gave Charles E. Sands of New York, the present champion, an unexpectedly hard game. At the start of the first set Sands appeared to have the contest at his mercy, as Potter failed to tally a point in the first four games. Sands lost a chase in the fifth game, which gave Potter confidence, and he made the score 5—3, when he put the ball out of the court and lost the set 6—3. The second set found Sands at his best, and he ran out without any trouble. The third set was a ding-dong affair, each alternating in the lead. With the games 4—all Sands, after losing a chase better than 2, took a brace and ran out.

This afternoon Jay Gould will meet Joshua Crane, Jr., of Boston, the former champion. Crane is reported to be back in his old form, and the contest promises to be the best of the tournament. The winner will probably capture the championship. The summary:

National Championships.—First Round—Jay Gould, Tuxedo Club, defeated J. J. Cairns, Boston Tennis and Racquet Club, 6—0, 6—0, 6—2; Charles E. Sands, New York Racquet and Tennis Club, defeated Austin Potter, Boston Tennis and Racquet Club, 6—3, 6—0, 6—4.

TENNIS CAMP AGITATED.

English Association Wants to Change International Dates.

Serious complications have been brought about in the international lawn tennis tournament which threaten to put a damper on the Americans' interest in the forecoming matches. The English association wishes to change the date of holding the contests for the Dwight F. Davis Challenge Cup, moving them forward from the middle of July to the middle of June. Their object is to secure the playing of the American team in the All-England championships at Wimbledon, London, which begin June 26. Such a move would materially handicap the Americans, as the team would be compelled to leave this country by May 15, which is in advance of the beginning of the season here. They would therefore have little opportunity for practice. The arbiters of the American team believe that the players should reserve all of their resources for the cup contests. They are consequently unwilling that the Americans should compete in the All-England event. As a result cable messages have passed between the officials of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association and G. R. Mewburn, the Honorable Secretary of the English Lawn Tennis Association, during the past week without any decision being attained.

The desire on the part of the English association to make a change was brought to light in the communication sent to Frederick G. Anderson, the Chairman of the committee having in charge the details of the international team, requesting permission to enter the Americans for the All-England tournament, which begins on June 26.

In conferring with his associates on the committee, Dr. James Dwight and A. L. Hoskins, the latter having taken the place of Raymond D. Little, it was decided that the Americans would not play in any meeting or tournament while in England other than the actual competitions for the cup. This decision was arrived at because of the fact that Holcombe Ward, William A. Larned, Beals C. Wright, and William J. Clothier, the American team of last year, entered and played in the London championship, which Ward won, and also the All-England, in which they were either defeated or withdrew previous to the finals.

BROKAW PLAYED GOOD GOLF.

Garden City Player Made Best Score in Pinehurst Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3.—The first and second rounds of the sixth annual United North and South golf championship tournament were decided to-day. Keen play was the rule throughout the second round of the first division, in which four matches were won by the same margin, 2 up and 1 to play. The match of the day was between George T. Brokaw of Garden City and William C. Freeman of Montclair. The former's card of 77 was the best handed in. Freeman was dormie four at the fourteenth, but took the fifteenth and sixteenth holes, losing the match with a halved hole on the seventeenth.

The survivors of the first and second rounds are George T. Brokaw of Garden City, W. K. Wood of Homewood, Chicago; Oscar Woodward of Englewood, N. J., and C. L. Becker of Woodland, Mass., who will meet to-morrow in the thirty-six-hole semi-finals of the championship division.

New York players made a good showing in the other divisions. A. F. Southerland of Fox Hills won both matches by a narrow margin. H. B. Gordon of New York reached the semi-final round in the third division. R. S. Crocker beat L. W. Weeks of Storm King, N. Y., and A. Havemeyer, Seabright, N. J., won from J. O. Denny, Oakmont, Penn., for the consolation in the championship division.

GIANTS SHUT OUT COLUMBUS.

Western Men Could Not Touch Ames —Three Hits Off Ferguson.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 3.—The champion New Yorks received a pleasant greeting here to-day, the weather being the most delightful of their training tour. They got great practice this afternoon by defeating the Columbus team 5 to 0. There was not much hitting in the game. Robertaille, late of Pittsburg, held the New Yorkers down to one drive in the first three innings. His own error on Devlin's roller in the second inning failed to retire the side. Then he hit Gilbert, and Roger Bresnahan scored the third basemen with a slashing double to left. "Tom" Walker, with Cincinnati last year, worked out for the first time this season in the middle three innings for Columbus.

Ames pitched perfectly for the first five innings. Not a Columbus batter reached first base, the men being retired in one-two-three order. He used a drop very successfully when the occasion demanded. Ferguson, well known here from his connection with Louisville last year, received an ovation when he started to pitch. The score:

AMERICANS IN LEAD AGAIN.

Defeat Atlanta by Timely Batting in Second Game by 5 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3.—Although outbatted and outfielded by the local Southern League team in the second game with the Greater New Yorks of the American League to-day, the visitors were enabled to win by a score of 5 to 3. This result was due to opportune batting by Kleinow, and the fielding of "Pat" Dougherty, Williams, and Chase was the feature of the game. The score:

Manhattan College Baseball.

The Manhattan College baseball squad indulged in some hard outdoor work yesterday afternoon for the first time this season. Capt. Mahoney lined the 'Varsity up against the freshmen and had no trouble in winning by 10 to 4. The 'Varsity used three pitchers, Dugan, Harned, and Capt. Mahoney. Dugan allowed the freshmen but two hits in five innings. He has a good assortment of curves, plenty of speed, and splendid control. Harned had three hits made off him in three innings. He has good speed and wide curves, but is inclined to be erratic. Capt. Mahoney pitched the last inning, but did not exert himself.

Connolly looks like a fixture as catcher, as does Hanrahan and O'Donnell at first and second bases, respectively. At short Cullinan, Kittner, and Gleason are having a hard struggle. All are fast fielders, and the position will probably go to the hardest hitter. At third the best men are Boyleston, Deevy, and Schriber. In the outfield Keenan, Flanigan, Broderick, Linke, and Deeks are the most promising. From the showing of the men yesterday, Coach Mullen is confident of a victory over Brown on Saturday at Providence.

Columbia's First Baseball Game.

The Columbia baseball team will open its season this afternoon at South Field with a game against Pratt Institute. The team had its first outdoor work yesterday in a game with the scrub and showed fairly good form, considering the fact that it has had no real practice this year.

The pitching staff is promising; Kruger of the old squad is confidently expected to do good work again and Oxman is showing a form that stamps him as a comer. Lee is doing well, and Bradke, a left hander, may develop into a first-class man. Young will again go behind the bat and Miltenberger, a freshman, looks like the regular first baseman, unless he is alternated as a catcher. Armstrong and Collins will again play second and short and are safe men, while McCoy, a new candidate, is showing splendid form, third. Fisher, Truesdale, and Metzinthin are likely to be the permanent combination in the outfield.

Other Baseball Games Yesterday.

A week from to-morrow the National League championship begins, with the champion New Yorks playing at Philadelphia, Boston at Brooklyn, Pittsburg at St. Louis, and Chicago at Cincinnati.

The American League season starts on Saturday, April 14, with Boston playing the Greater New Yorks at American League Park, and Philadelphia at Washington. The season does not commence in the West until three days later.

After the opening games on Saturday, April 14, and Monday, April 16, the Greater New Yorks play twelve games away from home, four each at Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington. Upon their return they play Boston on April 30 and May 1, and then in succession meet Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago, and Detroit.

The champion New Yorks, after their first four games at Philadelphia and three games at Brooklyn, play Brooklyn four games at the Polo Grounds and Philadelphia four games. Then the champions go to Boston for four games, the two teams returning to the Polo Grounds for two games. Three games with Brooklyn on May 7, 8, and 9 will end the New Yorks' season in the East until Decoration Day, when they play two games with the Brooklyns at Washington Park.

The first conflicts of the local clubs will occur on May 4 and 5, when Boston plays at the Polo Grounds and the Philadelphia Athletics, the American League champions, at American League Park.

Eugene Demontreville, the old National League player, has been sold by the Toledo Club to the Rochester Club of the Eastern League.

"Cal" McVey, first baseman of the famous Red Stockings of Cincinnati in 1869, is now a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., and is hale, hearty, and prosperous. McVey, although nearly 60 years old, is still interested in the National game, and rarely misses an opportunity to see a contest in his home town.

Cure's High Billiard Average.

HOPPE WANTS A BONUS, WHICH IS REFUSED

Says That Billiard Promoters Owe Him Money.

TALK OF LEGAL PROCEEDING

Young Champion Said to be Bound by Contract to Play in Madison Square Garden.

William F. Hoppe remained firm in his declaration yesterday that he would not compete in the coming international billiard championship tournament, which starts on Monday night in the Madison Square Garden concert hall. This was despite the ultimatum of the six competitors entered for the honors at their meeting that he would therefore be debarred from challenging or contesting for the emblem which represents the world's championship at eighteen-inch balkline, two counts in balk. Another development of the controversy may take the nature of a legal injunction which may be secured by the billiard supplies concern, as holders of a contract with the young champion, which will prevent him from contesting in any billiard matches for at least a year. All this did not shake Hoppe's determination one jot.

George F. Slosson, Louis Curé, George Sutton, Ora Morningstar, and two representatives armed with proxies from Jacob Schaefer and Albert G. Cutler met at noon in the office of the manufacturers, promoters of the tournament. Charles P. Miller of the firm acted as Chairman, and it was announced that Hoppe would not be present. The players were told that Hoppe would not play without a bonus of $5,000, which the firm had refused. Their contract with Hoppe, signed by his father, as the youthful champion is said to be under age, was produced. In this Hoppe agreed to compete in such tournaments as the firm might promote. It was under this contract that Hoppe was entered as a contestant in the tournament. The contract is dated Dec. 16, 1905, a month previous to Hoppe's match with Vignaux in Paris for the world's championship at 18.1, and is the same as the manufacturers hold with many of the leading players.

The criticisms of the young champion were severe. After some discussion the following was incorporated in the playing agreement of the tournament:

> It is hereby further agreed that any player having entered as a contestant in this tournament, who shall fail to take part in this tournament for any cause other than physical disability, duly certified, shall not be eligible for future contests for the emblem, and in the event of any challenge from him, the same shall not be accepted by the holder of the emblem.

Hoppe's father, who acts as the manager of his son, snapped his fingers when he heard the action of the meeting. His claim was that the contract could not compel the young champion to play without compensation. That the $5,000 he asked was reasonable he indicated by the fact that Curé, the Frenchman, and Sutton, who has also come from Paris, were receiving sums of $3,000 and $1,800, respectively, for competing. That this was in the nature of expenses he denied, claiming that there was still owing him $1,000 gate money, which he had been unable to collect after Hoppe won the Paris short-stop championship tournament in 1904, and also $500 for his trip to Paris when he defeated Vignaux, and a like amount for his return to this city when he successfully defended against Slosson. He was offered $1,000 in settlement of this claim if he would consent to have his son play, but he refused.

The elder Hoppe further asserted that he did not wish to be bound by agreements, and he would challenge the winner of the tournament. Hoppe declared that Frank Ives, Jacob Schaefer, and Maurice Daly had all experienced the same trouble with the manufacturers—that it was because of such disagreements that Ives had refused to enter into tournaments during the last years of his life.

Unless the $5,000 bonus and $2,000 expenses and gate money were paid, Hoppe's father declared that Willie positively would not compete for the emblem. The manufacturers said that they would not accede to Hoppe's demands, and so the matter rested in a dead-lock last night. He will be duly scheduled for matches in the tournament, however, so as to make formal any legal action which may later be taken.

Sutton Begins Billiard Practice.

Playing excellent eighteen-inch balk line billiards, two counts in balk, George Sutton, the American professional who has recently returned from Paris, last night began practice at the Broadway Academy, Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway. Sutton defeated Fred Harrer by the score of 400 points to 228, finishing his string with an average of 10 28-38, and an unfinished run of 82. His other runs were 58 and 44. Harrer's average was 5 33-37. Sutton will continue his practice for the international championship tournament, which will begin next Monday night in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall.

EXPAND TRADE, SAYS SHAW.

Secretary of the Treasury Addresses Passaic Board of Trade.

Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw spoke on "Trade Expansion" at a dinner of the Passaic Board of Trade last night at the Passaic Club. The dinner commemorated the thirty-third anniversary of the incorporation of the city.

Mr. Shaw said in part:

"Our foreign commerce is four times as large as forty years ago, but we carry in our own ships only one-third as many gross tons as forty years ago. We have protected and encouraged every interest but our merchant marine, and every protected interest has flourished. We have every facility for international commerce except international merchants, international bankers, and international merchant marine. If we will take advantage of our opportunities, we will send these products of farm and factory under every sky, into every port, and make our financial centres the clearing houses for at least a fraction of the world's trade."

Victor L. Mason, President of the Board of Trade, was toastmaster. The guests of honor were Gov. Stokes, former Gov. Franklin Murphy, Senator Everett Colby, Mayor William H. Doremus of Newark, John Johnson, Mayor of Paterson, and Goerge L. Record of Jersey City.

FAVORITES IN FRONT.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Four favorites rewarded their backers by winning at Benning to-day, the other two events being captured one by an outsider and the other by a strong choice. Tickle was scratched in the handicap, which was the first race on the programme, and Daruma was installed as favorite, with Sterling in strong demand. The favorite had no difficulty in winning.

August Belmont's Nancy ran away with the second race, never being better than 1 to 5 in the speculation. In the third event the horses ran true to form, Parkville winning handily from Zany, Hanover Hornpipe just getting into the purse. Prince of Pilsen easily won the steeplechase, although he was badly interfered with at one of the hedges by Copper and pulled up lame.

An upset occurred in the fifth race, when Water Dog, as good as 10 to 1 at the opening, won in a hard drive from Winchester, with the heavily played Workman third. A cheap bunch ran in the sixth race at all kinds of prices. Grand Duchess was made the favorite, but there was generous play on Sir Brinkley, Flat, and Castor. Flat went out to the front early and never was headed. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Won by Daruma, 108 pounds, (Kent,) 6 to 5 and 2 to 5; Royal Window, 102, (Truebel,) 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Blue Coat, 106, (Robbins,) 12 to 1, third. Time—1:03 1-5. Sterling, Prospero, and Optical also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For two-year-olds; four and a half furlongs, old course. Won by Nancy, 102 pounds, (C. Morris,) 1 to 6 and out; Isidor Hirsch, 102, (Freishon,) 60 to 1 and 10 to 1, second; Moccassin, 99, (McDaniel,) 9 to 1, third. Time—0:58 2-5. Bush Hill and Prosperity also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, for four-year-olds and upward; six and a half furlongs, Columbia course. Won by Parkville, 105 pounds, (Diggins,) 4 to 5 and out; Zany, 110, (Robbins,) 3 to 1 and 4 to 5, second; Hanover Hornpipe, 107, (Truebel,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:24 4-5. Tomcod, My Grace, Blue Sky, Mettie, and Max Aron also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Steeplechase, for maiden four-year-olds and upward; about two miles. Won by Prince of Pilsen, 154 pounds, (Rodrock,) 6 to 5 and out; Saltine, 151, (Holman,) 20 to 1 and 5 to 1, second; La Danzada, 143, (Mr. Carle,) 15 to 1, third. Time—4:25. Harry Patton and Copper fell. Loney Haskell refused the Liverpool.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Won by Water Dog, 89 pounds, (C. Morris,) 6 to 1 and 3 to 1; Winchester, 97, (Noone,) 12 to 1 and 5 to 1, second; Workman, 109, (Shaw,) 13 to 5, third. Time—1:30. The Cure, Sals, T. S. Martin, and Nattie Bumppo also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; one mile, Columbia course. Won by Flat, 106 pounds, (Diggins,) 7 to 1 and 2½ to 1; Grand Duchess, 106, (Shaw,) 13 to 5 and 6 to 5, second; Castor, 103, (Klenck,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:44 2-5. Thombond, Nonsense, Pleasant Days, Ladsarion, Sir Brinkley, Winifred A., Gentian, and Society Bud also ran.

GALLOPS AT GRAVESEND.

Training Moves Were About the Best of the Spring.

The centre of training operations on the Long Island race tracks yesterday was the Gravesend course, where horsemen gathered from both Sheepshead Bay and Brighton Beach to witness the fastest work of the Spring season by several of the big stables, the gallops at the neighboring tracks being of a routine character, and showing no horses of note.

The most interesting moves at the Brooklyn Jockey Club's track were by the horses of Trainer Frank Weir's string, owned by Frank Farrell and D. C. Johnson. Of the Weir lot, the two Carter Handicap entries attracted the most attention. Roseben, the present favorite for the Carter and the top weight among the horses likely to start, having first place in the eyes of the watchers when he went the distance of the Carter, seven furlongs, in easy style, and pulled up breezing in 1:35, the gallop being the longest and best that the horse has had this Spring. Jacquin, also in the Carter Handicap, went a mile in clever style in 1:44 1-5. Keator, one of the successful sprinters of last season for Frank Farrell, was out for a smart move of seven furlongs in 1:30, and Clark Griffith, the star of the Farrell two-year-olds in 1905, had a good gallop of a mile, finishing cleverly in 1:49.

The Newton Bennington horses, trained by Fred Burlew, were out in sets, and while the older horses showed to advantage, the two-year-olds were sent some of the best and most impressive trials of the Spring for horses of their age. Demund finished a half mile in 0:50½ easily, while Cinna completed a like distance in only a short fraction of a second slower time, every watch held on the gallop making it better than 0:51. Disaster worked a half in 0:51, and Captain Emerick, Charada, and Yankee's Sister went over the four-furlong course in 0:51 3-5, while Bonasa did three furlongs in 0:36 3-5, and Arlington three furlongs in 0:37.

Of the older horses of the Burlew string Edna Jackson was sent a half mile easily in 0:49½, Water Bearer a half mile in 0:50½, and First Water three furlongs in 0:40.

The horses of the Boston Stable, Fred Lightfoot, trainer, had a brisk morning's work, Ostrich going a half mile in handy style, in 0:50, Palette three furlongs in 0:38, and New York three-eighths in 0:38½.

WHITNEY HORSES COMING.

Stable Will Take Up Training Again at Brookdale.

The arrangements which had been made at the Sheepshead Bay race track for the reception of the racing stable of Harry Payne Whitney, trained by John W. Rogers, and due in a day or two from the Whitney Winter training quarters at Aiken, S. C., have been disarranged by the announcement from the agent of the Whitney stable that the horses on their arrival from the South will be taken direct to Mr. Whitney's breeding and training farm, Brookdale, near Red Bank, N. J.

It is probable that the Whitney colors will not be seen in public before the Belmont Park meeting. The Whitney horses coming from Aiken number about thirty, and include Artful, Tanya, and the three-year-olds Burgomaster, Perverse, Timber, and Brookdale Nymph. About ten two-year-olds that wintered at Brookdale will be taken up by Trainer Rogers on his arrival.

Two racing stables from the South were arrivals on the Long Island tracks yesterday, the best known of these being the Tippah Farm Stable, trained by J. W. May, and including the horses of Paul Rainey. From Louisville, Ky., the stable of W. F. Schultz, numbering fourteen head, and including several smart winners of last season, landed at the Jamaica track.

AMERICAN ATHLETES SAIL.

Team Selected to Compete in Olympic Games Leaves for Athens.

Thirty-two of the thirty-four amateur athletes who were selected by the American Committee to represent the United States in the Olympic games at Athens, Greece, sailed yesterday on the North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa. Fully 2,000 persons stood on the pier waving flags and handkerchiefs to the team, and wishing them the best of luck, while the tug Robert Palmer, with several hundred members and followers of the Irish-American Athletic Club, escorted the steamer down the bay.

One absentee was Richard H. Sheldon, formerly of Yale, who was entered in the weight events. At the last moment Sheldon found that he could not arrange his business affairs so as to admit of his absence of two months, and he reluctantly stayed at home.

Manager Halpin arrived at the dock at 10 o'clock with the vanguard of the athletes, including the out-of-town men, who spent the night at the New York Athletic Clubhouse. The New York members of the team arrived singly and in pairs. For an hour before the bugle sounded "all ashore" the men held a reception on board. As the Barbarossa backed out into the stream the crowd on the pier cheered incessantly.

The team representing the United States has been picked from all sections of the country, and the best available men in each branch of sport were chosen. In addition to the thirty-two men selected by the American Committee another American, J. B. Connolly of the Boston Athletic Association, sailed on the Barbarossa, who goes on his own account. He will compete in the jumping events.

The Olympic games will begin April 22, and the American representatives, after reaching Naples, will go by rail to Brindisi, and by steamer to Piraeus, the port of Athens which they hope to reach by April 20. The athletes who sailed were: W. D. Eaton, W. A. Schick, Archie Hahn, H. G. Queryouze, F. R. Moulton, H. L. Hillman, P. H. Pilgrim, H. V. Valentine, C. J. Bacon, J. P. Sullivan, G. A. Bonhag, H. W. Cohn, M. Spring, W. Frank, J. Forshaw, R. L. Fowler, Myer Prinstein, J. D. Lightbody, H. M. Friend, E. C. Glover, R. G. Leavitt, H. W. Kerrigan, Robert Edgren, J. S. Mitchell, Martin Sheridan, D. A. Sullivan, Lawson Robertson, Ray C. Ewry, F. A. Bornamann, J. W. Spencer, E. R. Parsons, and I. Niflot.

HARVARD TO PLAY FOOTBALL.

Athletic Committee Decides to Continue Sport Under the New Rule.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 3.—The Harvard Athletic Committee declared to-day in favor of playing intercollegiate football during the season of 1906. The announcement was made tonight that at last night's meeting of the committee resolutions were adopted favoring the game under the revised rules recently compiled by the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee at its conference in New York.

The action of the Athletic Committee is subject to the approval of the Board of Overseers and the College Corporation before it will become effective, but inasmuch as these bodies have delegated to the Athletic Committee authority to solve the football problem, it is believed that the game will be played in the Stadium next Fall under the new rules.

In its statement the Athletic Committee says: "The committee has taken this action after a careful examination of the revised rules for football recently adopted by the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee. These rules seem to afford a reasonable assurance that a satisfactory game may be played under them, and the committee considers it desirable and expedient to permit the Harvard team to co-operate with other university teams in the endeavor to test and exemplify these rules in intercollegiate contests."

It was the general expectation here to-night that immediately after the Spring vacation Coach Reid will have a football squad out for practice.

N. Y. U. TO PLAY FOOTBALL.

Chancellor MacCracken Decides to Give New Rules a Trial.

The first tangible result of the effort of the National Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee to remodel the gridiron game and eliminate its evils was the formal announcement by Chancellor MacCracken of New York University yesterday that permission had been granted to the students by the authorities to continue football on trial for the period of one year. If the rules are found to eradicate the objections to the game it will of course be allowed to continue permanently.

New York University will, however, restrict the game decidedly. Only six games may be scheduled, three of which may be played at home and three abroad. The matches scheduled must be approved by the Faculty Committee, while it is probable that the new eligibility standards adopted by the big four universities will be enforced—prohibiting the playing of freshmen and of graduate students.

Yale to Play Rugby Football.

The postponed game of Rugby football between Yale and New York will be played at New Haven next Saturday. The New York team will be selected by the Eastern Rugby Union and composed largely of men who formerly played the game in Great Britain. Samuel Morse, Captain of the crew and football eleven, will lead the Yale fifteen, and J. S. Bell of Edinburgh University will captain the New York team.

Drag Hunt at Meadow Brook.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., April 3.—A drag hunt was given by the Meadow Brook Hunt here today in honor of the Radnor Hunt of Philadelphia. After an afternoon spent in the saddle a dinner was tendered this evening at the clubhouse. Both hunt and dinner were very successful, although it was the first time the club has been in the saddle for over three weks, owing to the unfavorable weather conditions. The meet was held at Westbury Station, where the pack was put on the scent. The course led across the estates of Robert Bacon, R. L. Beeckman, and Jay Phipps to Foxhall Keene's place. Here there was a check, the run then continuing over the Hitchcock place to the Powell farm, where it ended.

Harry Savage Page escaped injury in a nasty fall, due to his hunter, Cupid, stepping into an ugly hole, and throwing horse and rider heavily. Aside from a severe shaking up Mr. Page was none the worse for his experience. Mrs. James T. Kernochan, Mrs. J. E. S. Hadden, Mrs. J. Stevens, Mrs. E. T. Cushing, and Miss C. Bryce participated in the ride, and were well up at the finish. Other riders were P. F. Collier, Elisha Dyer, J. P. Grace, Morgan Grace, W. S. Cameron, R. L. Raney, William C. Haines, Harry Robbins, Taber Willets, Samuel Willets, J. S. Stevens, Warner Baltazzi, E. Willard Roby, and Herman B. Duryea.

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Rates, 6@12 Per Cent.

Heavy telegraphic transfers of funds, amounting in all to $1,250,000, to out-of-town points, coupled with an advance in call money rates to 12 per cent., two points above the rate attained on the previous day and higher than any touched since the first week of the year, were the chief developments yesterday of unfavorable financial import, but set against these were another flood of excellent February earnings statements from the country's great railroads, a sharp decline in demand sterling, bringing the exchange market to a basis measurably close to the gold import point, and, perhaps more important than all, continued optimism over the outcome of the strike in the bituminous regions and a probable strike in the anthracite territory. So far as the stock market was concerned the net result upon it of these conflicting developments was an irregular price movement, in which, however, the strong undertone so conspicuous on previous days was again prominent. The strongest features of the day's trading were again the copper shares and Union Pacific, and upon these issues the bulk of the day's business converged, with the result that in each instance substantial gains were made and in part retained. Southern Pacific was also consistently strong, ample explanation for the firmness in this issue, as well as in Union Pacific, being found in the February reports of these roads, where gains of $622,000 and $339,000 respectively in net earnings were revealed. Missouri Pacific developed much activity at the opening and rose sharply 2 points or more, this movement being due, apparently, to a concerted drive against the short interest in the stock, which fell back later, but closed the day with a gain. Consolidated Gas again broke sharply in the fore part of the day, but regained much of its loss in the afternoon session, the cause of the break lying, in part at least, in the signing of the eighty-cent gas bill by Gov. Higgins. The United States Steel issues were firm at all times, and other industrials which closed at advances included National Lead, International Pump, American Smelting and Hocking Coal and Iron.

Up to the close of business advices from the conference under way in this city between the anthracite operators and miners' representatives shed no light on the ultimate outcome of these negotiations, although Wall Street is fairly convinced that little or no concession may be expected from the operators, whose policy in the event of a permanent strike is understood to include an effort to operate their mines in the belief that the greater number of miners are wholly satisfied with prevailing conditions as to wages and hours of labor. The news of the failure of a comparatively unimportant Boston Stock Exchange firm was without effect.

Little surprise was occasioned by the day's advance in call money rates, in view of the quarter day disbursements still under way and the heavy transfers of money to out-of-town points, coupled with further losses to the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions, the drain thus far amounting to $1,804,000. The shipment of $500,000 to San Francisco was considered a part of the plan for the transmission of funds to Japan and that of $450,000 to New Orleans to represent Southern demands for crop planting purposes. In addition to the excellent earnings statements of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific there was also reported by the Pennsylvania an increase of $1,140,000 in February net on its eastern lines and of $257,000 on its Western lines, while the Denver and Rio Grande returned for the same month a net gain of $135,000.

A COLORADO FUEL ISSUE FOR PLANT EQUIPMENT

$2,000,000 Common and $4,000,000 Bonds to be Put Out.

WILL BRING IN $4,160,000

Stock Which is to be Sold is Part of $14,068,000 in the Company's Treasury.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company has determined to issue $2,000,000 par value of its common stock now in the treasury of the company and $4,000,000 par value of the 5 per cent., Series B, bonds of the Colorado Industrial Company, which are now part of the free assets of the Colorado Iron Company. The additional stock is to be sold to the stockholders pro rata at par, and the privilege is to be accorded to each subscriber for five shares of the stock to purchase $1,000 par value of the Colorado Industrial B bonds at 54. Thus for $1,040 a subscriber to the securities to be issued by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company will obtain $500 par value of the company's common stock and $1,000 par value of Colorado Industrial B bonds. The common stock is now selling at 66 and the debenture Bs at about 78. Counting the common stock at 66, the subscribers will get the bonds at about 71, so that the terms offered by the company, based on yesterdays' prices, show a chance for some profit.

The official circular announcing the proposed issue of securities states that the stock and bonds are to be sold to provide necessary funds for capital expenditures for additional equipment of the company's plants. The stock which it is proposed to sell to the stockholders is part of the $14,068,000 common stock now held in the company's treasury and reserved for the retirement of an equal amount of convertible bonds which are now outstanding. The privilege of converting these bonds into common stock will expire Aug. 1 next, after which date the stock reserved for this purpose will become a free asset in the company's treasury.

The circular says in the event that the entire amount of $2,000,000 par value of the common stock is not available for delivery on Aug. 8, by reason of holders of the debenture bonds having converted their debentures into the company's common stock, the right of the stockholders to subscribe for the stock and bonds will terminate. In that case it is provided that the 10 per cent., which under the terms of subscription is to be paid between April 16 and April 30, will be returned to the subscribers, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The right to subscribe will be limited to the period from April 16 to April 30, in which the initial payment of 10 per cent. will have to be made. The balance of the purchase price of the stock and bonds will not be payable until Aug. 8.

This plan, if successful, will give the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company additional cash to the amount of $4,160,000, which will be available for increasing the capacity of its plants. This is the first financing undertaken by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company since it passed absolutely into the control of the Goulds, following the refunding plan adopted in December, 1903, and the subsequent retirement of the Rockefeller interests from the company.

By the refunding plan adopted in 1903 and put through the following year, $13,600,000 cash was provided to repurchase for the company properties which it had sold to the Rockefeller interests. This cash was provided by the formation of the Colorado Industrial Company, all of whose stock is held by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. The terms of the refunding plan placed $7,933,000 par value of the Colorado Industrial, Series B, bonds in the treasury of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. It is part of these bonds which it is now proposed to sell to the Colorado Fuel and Iron stockholders.

BETHLEHEM STEEL PROSPERS

Surplus Enough in First Year to Pay Three and a Half Dividends.

The first report of the Bethlehem Steel Company was read to stockholders by Charles M. Schwab at the company's annual meeting in Newark yesterday. Mr. Schwab's figures show earnings for the past year of $3,313,920, out of which bond interest of the corporation and its subsidiaries were paid to the amount of $548,530, leaving a balance of $2,765,399. Dividends amounting to $521,780 were paid on the preferred stock in 1905, and $400,000 was written off for depreciation. After the discharge of all charges and interest payments the report showed a surplus of $1,843,619, which would pay nearly three and a half dividends on the preferred stock.

All but 97 shares out of the 300,000 outstanding were voted at yesterday's meeting. The $12,000,000 bond issue, underwritten by Harvey Fisk & Sons, who are to finance an extension of the rolling mills at Bethlehem, was ratified. George R. Sheldon, Oliver Wren, and Archibald Johnson, the retiring Directors, were re-elected.

CENTRAL PLANS A MERGER.

To Consolidate Indiana, Illinois & Iowa and Indian Harbor.

The New York Central management, it was definitely announced yesterday, has under consideration a plan for the consolidation into one company of the Indiana, Illinois & Iowa and the Indiana Harbor Railway Companies. The new company is to be known as the Chicago, Indiana & Southern Railroad, and upon the completion of plans now under consideration a scheme for the definite financing of these undertakings will be announced. It is said that the new company, the Chicago, Indiana & Southern, will issue both stocks and bonds and that the stock will be issued in exchange for the stock of the Indiana, Illinois & Iowa and the Indiana Harbor Railroad Companies.

The proceeds of the sale of bonds which it is proposed to issue will be used largely for the purpose of reimbursing the Lake Shore and Michigan Central Railroad Companies for the advances made in connection with the construction of the 100-mile line from Chicago to Danville. The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, or the Big Four, as it is known, one of the lines of the New York Central system, it is understood, will in the future run to Chicago over this line from Danville instead of over the Illinois Central, with which the Big Four has a trackage arrangement.

The Indiana, Illinois & Iowa has outstanding $5,000,000 of stock, in addition to $4,850,000 of bonded indebtedness. The Indiana Harbor Railroad is capitalized at $1,450,000, but the total cost of the road is estimated at $5,600,000.

EXPORTS OF MERCHANDISE.

The exports of merchandise from the Port of New York for the week were valued at $13,188,228, compared with $11,645,328 in the preceding week and $12,350,260 in the corresponding week last year. From Jan. 1 the exports aggregate $163,065,129, against $134,299,556 in the corresponding period last year.

FAILURES FOR THE QUARTER.

Statistics of commercial failures for the first quarter of 1906, compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., reflect the general prosperity. Fewer insolvencies are reported than in any year since 1900, and the amount involved was less than in most recent years, though by a combination of circumstances it was about 10 per cent. greater than in 1905. The figures follow:

Commercial insolvencies were 3,102 in number, with assets of $17,138,084 and liabilities of $33,761,107, compared with 3,443 failures in 1905, when there were assets of $17,573,643 and liabilities of $30,162,505. Manufacturing defaults were 902 in number and $13,032,171 in amount, against 776 last year for $11,946,091. Trading failures numbered 2,316, with liabilities of $14,048,422, against 2,575 failures for $16,336,736 in 1905. Other commercial failures numbered 94 and involved $6,680,514. In 1905 the 92 failures in this class embraced liabilities of only $1,870,078. Banking failures were 13 and were for $1,200,094, being only about half the 22 suspensions for $2,727,307 a year ago.

All Treasury Stock.

The COPETE CONSOLIDATED COPPER COMPANY is unique in the method of its organization. Other mining companies issue a large part of their stock for property or something besides cash, and when dividends are paid the stockholders who have paid cash have to divide with those who did not. Our Company starts with all its stock in the Treasury and no stock is sold or issued except for actual money.

All the earnings are divided among the stockholders, who pay actual cash for their stock.

The COPETE property has been famous for nearly a hundred years, and it has the indorsement of some of the best miners, geologists, metallurgists, and scientists of the world. Many eminent men and good judges have expressed the belief that we have a greater and better property than our famous neighbor, the Greene Consolidated Copper Company of Cananea, though the COPETE CONSOLIDATED has only one-tenth the capital of the Greene Consolidated.

Further particulars will be given and prices quoted on application.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Bull points from 26 Broadway are not as accessible as many persons seem, in all innocence, to believe. There is probably not more than one in a thousand bearing that label that is genuine.

***

Since March 5, when the stock sold at par, Amalgamated Copper has had a recovery of more than 13 points, and throughout this movement the Heinze contingent has been conspicuous for its silence. Its position in the stock has ceased to be a subject of interest to Wall Street, presumably because its position no longer matters. It seems to be generally taken for granted that the market for Amalgamated Copper is controlled once more by the old Broadway crowd. When the stock began to break badly from around 118, immediately after the announcement of the "Heinze settlement," the Butte crowd boasted that it got out above 115, and then a little later, with the stock still breaking, the information went forth that the Heinze following not only had got out at the top, but that it had thereupon gone short and was making money heavily by the decline. It is not the way of people who do things in the market on a large scale to boast of their successes. It is customary to let results speak for themselves. But this crowd from Butte boasted first of what it would do, and afterward of what it had done, and then, after Amalgamated Copper had sold at par, it suddenly ceased to boast at all. You hardly hear of it nowadays. The impression deepens that the Heinze contingent lost its market at the top and had to fight hard for much smaller profits than it expected to get. For a few weeks before the settlement and for about two weeks afterward the Butte crowd seemed to have the market by the tail all day and the town by the tail all night, and its doings were much thought of. Then, after Amalgamated Copper had sold at par, the limelight ceased to play in its footsteps.

***

***

There has not yet been any speculation to speak of in Butte Coalition, the stock which represents the "Heinze settlement."

***

Those who were hoping for a reaction yesterday on which to buy stocks were disappointed, and those who, with somewhat less reason on their side, were expecting a continuation of Monday's rapid advance, were also disappointed. After a very strong opening, the market became somewhat irregular, under extensive realizing. The general list halted. Aggressive strength was confined to a few issues, notably Union Pacific, which advanced to 159½, or to within 1 per cent. of its extreme high point in January, and Amalgamated Copper, which went to 113¼, the highest point of the recovery so far. The United States Steel stocks made a very satisfactory showing, advancing moderately in the face of heavy profit-taking.

The advance in prices since the middle of last week has been pretty rapid. It was obviously the part of good trading to seize profits, either on Monday's advance or in the first two hours yesterday, with a view to buying in again on recessions of 1 to 3 per cent., and speculators who began last to week to play the market for a sharp up-turn on technical conditions did so. Instead of falling back under such realizing, the market remained sufficiently broad yesterday, at the best prices, to permit of profit-taking on a large scale, and its behavior in this respect was extremely gratifying to the bull element. The response from outside, perhaps, has been a little disappointing. Commission house business was very little, if any, better yesterday than on Monday. Wire houses reported that local business was more active than that from the out-of-town offices. A fact which rarely gets the emphasis it deserves is that there has grown up of recent years a habitual trading element, demanding only that that stock be made active which alone, out of its own resources, is quite capable of supporting a market of 1,000,000 shares a day. This element responds quickly to fluctuations. It turns stocks over very rapidly in large amounts, and seeks always for the maximum of action.

Having made Tennessee Coal and Iron the highest-priced stock of its kind in the market, the crowd controlling it now declares that it will develop the property and make it one of the greatest in the country.

James H. Moore is expected back this week. He will doubtless project himself into the market and contribute prodigally to the gayety of things. It is his pastime.

Brokers affirm that the call money market is being influenced by the wiles of lenders. Some loans were called yesterday a little before 1 o'clock, whereas generally no loans are disturbed after 12 o'clock, and in the afternoon call money touched 12 per cent. Another and more chronic cause of flurries these days is that brokers seeking to get loans on undesirable collateral borrow a given amount of money several times before they find a lender who will take their security. The objection to the collateral thus hawked through the loan crowd is that the proportion of doubtful industrials is too large. A man wants to borrow, say, $250,000 on such weak collateral. He engages the money in the loan crowd, and then sends in his collateral, which is returned to him. He returns to the loan crowd and bids for another loan, and again his collatoral is returned as unacceptable. This may be repeated several times in the course of the day, and each time the broker with the undesirable collateral appears in the loan crowd he enters into competition with other brokers seeking loans on acceptable stuff.

It has become perhaps too convenient to refer from day to day to the weakness of Consolidated Gas as the result of investors' liquidation. Consolidated Gas is a stock that is, or has been, widely held by small investors, and for that reason the transactions in "odd lots," which are not reported on the tape, would give the most trustworthy clue to what investors are doing. An "odd lot" in Stock Exchange vernacular is anything less than 100 shares. Inquiry brings out the fact that the buying of Consolidated Gas in odd lots has become more conspicuous than the selling. The specialist in the stock reports that a lot of 100-share certificates are being split up into smaller amounts for investors who are buying it and taking it away. This will probably be a surprise to those who have supposed that small investors were in a state of panic. A shrewd trader who had been short of the stock for some time covered up yesterday and said that when a stock like Consolidated Gas became the football of the Stock Exchange floor crowd it was time for him to become careful. Several times in the last ten days it has been decided at a caucus of professional traders uptown to go in on the following day and "punch Congas." Each of these raids has been apparently successful, the stock yielding to the attacks of traders with so little resistance as to make some persons feel suspicious. The stock is easy to borrow, as it always has been with a large short interest outstanding. There is probably now a large short interest in the stock. A sharp recovery in the price of the stock in the last half hour yesterday, amounting to nearly 4 points, was managed at the expense of the short interest. Reports from the floor said that one aggressive trader did it alone, seizing an opportunity to attack those of his fellows who had been selling it short too freely.

Referring optimistically to the American market, The London Statist says: "Taking into account the very large issues, both of bonds and of shares, which have now been going on for about a year, it is reasonable to conclude that prices will range at a lower level than during the time when there were few and small capital issues. It will take time to place such large issues, and while the issues are unplaced they must command comparatively low prices so as to attract the bona fide investor. It is to be expected, therefore, that they will commend themselves to the European investing public, and that a considerable purchase of both bonds and shares will go on."

If after yesterday's halt the advance should be resumed and continue for a day or two there would arise a strong demand for a reaction on which people who had missed their market could get cheap stocks. Then if a good reaction should be longer delayed traders would resolve themselves into a reactionist party and try to force a set-back. If this combined pressure should fail to produce results, as has frequently been the case before, many would lose restraint and come in on a dangerous bulge, only to get a much sharper reaction than they were looking for. Yesterday was normally the day for a reaction. It failed to come. Reactions do not come on demand, but when they are long delayed they are apt to be sharp.

This time it was not Mr. Price, but lots of people thought so and sold May cotton yesterday on the break. The market opened unchanged to 3 points higher, May at 11.15 and July at 11.03. After some scattered buying of July on a rumor that a substantial long interest was concentrating in this option, which carried the price up 2 points, to 11.05, heavy May selling orders from Europe came in. Under blocks of 5,000 bales offered at a time prices tumbled down to 10.98 for May.

Many jumped to the conclusion that the bulls were selling out, wire houses received some orders to dispose of long cotton, local long liquidated on a large scale, and a good many stop orders were encountered on the way down. All this added to the pressure which bore down on May resulted in a decline of 17 points. The Continental selling orders were accompanied by orders to buy October, and this option advanced to 10.47 after opening at 10.43. With May at 10.97 and October at 10.47, the difference was only 50 points, whereas at the opening it was 72 points. May, which was 12 points above July at the opening, reached a parity with the latter option on the break, both months selling at 10.98 at the same time. A rally followed later in the day, May selling up to 11.07, going 6 points above July. The recovery was partly attributed to leading bull support. Dullness set in before the close, and with it a sagging tendency. May closed at 11.01, July at 10.96, and October at 10.40. Spot cotton declined 10 points, to 11.55, for middling, against 8.15 last year. The sales were 66 bales.

Stocks at the principle interior towns show a considerable decrease for the half week, the loss being 16,500 bales, against 11,600 for the same period last week, and an increase of 5,000 bales last year. New Orleans stocks are nearly cut in two by heavy engagements for export. Deducting the amount in course of shipment, the reduction is 112,000 bales from 272,000 bales to 160,000 bales. Exports yesterday were 49,000 bales from all ports.

The Liverpool market was dull yesterday, due, it is thought, to the approach of the Easter holidays. The Liverpool Exchange will be closed from Thursday, April 12, until the following Tuesday. New York Cotton Exchange brokers will to-day vote on the proposition to close for the same period, which will give them four days of rest. Liverpool spot sales were only 8,000 bales yesterday, 7,000 of which were American cotton. The price was unchanged at 6.04d for middling, against 42.8d last year. Imports were 13,000 bales; 10,000 American. Futures opened unchanged to 1 point higher, and closed 1 up on the near months and 2 up on the far.

Port receipts here were 22,197 bales, against 29,180 last week and 43,129 last year. Exports were 49,328 bales. Since Sept. 1 receipts were 6,753,606 bales, against 7,906,975; exports, 5,152,163 bales, against 6,413,326 last year. Receipts at the thirteen principal interior towns yesterday were 9,097 bales, against 14,521 last week and 23,203 last year. Thus far this week 23,631 bales, against 30,436 last week, and 61,121 last year. Shipments yesterday were 13,840 bales, against 18,328 last week, and 23,974 last year. Thus far this week 40,029 bales, against 42,029 last week, and 55,989 last year. Estimated receipts for to-day are Houston, 3,500 to 4,000 bales, against 4,514 last week, and 12,574 last year; Galveston, 5,000 to 6,000 bales, against 5,253 last week and 12,437 last year. New Orleans, 5,000 to 6,000 bales, against 8,227 last week and 11,987 last year.

Cotton Opinions.

SANGER & ETTELSON.—It appeared as if some of the spot people were testing the market. If so, the evidence of a powerful interest on the bull side in May delivery is more in evidence than for a long time past.

ATWOOD, VIOLETT & CO.—The discount of 60 to 70 points on Fall options has attracted the attention of those who favor the long side, and advantage was taken to some extent to switch from Summer options to the later months, and a narrowing of the differences has resulted.

T. A. McINTYRE & CO.—In view of the approaching long holidays and the continued absence of anything in the general situation to stimulate any new outside buying or frighten spinners into loading up with further supplies at these prices, there is little probability of anything better than a continued comparatively small and narrow traders' market, and we think the tendency will be more of a sagging one than otherwise.

HUBBARD BROTHERS.—As Liverpool advices were disappointing, it would appear as if the bulls thought they would let the market take care of itself, and the result was a break on May.

BAILEY & MONTGOMERY.—We believe that the weather news will be the only safe market guide for some time to come. Interest will soon concentrate wholly on the new-crop months, which will fluctuate from day to day, according to the weather news.

J. S. BACHE & CO.—Climatic conditions and the manipulations of the bull crowd will continue to be the price-making factors, and we still believe the market a purchase on declines.

Following are opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

The New Orleans market closed steady—May at 11.09; July, 11.19, and October, 10.35.

WHEAT—Not only was the Chicago Board of Trade closed, but three other grain markets as well—Kansas City, Toledo, and Detroit. The New York market was dull in consequence. A good demand was reported for spot wheat at Minneapolis, Duluth, and St. Louis, in which market offerings were small, with prices higher by ½@1c. The local market for wheat closed firm at the best point of the session—an advance of ⅛@¼c. The cash market closed firm, with No. 2 red quoted at 85⅝c, in elevator, and 88⅝c nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 88⅝c, free on board, afloat.

CORN—There was practically no business in corn at New York; May, however, sold to a small extent at 51⅜c, this being ⅛c advance, at which the market closed firm. This slight improvement was altogether an affair of sympathy with wheat. Exporters bought no corn, but the market for cash property closed nominally firm with futures, the latter at an improvement of, say, ⅛c. The cash article closed nominally at the following figures: No. 2, 55c, in elevator, and 52½c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 53¼c, and No. 2 yellow, 53¼c, free on board, afloat.

Traders Want More Coffee Points.

A petition has been presented to the managers of the Coffee Exchange, on Hanover Square, asking for an amendment to the trade rule which makes the price in coffee transactions jump 5 points at a time. A point represents one one-hundredth of a cent, and the five-point fluctuations at present recognized represent one-half a mill. The sixty signers of the petition want the rule amended so as to permit transactions at one point difference, which would allow movements of one one-hundredth of a cent. Old members say this would needlessly complicate trading.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Market Takes on a Firmer Tone.

Bethlehem Steel Makes a Sharp Advance—Coppers More Active and Generally Stronger.

Curb stocks became decidedly firm in yesterday's market, reflecting the improvement on the Exchange, though transactions were not greatly increased in volume, except among the mining shares. Bethlehem Steel, following the favorable report read at the annual meeting of the company, rose sharply from 28½ to 32 on sales of only 300 shares. Interborough-Metropolitan continued to show the strength it has manifested recently, and closed at 54, after selling 6,800 shares. Gains were general among the copper shares, though there were some fractional declines. United Copper sold up from 68 to 69⅝, the trading amounting to 10,000 shares. Granby was active, but lost ⅛ of a point on the day's trading, closing at 13⅛.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

The Price of Foundry Iron Said to Have Been Raised.

Foundry iron is stronger, according to latest trade advices, than has been the case for some time past. Several producers are reported to have raised their price 25 cents a ton. Sales for the week in this market aggregate 25,000 tons.

It is reported in the steel trade that a large Western railroad made an offer Monday for the entire steel rail output during 1907 of a large independent mill. The offer was made, according to report, at $28 a ton, but was declined. Authoritative sources place the amount of steel rail business now booked at within 500,000 tons of the entire output in 1905. The estimated unfilled tonnage in steel rails is placed close to the three-million-dollar mark, the largest on record for this season of the year.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, April 3.—Supplies of money were increasingly abundant in the market to-day, and the borrowings from the Bank of England were repaid. Discounts were easy.

On the Stock Exchange the tone was improved by the clearer political outlook and cheap money, though business was rather quiet. Consols were in fair request.

Americans opened firm and hardened to well above parity. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé and Union Pacific were the features on good New York support. Trading was fairly active, but prices closed easier.

Foreigners were cheerful. Japanese were strong in connection with the unissued balance of the last loan. The new scrip reached par, but closed a fraction off. Russians were dull on the reported terms of the approaching new loan.

Kaffirs were in good demand on moderate Paris support, but closed dull.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104⅝.

Bullion amounting to £52,000 was taken into the Bank of England to-day, and £209,000 was withdrawn for shipment to South America.

LIVERPOOL, April 3.—The Corn and Provision Exchanges here will be closed April, 13, 14, and 16.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—There was little response in this market to the strength displayed in New York. The public utility stocks, in particular, were neglected, but prices remained steady, excepting United Gas Improvement, which closed lower. The public appears afraid to deal in these stocks, because of the agitation of the question of competition and the "hold-ups" which have been so frequently practiced. The arbitrage stocks were alone active to-day, Reading, United States Steel, and Brooklyn Rapid Transit being liberally dealt in. Bell Telephone advanced 1¼ points on the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend.

There was some demand for Electric Company of America, and Lake Superior Corporation was easily bid up nearly a point. Near the close, Lehigh Valley, which had been depressed in the early trading, developed strength and more than recovered its loss. Westmoreland Coal was off 2 points, but West Jersey and Seashore was up ¾.

Total sales 24,801 shares.

MEXICO'S MONETARY AFFAIRS.

National Railroad's Report Shows Results of Currency Improvement.

The extent to which the improved condition of Mexico's monetary system is benefiting foreign capital invested in that country is indicated by the annual report of the National Railroad of Mexico, issued yesterday. This shows that the average price at which the Mexican dollar was converted by the company into gold in 1905 was 49.63 cents, compared with 46.230 cents in 1904.

The net earnings of the road showed for the year an increase of $432,210, and of this amount $151,718 was accounted for by the improvement in the price of silver. The gross earnings of the National Railroad of Mexico increased from $11,569,247 Mexican currency in 1904 to $12,755,722 in 1905. The surplus for the year, after the payment of all fixed charges, amounted to $412,239 gold, compared with a surplus of only $71,620 reported at the close of 1904.

The report states that the benefits expected from the reform of the Mexican currency, which went into effect in May, 1905, are being fully realized and that already the change has resulted in a notable improvement in business and in a large influx of foreign capital.

During the year, the report states, the "cost of property" account was credited with $239,021 gold, being the amount realized from the sale of most of the salvage of material discarded in connection with the change from narrow gauge to standard gauge on portions of the company's lines.

The subvention of the Mexican Government granted for the construction of the Matamoros extension was collected in cash to the extent of $1,800,000 Mexican, the balance, amounting to $200,000, being retained by the Government until certain improvements on the new line are completed.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders held yesterday in Salt Lake City the retiring Directors were re-elected, with the exception of J. G. Metcalf, who was succeeded by Robert Nunez. The end of the company's fiscal year has been changed from Dec. 31 to June 30.

The Mexican International, which also issued its report yesterday, showed a small decrease in net earnings and a substantial decrease in surplus for the year, which amounted to $604,861 gold for 1905, compared with $812,713 for 1904. The road's passenger earnings were decreased by the discontinuance of the through passenger service formally operated in connection with the Mexican Central.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 3.—The local money market continues firm. Call loans, 6@6½ per cent.; time loans on collateral, 5@5½ per cent.; time loans on mercantile paper, 5¼@5½ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 6 per cent.; New York funds, 15@16 2-3c discount; clearings, $36,122,682; balances, $3,718,911; Sub-Treasury debit, $173,478.

Brokers were well supplied with buying orders in the copper shapes this morning, and few offerings were seen at current prices. Trading has been on a considerably larger scale, and prices show advances all around. United Copper gained about 2 points, Utah sold at 65, Greene advanced to 31¼, and Bingham was active, selling above 41. Trading has been well distributed throughout the list, and there is very little profit taking to be seen. After the noon hour the market became more quiet, and some reaction was seen, but prices held well, and closed strong at the decline.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 3.—La Salle Street is looking forward to another upward movement in Chicago Subway shares, but it is not sure that it will come at once. President Wheeler of the Illinois Tunnel Company deprecates any such uplift as shattered the credit of the shares at the banks, and says that if any movement develops it will be entirely without his knowledge. Gossip says, however, that something is brewing.

For one thing, John W. Gates was in the city Saturday, conferring with officials. When he left several of his friends had the word that the stock could be put up to 60.

Boston Brokers Assign.

BOSTON, April 3.—The brokerage firm of Foote & French, with offices at 27 State Street, this city, announced its assignment to-day. The concern was represented on the Boston Stock Exchange. In trade circles it was said that the failure was not regarded as of great importance. The members of the firm are G. E. Foote and Arthur H. Gilbert. The assignees are Joseph B. Warner and Henry Wheeler, both of this city. The liabilities, it is thought, will not exceed $100,000.

CALL MONEY STILL CLIMBING.

It Reaches 12 Per Cent., the Highest Point in Months.

Call money rose to 12 per cent. in the last hour of business yesterday, the highest rate quoted since the early part of this year. The low rate of the day was 6 per cent., and the bulk of the borrowing, notwithstanding the sharp advance at the close, was done at 7 per cent. or less.

Time money was somewhat more freely available at 5 per cent. for all periods from sixty days to six months. The 12 per cent. quoted for call money yesterday is an unusually high rate for this season of the year. As high a rate has been reached by call money in the first week of April only twice in the last decade. The last occasion was in 1903.

Transfers of currency in large amounts were made yesterday to several interior points. The Sub-Treasury transferred $500,000 by telegraph to San Francisco and $450,000 to New Orleans. The latter is the first transfer to New Orleans made this season. Large sums were also sent to Boston by the banks direct.

Sterling exchange was firm early in the day, but eased off in the afternoon, when call money advanced. Demand sterling at the close was quoted at 4.8530. No new engagements of gold for import were made known, but international bankers said that they looked for further takings of the precious metal for New York account.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—Houston Oil common, which showed considerable weakness yesterday in the local market, sold down to 8 this morning. During the afternoon, however, it rallied somewhat, and touched 8½. There was no news to account for the selling movement. Some New York houses sent out bullish messages about the stock this afternoon, but the local market showed little response. Union Trust Company stock was bid for at 61. The last sales of this stock were in the neighborhood of 55, and a week ago 53½ was bid. There seems to be a better feeling toward trust company stocks generally.

While the general trading was active, the market was weak. Some of the usually inactive securities, however, under cover of generally declining prices, moved forward. Atlantic Coast Line rights lost ¼, rallying later to 5½. In the bond list Seaboard 4s dropped 2 points, Carolina Central rose ½, and Suffolk & Carolina 5s were also ½ up. United Railways free incomes declined ¼. Alabama Coal and Iron 5s dropped a point. United Railways free stock fell to 17½.

The market closed firm, but dull.

Sales: Bonds, $84,000; stock, 2,013.

FIGHTS HARRIMAN CONTROL.

Move for Wells-Fargo Directors Favoring Larger Dividends.

E. H. Harriman's control of Wells-Fargo & Co. is challenged in a circular which has been sent to stockholders by Walter C. Stokes & Co. of 66 Broadway. Mr. Harriman is said to own only a small part of the 80,000 shares of stock, but the Directorate is under his control. The circular sent out by Stokes & Co. asks for proxies to elect, at the annual meeting next August, Directors who favor the payment of larger dividends. It is asserted that the surplus earnings which have been allowed to accumulate in the company's treasury amount to about $15,000,000.

The minority spoken for by W. C. Stokes & Co. contend that the earnings of the company would warrant the payment of an annual dividend of at least 40 per cent. The express company has been paying dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. on its capital of $8,000,000. It operates on 45,000 miles of railroad, and, in addition to its express business, controls the Wells-Fargo banks of New York and San Francisco. The San Francisco Bank had a capital of $500,000, a surplus of $5,750,000, and undivided profits of $9,666,545 last year. The New York bank is a less important institution.

Mr. Stokes refused yesterday to give out the text of the circular, but it was learned that one of the recommendations will be a stock dividend of 100 per cent. He said that the circular did not necessarily indicate dissensions among the stockholders. It simply voiced the belief of many that the earnings warranted larger annual disbursements to the stockholders. The Directors, he thought, would increase the dividend rate as soon as it was demonstrated that this was the desire of the majority.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

In a decision by I. F. Fischer, the Board of United States General Appraisers overruled yesterday a protest involving the values to be placed on automobile motors and other parts of cars. The name of the importer was not divulged, but the articles were exported by O. H. Jones of Paris. When the motors and other parts reached New York, Collector Stranahan declined to accept the invoice values as correct, and demanded duty on a valuation nearly 100 per cent. higher on the ground that the advance approximated the foreign market prices of the merchandise. Unless the full Board of Appraisers reverses the decision made by Mr. Fischer below 50 per cent., the seizure limit, the articles will be confiscated by the Government.

General Appraiser Hay wrote a decision reversing the action of the Collector of Customs at Chicago in raising invoice prices on X-ray tubes exported to this country by Myl Ehrhardt of Berlin. Duty will accordingly be levied on the values as originally invoiced.

Mr. Hay also wrote a decision affirming the Collector at San Francisco in raising invoice values on importations of empty quicksilver bottles exported by Lewis Berger & Sons, Limited, of London.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

R. E. GASKELL COMPANY.—The R. E. Gaskell Company, dealer in mill supplies at 44 Dey Street, is in financial difficulties and Judge Clinch of the Supreme Court yesterday appointed Joseph Beihilf receiver of the assets, fixing his bond at $15,000, on the application of Robert E. Gaskell, President, and Walter B. Bliss, Treasurer and manager, on the ground of insolvency. The liabilities are $23,347 and nominal assets $16,177, the principal items of which are bills receivable $10,602, stock $4,277, and cash $540. The business was started about ten years ago by the firm of A. Van Vechten & Co., who were succeeded on Feb. 6, 1904, by the A. Van Vechten Company, with a capital stock of $20,000, and the name was changed on Jan. 9, 1906, to the R. E. Gaskell Company.

USONA LIGHT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Usona Light Company, manufacturer of incandescent mantles at 247 to 251 Third Avenue, by these creditors: Union Gas and Electric Fixture Company, $606; Columbia Gas Fixture Company $152, and Harry J. Joel $668. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, has transferred merchandise and accounts, and called a meeting of creditors. The business was started in December, 1904, and was incorporated on Sept. 20, 1905, with a capital stock of $100,000. Henry Kreuder became President and Treasurer and William Mahler Vice President. Morris Kamber, attorney for the petitioning creditors, said that the liabilities are about $27,000 and assets probably $20,000, mostly in machinery and plant. The trouble was precipitated by some of the creditors pressing the company for payment of their claims, and the company did not have ready money to pay them, as most of the money had been invested in machinery.

ALBERT GREEN.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Henry B. Barnes, Jr., receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Albert Green, manufacturer of millinery novelties at 36 Bond Street, and fixed his bond at $1,000. It was stated that he recently offered to compromise with his creditors at 20 cents on the dollar, but could not carry out the arrangement. The liabilities are $6,500 and assets $1,500.

UNIVERSAL KEROSENE ENGINE COMPANY.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed George F. Murray receiver in bankruptcy of the assets of the Universal Kerosene Engine Company of 6 to 10 First Street, and fixed his bond at $2,000. The liabilities are now said to be over $40,000 and assets $4,000.

ALPHONSE MAJOR CEMENT COMPANY.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Samuel J. Goldsmith receiver in bankruptcy of the assets of the Alphonse Major Cement Company of 461 Pearl Street, on the application of William E. Hills, and fixed his bond at $2,500.

A FEW REASONS WHY
Leonia THE IDEAL SUBURB ON THE SLOPE of the PALISADES

AFFORDS A GREATER OPPORTUNITY FOR QUICK PROFITS ON A SMALL INVESTMENT THAN ANY RESIDENTIAL SECTION AROUND NEW YORK

¶ It is 15 minutes by trolley cars from 130th Street Ferry; five minutes from Erie R. R. Station, via 23d or Chambers Street. On completion of the North River tunnels, railroad and trolley connections will bring Leonia within 20 minutes' ride of the tunnel terminals in Manhattan.

¶ It is beautifully situated and commands magnificent views. Architecturally it is being developed on most artistic lines. No cheap, tawdry houses will be permitted on the property.

¶ The improvements are of a superior character. There are fine wide macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, gas, electricity, water supply, and other modern conveniences.

¶ We have spent a great deal of money in developing the property, and will spend a great deal more to build it up quickly. Six months from now LEONIA will be one of the finest suburban towns in New Jersey.

ONLY TWO OF THE ELEGANT HOUSES JUST COMPLETED ARE UNSOLD, BUT WE ARE BUILDING MORE AS FAST AS WE CAN.

SISTERS DIE TOGETHER AS THEY HAD LIVED

One a Victim of Heart Disease, the Other Inhales Gas.

WERE PENSIONED TEACHERS

Clara Francfort Was Writing a Romance in Which the Heroine Was Elina, Her Sister's Name.

For many years Clara and Elina Francfort, spinsters and retired school teachers, had lived together. Miss Clara was 75 years old and Miss Elina 65. Both were of quiet disposition and kept mostly to themselves. On more than one occasion Miss Clara said to her sister in the presence of others:

"Well, Elina, we have been together so long that I guess when one of us dies the other will go, too."

"That would certainly be in sympathy with the way we have lived," the other always said.

In the last year Miss Clara had suffered from heart trouble. Her physician, Dr. Carl Theobold, attended her at her rooms, at 113 East Eighteenth Street, and told her recently that the end was near. Yesterday morning he informed her that she was about to die. She said she was ready. So did her sister, Elina.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Agnes Thomas, who manages the boarding house in which the sisters lived, detected the odor of gas. She and a maid investigated and found that the gas was escaping from the room occupied by the two sisters. They told Policeman McClary, who was on duty at a building opposite, and he forced the door.

The policeman found Clara on the bed. Elina was sitting in a rocking chair with a gas tube held to her mouth by a cloth bandage, with the jet turned on full. Both were dead.

Coroner Shrady said he thought Clara had died of heart trouble, and that her sister had committed suicide. The women's friends were sure that rather than live without Clara, Elina, upon finding her sister dead, had sought death also.

An examination of the room showed that the sisters were comparatively well to do. It was found that the sisters owned four Baltimore & Ohio bonds bearing interest at 4 per cent. and valued at $10,500, and that they had an income by will from Mrs. Matilda C. Weill, who is supposed to have been their sister. A check for $66.42, dated Dec. 26, 1905, paid by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and another for $48.75, dated Feb. 1, 1906, and paid by the National City Bank, were also found. In addition to this both women drew pensions as teachers.

Clara had been writing a romantic story, called "A Mother's Wish." Some of the manuscript was found in the room. It was a story of love troubles, in which the heroine, after surmounting many obstacles, at last married the man she loved. The heroine's name was Elina.

In spite of the testimony of the Coroner, there was a disposition among many of the morbid to insist that both sisters had agreed to commit suicide and had done so.

Coroner Shrady said last night that he had a will left by Miss Elina disposing of the $500 due from the Teachers' Fund at her death and several letters, with a note addressed by Miss Elina to "The Corner," in which she requested him to give the contents of the will and the letters to the press. The will, which was dated Oct. 9, 1905, declared that the $500, in the event that Clara died first, was to be divided as follows: $100 to the Catholic Home for the Aged, $100 to the Chapin Presbyterian Home for Old People, $100 to the Jewish Home for Old People, $100 for the care of the grave of our late sister, Mrs. Mathilde C. Weil; $100 for the expenses of my funeral."

At the bottom of the will was this note: "My sister and I have agreed that the above is the best disposition of the $500 from the Teachers' Fund. I witness the will." This was signed by Miss Clara.

SAYS WIFE PLAYED POKER.

Divorce Suitor Blames Cards for His Domestic Unhappiness.

Mrs. Gertrude Moss, through her counsel, Alfred and Charles Steckler, applied to Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court yesterday for $1,000 counsel fees and $50 a week alimony, pending the trial of the suit brought by her husband, Hyman Moss, a clothing manufacturer, for a separation. Several affidavits were filed on both sides. Moss asks for the custody of his two children in opposing the motion. He is represented by Benjamin F. Feiner.

Moss, according to his affidavit, attributes his marital troubles in part to cards, which he declares his wife played for money, losing so much that she was obliged to borrow from friends to make good. Moss says that up to Sept. 23, 1905, he and his wife lived at 400 Manhattan Avenue. On that day, he declares, Mrs. Moss was unusually solicitous about his well-being when he went to business in the morning, kissed him twice, and said she would have a nice little supper ready for him when he returned in the evening.

When Moss got home late in the afternoon there was no answer to his ring. He entered and says he found the flat bare of everything except his evening clothes and silk hat. He went downstairs and asked the telephone girl what had become of his wife. She seemed surprised at the question, and replied that Mrs. Moss and the two children had gone South, and that it was supposed in the house, from what Mrs. Moss had said, that Mr. Moss had gone West. Moss then went to the home of his parents, at 1,857 Seventh Avenue, and has been living there ever since.

The plaintiff declares that he has since learned that Mrs. Moss sold the household furnishings, paying with a part of the sum realized debts to persons from whom she had borrowed money to make good her losses at poker.

Justice Newburger reserved decision on the application.

WANTS AN M. O. ICE PLANT.

Hearst Alderman Also Asks Protection for the People Against City Railway.

Alderman H. C. Peters (Hearstite) wants to have the city establish a municipal ice plant. He offered a resolution at the board yesterday proposing that the city go into the ice business in opposition to the American Ice Trust, and he declared the city could make ice for 50 cents a ton and sell it for $1.50, as against $2.50 asked by the company. The resolution went to the Committee on Laws and Legislation, which will think it over for a while.

Alderman Peters and Alderman Levine offered resolutions attacking the rule of the New York City Railway compelling passengers to get their transfers at the time they pay their fares. The resolutions protest against the rule and ask for opinions from the Corporation Counsel as to how the Aldermen can protect the people against the company. Both were referred to the Committee on Railroads.

The board gave $20,000 to Health Commissioner Darlington for a tuberculosis sanitarium at Otisville and $125,000 to Police Commissioner Bingham for repairs to police stations. An appropriation of $25,000 was passed for the improvement of the Rivington Street baths; $800,000 was given to the Fire Department for firehouses and $120,000 for fire engines.

The board passed Alderman Davies's resolution asking the Committee on Finance to consider all of the requests of department chiefs for automobiles. The committee also will consider the establishment of a municipal garage and machine shop.

PATRICK CASE PUT OFF.

Motion for a New Trial Is Postponed for Two Weeks.

A two weeks' adjournment to complete the preparation of expert medical testimony was asked for by Assistant District Attorney Garvan yesterday, when the hearing on the motion for a new trial in the case of Albert T. Patrick, now under sentence of death for the murder of William Marsh Rice, was resumed before Recorder Goff, in General Sessions.

Ex-Judge Olcott protested on behalf of Patrick that several witnesses had been brought from Texas, and that it would be an injustice to the defense to keep them waiting two weeks. A session will be held this afternoon for the purpose of taking the evidence of those witnesses, whereupon the hearing is to be adjourned for a fortnight.

It was said yesterday that among the witnesses brought here are Corp. Alexander B. Stanberry of the Thirteenth United States Infantry, Court Stenographer McKenzie of Houston, and former Chief of Police Blackburn of the same city. Stanberry has been sent from the Philippines by the Government for the purpose of giving his testimony. He is now on Governors Island.

FOR THE INQUIRY BUREAU.

Mayor Approves the Bill Giving the Controller Reports He Wants.

Mayor McClellan has approved the bill providing for the creation of a Bureau of Statistics and Investigation in the office of the Controller. He returned the measure to Albany yesterday with a memorandum of his approval.

The Mayor objects to the mandatory feature of the act, and believes the Controller already has the means for getting the information sought under the measure, but he accepts the measure. It provides that all officials, boards, and corporations receiving money from the city for public purposes shall furnish to the Controller all reports he may call for relating to the work done, the services rendered, and the disbursements. The Controller, before making any appointments to the bureau, has assured the Mayor he will have the grades established by the Board of Estimate and the Aldermen.

MAY CHOOSE ERHARDT TO SUCCEED HAINES

FEAR HAINES WON'T QUIT

Attorney General Won't Allow Action Against Him for $1,000,000 Accounting.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Reform Association, which seeks to better the association by working from the outside, met at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday. Most of those present were women.

It was announced at the meeting that the Attorney General of this State had refused permission to begin an action against President John P. Haines and other Trustees of the society for an accounting for $1,000,000 alleged to have been received by them for the work of the society. The Attorney General gave as his reason the fact that the society was itself conducting an inquiry into the matter.

Resolutions adopted hinted that an effort to retain John P. Haines as President was suspected. It was impossible, however, to find any tangible ground for this suspicion.

Joel B. Erhardt, ex-Collector of the Port of New York, was mentioned as the possible successor of Mr. Haines. It is quite possible that Mr. Erhardt will be made President pro tem. when Mr. Haines retires, on April 15, to serve until the annual meeting next Fall. Arthur Turnure made that suggestion at yesterday's meeting.

"Mr. Erhardt will serve us, and do it thoroughly and well," said Mr. Turnure. "He has his own business, and does not need this position. He is likewise the only man available who has had any experience with the management of the society, and has the executive ability as well."

The chief thing done at the meeting was the passage of a set of resolutions. They were read by Josephine Redding, the Secretary of the Reform Association.

These resolutions declared that blackmail in the society had not been prosecuted, stating that the case of an employe found guilty by the Trustees had been prevented by the Rev. Percy S. Grant from being taken before the District Attorney. The vote to pay to President Haines $12,000 back salary while he still rested under charges of mismanagement were also cited by the resolutions, which further declare that the S. P. C. A. is a society in name only.

The resolutions aver, in conclusion, that, "as the Trustees of the A. S. P. C. A. have effected no substantial reforms in the first three months of this year, and the majority of the Trustees seem to be still in sympathy with Mr. Haines's methods, there is reason to believe in the truth of a rumor that the intention is to ignore present complaints, on various pretexts, to collect the dog license fees, wait for public indignation to subside, and re-elect Mr. Haines as President; and that this reform association warns the public of this possible event, and calls upon persons generally interested in the cause of animal protection in Greater New York to unite with this association to prevent such a calamity, by the irresistible force of public opinion."

"We propose to merge into the parent body again when we have attained our end," said Mr. Turnure. "There is, unfortunately, nothing to be done from within the society. The members have had no say."

Mr. Turnure thus explained the action of the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant again: "In one instance, when a case of fraud was pointed out and the suggestion made that the matter be referred to the District Attorney, Mr. Grant opposed it, explaining that there were bigger frauds committed in the city than this. Still, other members of the board knew full well that if the case were brought before the District Attorney a conviction could have been brought about. My information is obtained from Mr. Erhardt, who declared in open meeting that he would not be bound to secrecy."

The meeting adjourned for a week.

FOR A CHINATOWN PARK.

Doyers and Pell Streets in Chinatown are to be wiped out and replaced by a municipal playground, if the Board of Estimate accepts the recommendation made yesterday by the local board of improvements of the Bowling Green district. The cost is estimated at less than $500,000. The Chief Engineer of Borough President Ahearn's office has been instructed to prepare maps for submission to the higher board.

The resolution to lay out the playground was adopted after two public hearings, in which all the vices and virtues of Chinatown were exposed or exploited by a dozen or more speakers. Two or three women found nothing in the conditions to be condemned, but representatives of the Health and Tenement House Departments reported adversely, and Dr. Parkhurst sent word that the district should be wiped out in the interest of morality.

Mrs. Ida M. Beyser of 25 West Thirty-fifth Street, Bayonne, who said she owned 16 Pell Street, declared it an outrage to suggest the condemnation of her property. She was still talking when a man who said he was Mr. Beyser pushed to the front of the crowd in the old council chamber in the City Hall, where the hearing was held yesterday.

"Don't believe a word that woman says," he shouted; "she is my wife, and by collusion with a Brooklyn lawyer she robbed me of that property and then sued for a separation. The house is a well-known gambling house. It has been raided several times, and only on Saturday last a man committed suicide there."

BINGHAM WANTS $3,000,000.

Thinks the City Should Build New Police Stations All Around.

Police Commissioner Bingham has prepared a plan for the reconstruction of practically all of the police stations in the city at a cost of $3,000,000. He will soon present it to the Board of Estimate. He proposes that all save half a dozen of the houses be abandoned, new sites selected, and new buildings erected.

Although the Mayor and most of the members of the Board of Estimate agree that the police stations of the city are in bad condition, it is not believed there is much chance of getting such an appropriation for the work at this time. Commissioner Bingham spent more than an hour with the Mayor yesterday going over the situation.

"We were just seeing that the signals worked properly," said the Mayor afterward. He was asked about the $3,000,000 the Police Commissioner wanted.

W. K. VANDERBILT, JR., BACK.

Tells How He Was Mobbed in Italy and Talks of Auto Contest.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who was mobbed recently in Italy while touring the country with his wife in an automobile, arrived in New York yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm. Mrs. Vanderbilt returned with him.

"The report that I was attacked in Italy is quite true," said Mr. Vanderbilt, "but the story that I drew a revolver is untrue. The police were very prompt in dealing with the Italians, and the trouble was soon over. We ran into a child, but I am very happy to say that it was not injured. It was an accident, pure and simple, and no one regretted it more than I."

Mr. Vanderbilt was asked if he had any news as to the races for the Vanderbilt Cup this year. He said that many foreign automobilists would undoubtedly enter, but added that he was not able at this time to say who the contestants would be. He would enter a machine, he said, but as yet did not know whether he would drive it himself.

Some of the other arrivals on the Kronprinz were W. B. Anderson, J. W. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Church, Dr. and Mrs. John Davis, Dr. Cooper R. Drewry, Lieut. William T. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lee, Lady Evelyn Mongrieffe, and Dr. Virgil C. Piatti.

Just as the Kronprinz was docking, a baby boy was born to Mrs. Bertha Thober of New York. The mother and child remained on the liner last night. They will be taken to a hospital to-day.

TENANTS FIGHT LANDLORDS.

Campaigns Against Rent-Raising in Williamsburg and Manhattan.

What is likely to be a bitter battle between landlord and tenant was started last night in American Hall, at 116 Cook Street Williamsburg. Landlords from Manhattan have bought up considerable tenement house property in Williamsburg and have announced that beginning May 1 rents would be increased from $1 to $3.

The prime movers in the fight against the increase have interested more than fifty labor organizations in Brooklyn, and all these labor societies had large delegations at the meeting and all pledged money to aid in the fight.

M. L. Cohen, a tobacco dealer, who recently led the fight among the rebellious tenants in the big apartment house at 90 to 100 Cook Street, presided. He said the "Landlords' Trust" must be crushed. It was learned that a sort of boycott was going to be organized, and it was announced that a permanent Tenants' Protective Organization would be formed soon.

The rent-raising question on the lower east side is to have a hearing in the Thirteenth District Municipal Court on Madison Avenue Friday morning, when about ninety people who live in the tenements at 233 to 237 Cherry Street will respond to eviction notices given them yesterday. They held a meeting last night in the home of Mrs. Ida Ozof, at 237 Cherry Street, and talked about the case. A meeting in response to 10,000 circulars in Yiddish sent out to tenants in Brooklyn was held for the same purpose at American Hall, 116 Cook Street, Brooklyn, last night.

$2 POOLROOM RAIDED.

A Sign Read That Smaller Wagers Would Not Be Taken.

Some of Capt. Hodgins's men raided yesterday afternoon in West Fifteenth Street an alleged poolroom, the management of which, according to a sign confiscated by the police, is very haughty. The sign read:

Detectives Rayner, McCarthy, Maher, and Shephard adopted burglar methods to get into the place. They grabbed the doorkeeper before he could raise his voice, and sent him away to the Tenderloin Station. Then they pried open the heavy inside door with a jimmy, and surprised the inmates of the alleged poolroom. There was a wild scramble to get out when the detectives walked in. Two men were arrested on the charge of aiding and abetting in the operation of a poolroom. The names of the others were written down.

The doorkeeper said he was William Lewis of 771 Eighth Avenue, and the other two prisoners said they were Thomas Cogan, 18 Sixth Avenue, and Robert Peavey, 22 Jane Street.

The room was on the first floor of a four-story brick building near Sixth Avenue. The afternoon shoppers gathered about the place in crowds to ask, "What is it?" When that question was answered they asked more. They went away a long time after the patrol wagon had gone.

INQUIRY INTO FIRE ROW.

Bingham Calls for a Report—Croker Wants His Men Let Alone.

Police Commissioner Bingham called yesterday for a report on the clash between the police and firemen at Monday night's fire under the second Manhattan arch of the Brooklyn Bridge. Chief Croker added to his observations on that occasion these further remarks:

"If the police would only attend to their own business and leave us to attend to ours, we could get along much better together. The firemen are better judges of the condition of their fellows than the police, and know when it is proper to send one of their number to the hospital. Very often a fireman is overcome with smoke, but recovers so that he is fit to work. Sometimes we have to use force to keep men from returning to the fire. We are not in a ladies' business."

Chief Croker warmly declares that only reporters bearing police cards and sent there on business and doctors when needed should be allowed within the fire lines.

WHY TRANSFERS ARE FEWER.

More Through Lines, City R. R. Says—Subway Takes Long-Haul Passengers.

Officials of the New York City Railroad Company account for the decrease in the number of transfers issued to passengers in 1905, as compared with 1904, by saying that through routes have been established, carrying people where they want to go without the trouble of changing cars. The street surface lines are now doing more short-haul business, it is stated, since the opening of the Subway, leaving the long-haul traffic to the underground and elevated lines.

President Vreeland said yesterday that the predictions made before the opening of the Subway were now being fulfilled. Many additional passengers were finding room on the Broadway and other lines who, before could not be accommodated for short distances, he said.

REBUFFED LICHTENSTEIN.

Coroner McDonald of the Bronx held an examination yesterday into the cause of the death of the wife of Police Sergeant Robert R. Craig. She was killed in an automobile accident at 172d Street and Jerome Avenue on March 9.

The Sergeant and his wife, with their three children, were out automobiling on that day, their chauffeur being Alexander T. Cummings.

It was said that another automobile operated by Fred S. Welch of Pontiac, Mich., and occupied by Sol Lichtenstein, the bookmaker; Mrs. Lichtenstein, and Frank McDougal, a broker, struck the front wheel of the Craig vehicle, causing it to run into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Craig was thrown out and killed, while Sergt. Craig's right arm was broken. The three children were badly shaken up.

The occupants of the Welch vehicle denied to-day that their machine had struck the Craig automobile. Both Mr. Lichtenstein and McDougal said if they had thought so they would have returned to the scene of the accident instead of putting on speed and getting away.

The jury found that Mrs. Craig came to her death through an error of judgment on the part of Welch, but both Welch and Cummings were exonerated from any criminal intent. Both chauffeurs, who had been under bail, were then discharged.

After the hearing Mr. Lichtenstein offered to shake hands with Sergt. Craig and extend his sympathy for the death of Mrs. Craig.

"The time to have extended your sympathy," said the Sergeant, "was at the time of the accident."

DE FERE'S TICKET WINS.

Directors Elected in N. Y. & Eastern Telegraph & Telephone Company.

At the annual meeting of the New York and Eastern Telegraph and Telephone Company, held at the office of the New Jersey Title Guarantee and Trust Company, Jersey City, yesterday, control of the company passed to the hands of Paul E. De Fere of 5 Nassau Street. He elected his Directors in opposition to the ticket presented by D. A. Reynolds, President of the Great Eastern Telephone Company.

De Fere voted 810 shares of stock at the meeting, and Reynolds voted 705. The Directors who were elected include Jefferson B. Conley, John B. Cooney, George Fleming, James Fenwick, John F. Ince, S. H. Mildenberg, and William Shirden. The New York and Eastern Telegraph and Telephone Company was incorporated in 1894, and in the same year obtained a permit from the old City of Brooklyn to engage in business there. The permit provided that some part of the work must be completed by Jan. 1, 1895, with instruments in place for independent service.

Objects to Pure Food Bill Clauses.

J. M. Peters, Chairman of the Committee on Legislation of the Drug Trade Section, New York Board of Trade and Transportation, has written to the Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce of the House of Representatives, objecting to certain features of the Pure Food bill now pending. The letter says that the law should give manufacturers opportunity to be heard in cases where adulteration or misbranding of foods is detected, and says it will require the relabeling of practically every liquid medicine.

Police Pension Fund's Growth.

The annual statement of the police pension fund has been forwarded to Mayor McClellan. It shows that the annual liability of the fund increased $159,240 during 1905. The fund ran so low last year that in November and December it was found necessary to collect 2 per cent. of all department salaries, as provided for by law. The statement shows that, while thirty-seven widows on pensions died last year, only one remarried.

DISORDER AT THE MINES; COLLIERIES UNDER FIRE

REFUSE TO SURRENDER ARMS

Band of Armed Miners Stop Work at a Colliery and Threaten to Kill Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., April 4.—Striking miners living near the Fernwood breaker of the Hillside Coal Company have resorted to firearms, and for two nights a force of fifty workmen and twelve guards inside a stockade have been under a fire that was heavy at times.

The bullets have come from East Boston, a mining settlement near by, most of the 300 residents of which are Italians. Nobody has been hurt, but the laborers became so alarmed that it was decided to call for assistance from the State constabulary.

Sergt. Garwood and two troopers who rode to the colliery on patrol this morning were asked to disarm the villagers. The attitude of the Italians was so threatening that Garwood reported to his headquarters, and reinforcements were sent. Sergt. Dimon with ten troopers soon arrived and started a house to house search for weapons. While they were getting three guns in the first house the people from the other house ran into the woods with their weapons.

The search was then given up, but before he went away Sergt. Dimon issued this threat through an interpreter:

"If there is any more shooting at the Fernwood colliery during the night I will return with my troopers in the morning and burn down this village."

It was not an idle threat, for the coal company owns the houses, and has authorized the troopers to burn them.

About seventy-five Italians, armed with guns and pistols, drove away the workers at the colliery attached to the West End breaker at Mercanaqua this morning. According to Supt. Fillmore they threatened to shoot any man who refused to quit. Then they marched to the top of a culm bank, planted a red flag, opened a keg of beer, and held a jollification. He and three other officials visited them, and they told him they would shoot any man who tries to work at the washery to-morrow morning.

Officials of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company have received reports of other disturbances. A miners' train at Minersville was partly destroyed by fire during the night. The Burnside breaker at Shamokin was stoned by breaker boys. A stick of dynamite was found beneath the wheel of a cabin car which stood on a siding at an ash pit.

IRWIN, Penn., April 4.—There was a clash to-night between the guards of the Pennsylvania Gas Coal Company and a crowd of 150 men any boys, and as a result Lieut. Rheades of the guards was struck on the head with a stone. The coal company immediately had more guards sworn in.

The guards had been patrolling the railroad to keep the strikers from molesting the men at work. To-night three men who said they represented the railroad company ordered the guards off the track. When the guards refused to move stones were thrown by the crowd gathered about. The mob was finally dispersed.

Last night was one of disorder and terror at Edna Mine No. 2 of this company. The strikers all seemed to be armed, and from dark until daylight a continuous fusillade was kept up. No one was injured. It is considered unsafe to introduce strike-breakers.

ROBBINS'S ORDERS DEFIED.

Illinois Managers Refuse to Close Collieries—Offer of Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 4.—General Manager Locukes of the Illinois collieries of the Pittsburg Coal Company, has informed F. L. Robbins that he will not sign the scale and start the mines in Illinois as ordered. The manager of the Spring Valley Coal Company of Illinois, also a subsidiary concern of the Pittsburg Company, is also said to have given notice that he either will not or cannot start the mines. An employe of the Pittsburg Company, when asked about this matter, said:

"Just state that Mr. Robbins will attend to their cases."

Only forty-one mines of the Pittsburg Coal Company in the Pittsburg district were operated to-day and twenty remained idle. The Monongahela Coal Company, an auxiliary concern, had twelve mines working and fifteen idle. It is reported that additional mines will be started to-morrow.

President Patrick Dolan has issued an appeal to the miners to go to work. The question of starting the mines was taken up by the miners' convention here to-day, but after an all-day squabble nothing was done. The miners are uncertain as to who are their legal leaders. The fight between Dolan and his opponents may cause the whole district to close down for a time.

The independent operators, who have not joined with Robbins in signing the scale will not sign until they have sold the coal they had stored up in case of a strike. There is much bitter feeling against Robbins for not permitting a general strike, as the independents had stored large quantities of coal and had thought to sell it at a large advance.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 4.—The State Board of Arbitration offered its services to-day to the miners and operators of Illinois.

The board submitted two propositions, first that the operators and miners hold a conference in the presence of the State Board of Arbitration and endeavor to settle differences; second, that both sides submit the matter to the State Board of Arbitration to adjudicate the differences.

President Perry of the United Mine Workers of Illinois declared that the miners were willing to accept the first proposition. Secretary Bent of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association said: "I cannot say just now what the operators will do."

PRESIDENT'S HANDS OFF.

Says He Cannot Appoint a Commission to Consider the Strike.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4.—John Y. Winder, President of the Ohio Operators' Association, to-day gave out part of a letter he received from President Roosevelt, in which the President, replying to the request that a commission be appointed by him to settle the miners' strike, says:

"To appoint a commission to meet with the miners and operators as you request would necessitate action on the part of Congress. As yet I am not prepared to say what action I personally will or can take in the matter."

WASHINGTON, April 4.—It is stated at the White House that the President has replied to the telegram received from the coal operators. While the text will not be made public there is authority for the statement that the President has decided not to interfere as long as conditions remain as they are.

DUNN AGAINST ODELL.

Thinks Republican Committee Will Act After Legislature Adjourns.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 4.—Col. George W. Dunn, ex-Chairman of the Republican State Committee, to-day let it be known that he had not made peace with ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr. Col. Dunn went to New York City last week, and met Mr. Odell at Republican headquarters. There was talk afterward that they had patched up all differences.

"There was nothing strange or wonderful about our meeting," said Col. Dunn to-day. "I was in New York and wanted to see the Binghamton newspapers. I went to Republican headquarters, and when I went I did not know that the Governor was in town. I met him there. We talked for a few minutes, but the talk was not about politics."

"Is it so," he was asked, "that a meeting of the State Committee is to be held soon after the adjournment of the Legislature?"

"I believe that is so," he replied.

"And the important business of that meeting will be the consideration of the election of a State Chairman?"

"Yes," he said.

Congressman John W. Dwight of this district may be the man chosen to make the fight against Odell. It is said that his name is receiving serious consideration from all the State leaders.

DUNNE NOT DISCOURAGED.

Municipal Ownership Plans to Proceed, He Says—Problems Ahead.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—"I am not discouraged by the result of yesterday, and municipal ownership plans will proceed," Mayor Dunne said to-day.

"What will be done in regard to the Mueller law certificates?"

"There is no doubt in my mind of their validity. We cannot do anything until they are tested."

"What about the test case?"

"It will be taken into court immediately on my return. There will be an absolute guarantee."

"Now that the city is prevented from operating street cars, will you revive the contract plan under which a corporation was to be given the rights in trust for the municipality?"

"I don't want to go into that at present. My programme will be mapped out at Saturday's conference. We will first have to get possession of the roads before we can operate."

"How long will it take to get municipal ownership?"

"Well, it will take two years at least to rehabilitate the lines. They must be put in first-class order. I have not had time to figure on what will be done. It is, I admit, absolutely necessary to put the roads in first-class condition first."

TRAIN TAKES LONG LEAP.

Jumps Switch and Ditch and Lands Upright in Woods—Seven Injured.

NORFOLK, Va., April 4.—The "Cannon Ball," a fast passenger train on the Norfolk & Western Road, bound from Richmond to this city, was wrecked between Norfolk and Suffolk to-day by running through an open switch at Juniper Siding. The train took an extraordinary leap across a ditch and brought up, without overturning, in the woods beyond. Seven persons were injured.

The train jumped the track, then leaped an adjoining ditch, and ran headlong into the neighboring woods before it stopped. The engineer was picked up with a broken leg twenty feet from the engine. He was also badly shaken up. The train careened, but did not turn over, and was not burned, as first reported. No one was killed. Those most seriously injured were Engineer Noble and Frank E. Wood of Norfolk, the express messenger on the train, who was hurt internally.

Vice Consul Viosca Vindicated.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Charges against James Viosca, the American Vice Consul at La Paz, have been investigated by the State Department and the Navy Department, and the result is a complete vindication of Mr. Viosca. It was charged by Charles Pauson, who was employed at the United States naval coaling station at Pichilinque Bay, and who died a short time ago, that Viosca withheld part of the pay of employes at the station.

Shropshire Sues for False Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 4.—The Grand Jury to-day dismissed the charge against Clyde Shropshire, formerly Vice Consul General at Paris, who was arrested several days ago on a warrant sworn out by R. S. Bullock, Cashier of the Fayette National Bank, accusing him of forging the name of his wife to a note for $400. Shropshire immediately filed suit for $100,000 against the bank for false arrest.

MISS CORELLI'S BROTHER KILLS HIMSELF HERE

Had Been Prosperous Once, but Died in a Humble Room.

KEPT HIS LITERARY TASTES

And Always Looked the Gentleman, Though He Had to Do Laundry Work to Live.

Henry Cody, who always described himself as a brother of Marie Corelli, the English writer, was found dead yesterday in a basement room at 216 West Thirty-sixth Street. His body was found in a chair, with his head fallen over on the right arm upon a small table. The man's pipe, with the ashes half spilled, was at his elbow. Gas filled the room from a jet evidently turned on purposely.

Cody did not often speak of his sister, although in literary discussions with the few friends he made he admitted that he was her brother. One of many letters from England found in his room yesterday, written upon fine paper and in the hand of a cultivated man, read, in part, as follows:

Dear Harry:

Our house used to be called Roslyn Villa, but when I took it over I changed the name to Corelli in honor of our illustrious sister. I am afraid, however, that riches and fame are not conducive to linking the members of families closer.

With love and kisses from little Rita.

SIDNEY.

This letter was dated May 30, 1897, and the stationery was marked "Corelli, Elm Grove, Southsea."

The name "Cody" was either an assumed name or the man was only a half brother of the novelist, although evidence is strong that he was her full brother. That he was possessed of an instinct for literary pleasures and along with it a deep love for the mother country was shown in the few belongings in the dark cellar room he called his home.

His mantel shelf was filled with the works of Thackeray, Dickens, Cooper, other standard writers, and a full set of Marie Corelli's books.

Under the low ceiling, which scrapes the hats of men of average height, and above his little treasures of books was a bronzed plaster cast of a lion. This and a picture of Lord Roberts occupied the most conspicuous points of the four dingy walls. Near the emblem of his native country was a faded photograph of a woman with an English cast of countenance, a woman with the wide, sweet mouth Du Maurier drew for his character, "The Duchess of Towers." On its back was written "Dolores."

Near the little group of well-worn books, his plaster lion, and the face of the woman was hung a clipping containing this poem by Rose Harriet Pastor, now Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes:

Fame!
What's in the name
To make men hurry and scurry so,
To make them hanker and worry so,
Rushing forever past friend and foe,
Rushing so madly through maddening crowd
Heedless of human hearts crying aloud;
Hearts that are hungry and still theirs are proud;
Passing the true for the profitless gain,
Giving up all for the naught of the name—
For Fame!

The man also had in his room a picture of a child with a dog resting its muzzle upon her lap, an engraving of the painting by Briton Riviere, R. A. On it was written: "How to find out if you're educated—Do lonely dogs follow you?"

In an album given him by his mother when he left England for Canada in 1869 with Governor General Lisgard to serve him as private secretary was written an affectionate inscription which told this part of his story.

Cody came to New York from Canada when he had saved some money, and opened a cigar factory where Wallack's Theatre now stands. He later opened a restaurant in Forty-second Street, near Broadway, and made money fast. Later he started up a series of laundries, and from these made money. But he was a quick spender, a lover of ease and luxury, and fond of betting. He lost his money rapidly at the races and at the billiard table.

When he began to reach 60 ill-health came upon him, and he was unable to exert mind or body to any great extent. As the last of his money slipped through his fingers for the necessities of life he rented the dark cellar room in West Thirty-sixth Street and began to do laundry work for those in the neighborhood. No ray of sunshine could possibly force its way to the one window under the sidewalk, and the only flower he could grow and did grow there and care for was a fern. This was flourishing in the sunless window when the body of its owner was found yesterday morning.

Hard as were his days in the cellar, Cody was always a gentleman. When he climbed the steps to the sidewalk for a walk in the morning his trousers were always creased, his coat was well brushed and sitting neatly on his shoulders, his mustache was well combed, his face was clean shaven, and he carried a cane in his right hand.

When he was found he looked as if he had merely fallen asleep over an interesting volume, his head in the bend of his arm, bowed before the picture of Dolores, his little row of books and the plaster lion.

His one or two friends in the neighborhood came and looked at him, took off their hats, passed their hands over their chins, and went away, saying nothing.

MAJOR PRICE IS GUILTY.

He Is Reprimanded for "Conduct Prejudicial to Good Order."

Major David Price of the Artillery Corps, who was arrested in Syracuse on Feb. 9 on a charge of intoxication, has been found guilty of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" by the court-martial that tried him. As to the specification that he neglected to perform his duty of inspecting the troops in the State, he was also found guilty, and he is sentenced to be reduced five files on the list of Majors of the Artillery Corps, and to be reprimanded in orders by the reviewing authority.

In the reprimand, an order issued yesterday by Major Gen. Grant, in command of the Department of the East on Governors Island, Major Price is censured severely for his conduct at Syracuse. The whole case is reviewed in Gen. Grant's order.

The findings of the court-martial are that while Major Price was guilty of the charge of conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, he was not guilty of the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and was not guilty of the specification "breaking the pledge" or of the specification getting drunk in Syracuse.

O'KEEFE'S ODD ARREST.

Gossip Says High Police Official Stumbled Upon a Poolroom.

Driving through the precinct governed by Capt. Stephenson of the Mercer Street Police Station yesterday, Second Deputy Police Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keefe of Brooklyn reached Bond Street during the hours in which horse races are run. He thought he saw a friend in a barber's shop just off Broadway, but the barber told him he was mistaken and suggested that he go up stairs.

The Deputy Commissioner started to act on the suggestion when, he says, George Monroe of 110 Second Avenue barred his passage, and made even more strenuous objection to his going up when O'Keefe showed his badge.

O'Keefe called Policeman Freer from Broadway and had Monroe arrested and taken before Magistrate Steinert in Jefferson Market Court, where the prisoner was defended by Lawyer Henry J. Goldsmith.

There was a great buzzing in the courtroom when the Deputy Commissioner appeared.

"What right had you to go into the building?" asked the Magistrate.

"He went in to lay a bet," said a spectator who was not detected.

"I won't answer that question—I refuse to answer," said Mr. O'Keefe.

"Discharged," said the Magistrate.

Mr. O'Keefe hurried to his carriage, declining to discuss his experiences further.

BANKER ASSASSINATED.

J. B. Burdett of Eufaul, I. T., Shot on His Porch.

Special to The New York Times.

EUFAUL, I. T., April 4.—President J. Burdett of the Eufaul National Bank was assassinated on the porch of his home here late last night. His body was found in the yard, where he had evidently tumbled after he was shot. Bloodhounds have been brought here by deputies from Muskogee.

Mr. Burdett was interested in many other enterprises besides the bank. Four years ago a large mercantile establishment here belonging to him was burned, evidently by incendiaries, with a loss of $250,000. Last Wednesday evening he confided to a friend that he feared he would be assassinated, but he gave no reason why any one should want to harm him.

Burdett was elected a member of the Eufaul City Council yesterday, but if there was any political quarrel of a nature which would lead to murder it is not generally known among Burdett's friends.

Mr. Burdett carried life insurance policies aggregating a quarter of a million dollars.

ALL DESERT DOWIE.

Men Whom He Depended Upon for Aid Fail Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—John Alexander Dowie was deserted to-day by the two men in Zion City whom he had depended upon to assist him in deposing General Overseer Voliva.

Deacon V. V. Barnes, Dowie's General Counsel, wired to Dowie refusing to act on his instructions to cancel Voliva's power of attorney and install instead Fielding H. Wilhite. The message further contained a threat that the administrative body of the church would use documentary evidence against Dowie.

> Advised that the powers of attorney not effective. Titles to all real estate and personal property passed on Monday. Instruments conveying same executed by your attorney in fact, Voliva. Am powerless to assume control. Feeling strong against you here. Recommend that you remain there until you can receive and consider particulars and full reports from me.

Overseer Voliva would not admit today that any move had been made for Dowie's arrest, as was rumored in Zion City.

AN EXCITING WEDDING.

Bride's Father Taken Ill and Her Hat Set on Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, April 4.—Miss Wilhelmina Smalley and William Silzer were married to-day at the parsonage of the German Reformed Church in spite of the fact that just a few minutes before the ceremony the bride's father, William Smalley, who was to give his daughter away, was stricken with paralysis.

The father having rallied a little when the time for the departure of the couple for Philadelphia came, the party proceeded to the Pennsylvania Railroad station. Just before the train pulled into the station some one threw a torpedo, which alighted on the bride's hat, struck a steel buckle, or some other hard substance, and exploded. Immediately her hat was in flames. The bride's hair was singed a little, and she had to proceed on her trip to Philadelphia without a hat.

MET DEATH SAVING A NICKEL.

Express Company Man Killed Crossing the Elevated Tracks.

Edward L. Berger, an employe of the Knickerbocker Express Company, at Morris and Rector Streets, was struck by a south-bound Sixth Avenue elevated train at the Rector Street station, last night, and thrown to the ground. He was dead when Policeman Phaney of the Church Street Station reached him.

Berger had just finished work, and had started to go to his home, at 314 East Sixty-second Street. George Stark, who had relieved Berger of his duties and who identified the body, said that Berger, who was at work on the south-bound platform, remarked to him as he climbed down from the platform and started across the tracks to get to the north-bound platform where he could get his train:

"Here is where I save a nickel, old man."

'RATE BILL' PARAGRAPH CUT OUT BY BREWER

The Justice Amends the Supreme Court Decision.

DUE TO PUBLIC COMMENTS

Definition of Functions of Federal Departments Was Taken to Have Bearing on Pending Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—That part of the Supreme Court's decision in the Michigan tax case which was thought by some commentators to have a bearing on the Rate bill is no longer in the decision. As soon as Justice Brewer saw the newspaper comments on it he went straightway to the clerk's room and scratched it out.

The decision was handed down on Monday. On Tuesday morning came the newspaper comments. It was on the same morning, and immediately after reading the papers, that Justice Brewer cut out the paragraph, originally written as follows:

> In the Nation no one of the three great departments can assume or be given the functions of another, for the Constitution distinctly grants to the President, Congress, and the Judiciary separately the executive, legislative, and judicial powers of the Nation. It may therefore be conceded that an attempted delegation by Congress to the President or any Ministerial officer or board of power to fix a rate of taxation or exercise other legislative function would be judged unconstitutional. But does it follow that a State is subject to the same restraint?

In the place of that paragraph Justice Brewer has written: "Whatever the rule in the Nation—"

When Justice Brewer read the newspapers and found that he had been put in the light of appearing to give advice to Congress, he immediately set to work to retrieve himself.

Some of the best lawyers in the Senate deny that the decision affected the rate-making question in any way. They point to Justice Brewer's action in striking out the paragraph as conclusive proof of their position.

THE FIRST MACKEREL IN.

"Cap'n Sol" Jacobson of Gloucester Got Them, as Usual.

"Cap'n Sol" Jacobson, skipper of the Gloucester fishing smack Nicholson, sent to Fulton Market yesterday the first Spring catch of mackerel, as he does every year. As usual, he sent word by telegraph that he had run a broom up to his foremost truck to show that he beat out the other fishermen.

Fifteen barrels, containing about 8,000 mackerel, reached the market early yesterday and sold rapidly for 25 cents a pound wholesale.

"Cap'n Sol" landed the fish last Saturday off Cape Henry and quickly put in to Fort Monroe with the catch to beat out the other fellows.

The first mackerel that reached the New York market last year were received on April 10. It was "Cap'n Sol's" catch and consisted of thirty-four barrels. The friends of the Captain believe he has some special agreement with the mackerel family by which he manages to meet the fish early every year.

The Fulton Market fishing fleet is now cruising southward in search of bluefish, which have been running late this year.

HOT SHOT FOR METCALFE.

Theatre Manager's Attorney Denounces Critic at Albany Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—The bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Gardner of Brooklyn, which seeks to give relief to James S. Metcalfe, who is barred from most of the New York theatres, was the subject of a hearing to-day before the Senate Codes Committee.

Edward Aaron, attorney for Manager Burnham of Wallack's Theatre, who is President of the Managers' Association, claimed that the bill as drawn permitted any person to enjoy all the privileges of a theatre, but made no provision for the purchase of a ticket. The committee said they thought it was "reasonable cause" for refusing admission if any one refused to first buy a ticket.

Mr. Aaron said Metcalfe was not barred because he wrote unfavorable criticisms. "He is not a critic," said Mr. Aaron. "He is a maligner and slanderer."

Metcalfe, who sat by while this was said, appeared in behalf of the bill. He said it would tend to give rights in theatres, which were, in fact, public places, not only to himself, but to many other citizens.

NEW BANK INQUIRY PLAN.

Senator Stevens Inspires a New Bill for a State Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Disappointed in his plans to have the Senate institute a thorough investigation into the State Banking Department, Senator Stevens to-day had Assemblyman Nevins of Wyoming introduce a bill for a commission of three to conduct the investigation, the Governor to make the appointments. The commission is required to inquire into the operation of the banking law, the administration thereof by the State Banking Department, and the manner in which the inspection and supervision of banks, trust companies, and other institutions and individuals has been conducted, and also to consider the advisability of revising or amending the banking law.

The bill appropriates $10,000 for the expenses of the commission. This will require its reference to the Ways and Means Committee, in whose charge is the Andrews-Parker bill sent over by the Senate.

NEW YORK JOB FOR CHAFFEE.

The General Writes That He Is Likely to Accept Public Office.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 4.—A letter from Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, who, with Mrs. Chaffee, is now in Mexico, received by friends to-day, says that the General will not come to Los Angeles to live, as he had intended, but will proceed to New Orleans, from which place he will start for New York on April 7.

The letter says that Gen. Chaffee has received the offer of an important public office in New York City, and that it is likely he will accept it. No intimation was given in the letter as to the nature of the position tendered.

Mayor McClellan, in December last, offered the Police Commissionership to Gen. Chaffee, and when he declined it appointed Gen. Bingham.

BROADWAY HEARS DUEL TALE,

And, Anyhow, Bernhardt's Representative Has Gone Back to France.

The theatrical district of Broadway was interested in a duel story yesterday. It involved Fred Mayer, who came to this country as personal representative of Sarah Bernhardt, and has now returned to Paris.

Broadway heard that M. Max, leading man of the Bernhardt company, and Mayer had been in collision at the Greenwald Opera House, New Orleans, a short time ago, as a result of a dispute of a personal nature. Mayer, the story goes, on reaching this city challenged M. Max to a duel, to be fought within ten days after the latter had set foot on French soil.

ETHEL BARRYMORE ILL.

Is to be Operated Upon for Appendicitis in Boston To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 4.—Miss Ethel Barrymore, who began an engagement last Monday at the Hollis Theatre in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," to-day canceled her dates here and went to a private hospital. Her physician has decided that she is suffering from appendicitis and that an operation is necessary. It will be performed to-morrow.

Miss Barrymore was not feeling at all well on Monday night, but pluckily carried through her work. She took medical advice yesterday, but she became worse so quickly that this morning her physician forbade her to appear, and there was no afternoon performance.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 4—A mob of 300 strikers, armed with clubs and revolvers, attacked the plant of the American Enameled Brick and Tile Company, at South River, this morning, and drove out the eighty or ninety men who were at work there. The attacked men had refused to join them in a sympathetic strike. The mob was made up of the employes of the Lyle Conduit Company, who have been out on strike since Monday.

MISS WOOD'S SUIT DISMISSED.

End of Her Charges Against Senator Platt, Loeb, and Wynne.

OMAHA, April 4.—The suit filed by Miss Mae C. Wood against Senator Platt of New York, William Loeb, secretary to the President, and ex-Postmaster General Wynne for $150,000 damages was dismissed by Judge Kennedy to-day because no one appeared for the plaintiff.

Miss Wood alleged that she had written a book entitled "The Love Letters of a Boss," which contained a number of letters she said had been written to her by Senator Platt. She said that Platt, with the assistance of Wynne and Loeb, got the letters from her and refused to return them.

DEPEW TO QUIT YALE.

Taft, Parsons, and Catlin Candidates for Trusteeship.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, April 4.—Through an announcement made to-day from the secretary's office at Yale, Senator Chauncey M. Depew declines to be considered for renomination to the Yale Corporation in June. His term of six years as Trustee ends at that time, and if he had desired to be re-elected it had been expected that a movement would have been started among Yale Alumni throughout the country to defeat him, on account of his connection with the New York insurance investigation.

It is expected that Senator Depew's successor will be either Secretary Taft, Congressman Herbert Parsons of New York, or Charles T. Catlin of Brooklyn. Secretary Taft has, it is understood, signified his desire to be elected to succeed Senator Depew. Among the younger alumni of New York Mr. Parsons is at present favored.

BALLOON EMPTY; AERONAUT DEAD

Paul Nocquet Expires in a Long Island Marsh.

LIGHTS LURED HIM ON

Swam Many Creeks Till He Fell Exhausted.

WAS SAFE HAD HE STAYED

Balloon Landed on a Sandy Beach, but He Tried to Reach Amityville and Died in the Effort.

On an island in Gilgo Bay, half way in the waste of marsh and salt water between the little town of Amityville, on the south shore of Long Island, and the narrow strip of sand called Jones's Beach, which bars it from the ocean, an incoming bayman, last evening found the body of Paul Nocquet, the aeronaut and sculptor. The balloon, in which he sailed away from the Union gas works in East 138th Street, on Tuesday evening, had been discovered hours before tossing in the wind on Jones's Beach. M. Nocquet, after being carried out over the ocean a little way, had been blown back and had descended there, it is supposed, in the moonlight on the night before. Not knowing that he was in safety on the beach, he had foolishly abandoned it and attempted to swim and wade back to the mainland.

Why he did so no one can tell. Perhaps he thought that the tide might rise, and leave his last refuge unsafe. It is known that he had a horror of being carried out to sea. He did not know as a man better acquainted with the locality would have done, that the beach is patrolled by life savers, who sooner or later would find him there.

Whatever his reason, he tied his life preserver around his breast, and started back through the sand and marsh and intervening creeks. He was hungry and cold, and the lights of Amityville in the distance beckoned him on. They lured him to his death.

Apparently he died of exhaustion. His body, when the bayman found it, lay on its side, the upper part of the face scorched brown by the sun. His overcoat lay some two hundred yards back over his trail beside an empty whisky flask. He had swum through at least half a dozen creeks varying from 20 to 75 yards in width, waded through miles of sandy marsh, and at last, utterly worn out, dropped in his tracks and died.

Found on a Marshy Islet.

They call the hundred acres or so of soggy sand in meadow grass, which M. Nocquet finally reached, Copp's Island. It is about two miles due south of Amityville and about a mile and three-quarters north of Jones's Beach. It is seldom covered by water, the waves never entirely reaching over it except during storms or exceptionally high tides.

Capt. George W. Smith, an old-time fisherman and boatman of Amityville, sailing to Jones's Beach at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, saw on Copp's Island what he thought was a barrel. He has navigated the inlets, creeks and bays of that part of the coast every day, and in his voyages not even a bit of driftwood misses his keen eyes. At the beach he heard from a life saver of the falling of the balloon there, and of the disappearance of the aeronaut. Then he thought of the thing he had seen on Copp's Island and, going to his boat, poled back for a closer investigation. At 6 o'clock last night he reached the island and found the body of Nocquet. It was lying in the meadow grass stomach downward, the right side of the face buried. There was still plenty of the evening light, and the Captain saw that the exposed side of the face had been burned to a very dark brown by the sun. A life preserver was strapped over the jacket of the aeronaut. Two hundred yards away lay the aeronaut's overcoat and a whisky flask.

What had happened was plain to the eyes of the experienced bayman. Nocquet had evidently used his last bit of strength when he reached Copp's Island, had thrown aside his overcoat, and had started to ford or swim the next creek to the next island in the direction of the Amityville lights. But he could go no further, he collapsed there and died from exhaustion and exposure.

Cold and Exhaustion Killed Him.

The night had been a cold one on Great South Bay. Two of the creeks the aeronaut had crossed, Bass Creek and James Creek, were wide and deep. Swimming these two and wading the others had brought him nearly half way to the lights, where he knew he would find shelter and food. Soaked from head to foot, arms wearied from swimming, legs played out from fording and clambering up the sides of the many little islands, the aeronaut tottered toward the water between Copp's Island and the next land toward the lights beyond. And that was the end.

Capt. Smith, according to the custom with sea folk, drove a stake near the body, tied a rope about it, and fastened it to the stake to hold it in case of storm. Then he returned to Amityville and informed the Chief of Police, Edward Stratton. The Coroner of Suffolk, Dr. Savage, was notified by Nelson Collier, and the village undertaker was informed of the finding of the body. Coroner Savage's consent to the removal of the body was obtained at 10:30 o'clock last night, and Capt. Smith, Lon Haff of Amityville, and an undertaker from the town went to Copp's Island to get the body. It will be viewed by the Coroner to-day and then brought to this city.

Discovery of the Body.

Capt. Smith's discovery of the body was a matter of second thought on his part. After he had reached Jones's Beach, and had been told of the lost aeronaut, he with Will Buck of the Life Saving Station, "Tip" Smith and Will Austin, fishermen, made a search of the flats around the beach, but found nothing. Capt. Smith then baked some clams and enjoyed himself. He said, as he started to pole for the mainland, that he would look at the barrel on Copp's Island again, and if it was a body he would hoist his overcoat on his pole to let those on the beach know. He found the body and hoisted the overcoat, but he received no answering signal from Jones's Beach, and had to pole to the mainland to give the alarm.

All-Day Search in Vain.

All yesterday, since the first news of the finding of the empty balloon came from the Jones's Beach life savers, members of the Aero Club had been searching the marsh for the missing aeronaut. When news of the finding of the body reached the mainland many of them had returned to the city exhausted, and only a few remained. The disappearance of M. Nocquet puzzled them. They could not understand why he had not remained by his balloon. Had he done so, or had he walked east or west along Jones's Beach, he would have found help.

Tracing the aeronaut's flight by the stories of those who had sighted his balloon, they calculated that he had landed on the beach about 9 o'clock on Tuesday night. The life-savers' patrol discovered the balloon about an hour later, but did not report his discovery until morning.

Immediately the report was received Cortlandt Field Bishop, Augustus Post, and Count de la Vaulx, the expert French balloonist, went out to examine the balloon for the Aero Club. It took them three hours to get to Jones's Beach from Amityville and two more to get back, though wind and tide were then in their favor.

Landing Made in Safety.

Count de la Vaulx, through Mr. Bishop as interpreter, questioned the life guards and the other searchers already on the ground. Examining the balloon, he declared that Nocquet had made a successful landing, and then had started to reach the mainland. Before this the theory that Nocquet was in the balloon when it came to earth was doubted. Many believed that Nocquet had descended on the mainland, and that the balloon had escaped empty and crossed the water to the beach, where it was stranded. De la Vaulx showed that the rip cord used in descending had been pulled, and that the bag was free of gas when it struck the beach.

After examining the imprints of the balloon's basket in the sand he expressed the belief that Nocquet had been blown out over the ocean and had come in toward land flying low in a southwest wind. Then when he reached the narrow sand spit and salt meadows he must have mistaken them for the mainland and thought he was over solid ground once more. Overjoyed at his luck in being blown inland again, the Count believes, Nocquet must then have pulled the rip cord and dropped his balloon on the spot.

Blown Back from Sea to Beach.

As the basket struck the beach, the Count believes that the parachute attachment which Nocquet carried must have torn loose, and the wind catching this, dragged Nocquet, the empty silk bag, and the basket nearly a quarter of a mile over the sand dunes. Count de la Vaulx, moreover, thought that the footprints indicated that Nocquet was laboring under great excitement.

In the basket were found an empty wine bottle, some cigarette papers, newspapers, and eight empty sand ballast bags. A red, white, and blue streamer fluttered from the rigging. The life preserver which Nocquet was known to have carried was missing. It was found later on the body, tied around the chest.

The Jones's Beach life guards, of whom "Steve" Austin is Captain, said they took the flag to their house for identification, and had emptied the bags of their ballast. There were four full bags in the basket when it descended. But the parachute was not in working order, and its rigging was tangled with that of the balloon.

Standing there by the empty machine, the experts and the searchers traced Nocquet's flight through the moonlight, and tried to imagine his mental state when he landed. It had been an ascension taken entirely on his own account and not under the Aero Club's auspices. The club members now talk of it as foolhardy.

Mr. Post, the only member who saw the start from the Central Union Gas Works, remembered that it was made about 5 o'clock in the evening. By 6:30 it was dark. But it was a clear, moonlight night, the wind was fair, and upon the whole the conditions were favorable. With a bag thirty-five feet in diameter, having 21,000 cubic feet of gas capacity, and a two-passenger car—really quite a small balloon—weighted with 280 pounds of sand ballast in seven bags, Nocquet rose as straight as an express elevator in a skyscraper to a height of about 2,000 feet. Then the balloon caught an air current and began to move slowly over Long Island Sound, and was lost to view by the spectators.

Tales of its passage have since come to hand from many sources. It passed over College Point and Flushing, and is reported on the police blotter at Jamaica as being seen over the Borough Hall. Then it drew nearer the ground and sailed along over Springfield and Rosedale.

Farmer's Boy Shot at It.

Farmers in the fields thought it was about to descend, and followed it on foot for miles, but the balloon eluded them and kept a good distance above the tree line. Just outside of Rosedale, a farmer's son, thinking the balloon was empty, ran to the house and got his shotgun. He peppered away at the gas bag, but fortunately for the success of the trip and the safety of the aeronaut, his aim was poor and the balloon was untouched.

Floral Park, Garden City, and Westbury folk saw the balloon. At Jericho the people watched it till it was enveloped in darkness. They said it seemed to be sailing then in the direction of Huntington and Cold Spring Harbor. Watchers saw it over Cold Spring Harbor between 7 and 8 o'clock. Then all trace of it was lost until the life savers discovered it, empty, as it had been blown back after almost being carried out over the ocean, on Jones's Beach.

Descent Into Desolation.

The experts thought of its landing there in the moonlight, of the aeronaut's narrow escape and the mental excitement he must have been in, the cold and desolation of the narrow strip of beach, the unknown strip of marsh with its intersecting creeks behind him, and the lights of Amityville beckoning him back there to his destruction.

Their criticism, however, was chiefly for the balloon. Count de la Vaulx commented on it severely. He called it a "freak" balloon, and said it was poorly constructed. The parachute, he showed, was not in good order, and he pointed to the tangle of its rigging and the rigging of the balloon.

Mr. Bishop and Mr. Post took the testimony of the life savers and the fishermen present as to finding the balloon. They also photographed the foot prints in the sand leading toward the marshes as well as the empty gas bag, the parachute, and the basket as it lay in the sand.

These pictures and the testimony of de la Vaulx and the life guards will be put on the records of the club, for the Balloon Committee did not hesitate to let it be known that they did not sanction such a trip as Nocquet had attempted. The club officially had not known of it.

"It was foolhardy for Nocquet to stay up after nightfall," said Count de la Vaulx on the way out to Jones's Beach yesterday morning. "He should have come down and not taken chances. In France when a balloonist tries to create a sensation it is not considered good form. A member could be expelled from the French Aero Club for it!"

So Near to Safety.

An interesting fact which came out during the search showed by how close a margin Nocquet had been to safety. The life guard who found the balloon came upon it laid out on the beach about 10 o'clock. H. M. Purdy of Amityville, a fisherman and hunter, who owns a houseboat anchored in the marshes back of Jones's Beach, declares that one hour before this he heard a man shouting.

The shouting continued for some time, but Purdy said he thought it came from gunners signaling to each other on their way home, and paid no more attention to it.

He went to bed shortly afterward, and the last thing he heard before he fell asleep was the sound of this hallooing.

The many-voiced orchestra is the most complete and popular means of expression for ALL music.

The

reproduces orchestral music in the home. It is a single instrument, but has within itself many voices, adequately representing the varied tonal qualities of the orchestra. It thus enables one performer to call forth sounds as of many instruments.

Anyone can play the Orchestrelle.

Knowledge of music is not necessary. Knowledge of orchestral instruments is not necessary.

The notes of a composition are sounded without thought on the part of the player. Orchestral coloring and musical expression are, however, under his absolute control. While the musician is at liberty to voice his individual reading, the time, degrees of tone, and instrumentation, copied from the composer's score, are plainly marked on the music roll. Therefore, the non-musician is enabled to play artistically.

ORCHESTRAL EFFECTS
Of the Orchestrelle

The many voices of the Orchestrelle simulate the many single instruments of the Orchestra. They include the tonal effects of the violin, viola, double bass, muted strings; flute, piccolo, oboe, clarinet, bassoon; French horn, trumpet, trombone. By simple means, the player can call upon any one of these many orchestral tone qualities to render any part of the music. Or he can call upon any combination of them. Or upon them all at once, at will. Thus all music, from a Beethoven Symphony to a Strauss waltz or comic opera selection, can be rendered with its proper orchestral effects.

The Orchestrelle is, in outward appearance, similar to an upright piano. Its range of prices brings it within reach of all.

Its beautiful tonal possibilities can no more be conveyed in words than can the playing of a Symphony Orchestra. You are, therefore, cordially invited to Aeolian Hall at any time to hear it.

QUITE SAFE, SAID NOCQUET.

An Interesting Talk the Sculptor Gave Not Long Ago.

A few days before he started on his fatal balloon trip Paul Nocquet discussed with a TIMES reporter his plans for ascents from New York. He had just heard of the arrival of his balloon, and was full of enthusiasm at the journeys he was about to make. In particular he was most emphatic in his contention that New York was a perfectly safe place from which to make an ascent.

"The headquarters of the Aero Club," he said, "should be in New York. They tell me that it is not safe to go up from here, that one will be carried out to sea, but it is not so. Look at this map of New York. There is only one single direction in which one would be taken over the water quickly.

"If the wind comes from the west it will take one over Long Island. Ah. He would be a tyro who would not be able to make a safe landing with all that expanse of land beneath him if he saw he was going to the ocean. Moreover, even if he saw the sea was very near, there are so many islands that he should be able to make a descent upon one of them.

"Of course, one might be carried across the harbor, but then one would soon come over New Jersey, and that is perfectly safe. Only if the wind blew toward the Narrows would I be afraid, and even then there is Sandy Hook, where I might come down.

"But I have inquired. I have been down to the Meteorological Office and I have gone through the records. I find that very seldom does the wind blow in such a way as to take one in a dangerous direction. Nearly always one could go up and be taken inland.

"Then if the club had its quarters here one could pick the day. You remember the attempt at Pittsfield a day or two ago and how it failed. The party had gone out from New York, and so they had to try to go up, although the wind was too strong. They inflate the balloon and it is blown out to sea.

"If the club was situated here, it would be possible to consider the weather. When the wind is too strong or blowing in the wrong direction, the ascent is put off. A telephone message to the Weather Bureau, and one could make the ascent in perfect safety.

"But they do not understand. They are ignorant of ballooning here. They are afraid of the sea. In Paris we would laugh at such a little danger as that. It is perfectly safe to go up from New York. Ah! how I look forward to my ascents."

IT WAS A PECULIAR BALLOON.

Parachute Arrangement Not a Success—Lent to Nocquet by a Friend.

The balloon with which Paul Nocquet made his ascent held about 21,000 cubic feet of gas. The basket attached would hold two persons at a pinch. It was of peculiar construction, its covering being a parachute instead of the usual net. It was contended that this arrangement would ease the descent, while if the balloon itself should for any reason collapse a safe fall could be made by means of the parachute.

Nocquet took no anchor with him, but carried a life preserver, a bottle of sauterne wine—which was found empty—a couple of sandwiches, and some papers.

The balloon was made by an Italian named Capazza. It was lent to Nocquet for six months, and it was received only ten days ago. Its peculiar parachute arrangement was viewed with some misgivings by aeronauts here. Count de la Vaulx said plainly last night that he did not put much faith in it. The balloon, when found, showed that the parachute had not been accurately adjusted and simply acted as a sail in the descent. This, however, did not have any influence upon Nocquet's death, for the descent was made in safety, notwithstanding the failure of the parachute to work as it had been expected to.

"Nocquet became acquainted with Capazza in a curious manner," said a friend of the dead sculptor yesterday. "It was in Brussels, I think. Capazza went into his studio and bought one or two of his pieces. The talk drifted to balloons, and when Nocquet knew who his customer was, he exclaimed:

"'Why, it has been the dream of my life to go up in a balloon.'

"'Well, if that's so, I'll take you up,' was the reply. And a few days later Nocquet had his first lesson in ballooning with Capazza. The friendship had always been maintained, and it was at Nocquet's request that Capazza sent his balloon over."

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY.

Cortlandt Field Bishop, Count Henry de la Vaulx, and Augustus Post returned from Amityville before the body of M. Nocquet was found. They visited the rooms of the Aero Club of America, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, late last night after receiving news of the finding of the body, and talked of conditions as they had found them on Jones's Beach. Count de la Vaulx has drawn up a detailed technical statement of the condition in which he found the balloon, which will be kept for future use if needed.

"If Nocquet had only remained by his basket he would have been all right," said Count de la Vaulx. "He had no business to leave his balloon. He was on a safe shore, he had his heavy overcoat, and he could have coiled himself up inside and have gone to sleep with perfect ease. I have done that several times, and so has Levee.

"When we come down in a strange place toward night and no habitation is in sight, the only thing to do is to sleep in the basket until morning.

"To start off and try to walk to some habitation is foolhardy. He got down safely, and indications point to an admirable landing. Why he left his balloon is a mystery."

Mr. Bishop showed how Nocquet, seeing the lights of Amityville on the main shore, miscalculated the distance and the danger which lay between, and thought he could reach them readily.

Shelter Aplenty Nearby.

"The lights of Amityville are seven miles away from Jones's Beach, where the balloon came down," said Mr. Bishop. "On a clear night, however, they seem much nearer. Had Nocquet gone half a mile to the west he would have found the life-saving houses. A mile in the other direction are four deserted cottages for Summer use, and he could have obtained shelter there. Instead he turned toward the open bay, evidently thinking his strength would hold out to swim and walk to land.

"Natives there told me to-day that none but the most expert could hope to reach land that way, and then only with the most careful knowledge, and a great deal of swimming would have to be done.

"Had Nocquet stayed by his balloon he would have been found in a short time by one of the life savers, for the entire beach is patrolled every two hours. In fact, the balloon was discovered soon after 8 o'clock, though the guard did not report it. He said to-day when asked why he omitted to report it that he was looking for ships in the water and not for ships in the air. Consequently the balloon was not reported until early in the morning, and that occasioned the delay in getting word to the city.

Lessons of the Accident.

"The ascension was not made under the auspices of the Aero Club, and while we all deplore the sad fate of our member, I do not see what action the club, as such, can take. As to the effect of this accident on ballooning, I do not see that the accident will have any serious effect. It will simply show the necessity of taking along experienced aeronauts before an amateur tries to strike out for himself."

Dr. Julian P. Thomas said that the accident would not affect his interest in ballooning in the least. He has a large balloon ordered from Paris which will arrive here within a month.

"The wind was against Nocquet," said Dr. Thomas, "and he had been requested not to make the trip, but he had such faith in his theory that a balloon, even if carried out to sea, would be brought back toward evening by a lower stratum of air, that I believed he was determined to put it into execution. The fact of his safe landing shows that he did prove the theory. He landed alive and evidently lost his life by overexertion in trying to reach the mainland."

LOZIER
MAINTENANCE
- Does maintenance cost play much of a part in what you care to spend on your Motor Car—or do you mind?
- The delays and annoyances during repairs must figure somehow, even if cost does not.
- And it is interesting (and a flattering testimony to LOZIER high grade construction) that all owners of LOZIER MOTOR CARS report to this effect—that nothing ever gets out of order.
- This is worth while considering, and an opinion from any LOZIER owner is convincing, for they are all of them owners of large Motor Car experience.

To Bring the Body Here.

Dr. Thomas and Israel Ludlow started for Amityville at 10 o'clock last night in an automobile to assist in bringing the body to the city to-day.

PAUL NOCQUET'S CAREER.

In the studios and restaurants which sculptors frequent the news of Paul Nocquet's tragic death was not a shock. Nocquet was known as an eccentric. He was eccentric in his dress, in his ideas, speech, and action.

Every piece of clay that passed his fingers has this mark. It was Nocquet who designed the statue of the President holding by the scruff of the neck a dead lion's whelp. He was an artist in his line, however. Some say that at one time he was an Anarchist and that the scar on his head came from a bullet wound self-inflicted upon a desperate occasion in Belgium.

The man's peculiarity was such that when his balloon was found so far out of its course and in the ocean track reports immediately arose which credited him with making a sensational attempt at suicide. This last report, however, late developments proved untrue.

A Genuine Enthusiast.

Paul Nocquet was known both in this country and abroad as an able portrait painter, a sculptor of rare ability, and an enthusiast on ballooning. He was born near Brussels in 1877, and he died at the age of 29 years while success as an artist in America was well within his grasp. His closest friend in this country was Gutzon Borglum, the artist, of 166 East Thirty-eighth Street. In fact, it was due to Mr. Borglum's residence in this city that Nocquet came here three years ago.

"I have known Paul Nocquet for the last ten years," said Mr. Borglum at his studio last night. "We have shared purses together, have lived together, and I have never met a man who was a straighter, firmer friend than Nocquet.

"I am grieved to see certain statements made to the effect that Paul Nocquet was subject to eccentric fits of temper, and that he was quite likely to do anything rash. That is the last thing in the world of which he should be accused, and the manner of his death, I am glad to see, disproves the baseless rumors that he ever thought of suicide. He had too much to live for. He was making money, and had lately received a number of excellent commissions. It was by this additional money that he was enabled to gratify his fondness for ballooning."

According to Mr. Borglum, Nocquet has been interested in ballooning since he was 18 or 19 years of age.

"I have heard him talk a great deal about it," said Mr. Borglum. "When we shared studios in Paris, which we did for nearly five years, he was deeply interested in the subject. How many ascensions he made I do not know, for they were usually done while I was away, and I only recall his statements of his experiences. I know, however, that he went up with others, and I do not think he ever said that he ever attempted a trip alone."

Cortlandt Field Bishop and Count de la Vaulx both said last night that Nocquet had only made three ascensions abroad.

"He was a member of the Aero Club of France," said Mr. Bishop, "but he was not a pilot. The French aeronauts are very strict in that matter, and they do not give a license or certificate to an aeronaut as a qualified pilot unless he has made six ascensions and proved his ability in them before acknowledged experts. Nocquet had not yet reached the pilot's standard."

Tried to Dissuade Nocquet.

Count de la Vaulx, who knew something of Nocquet's experience, said that he did not consider him an accomplished aeronaut. He, with other members of the Aero Club here, tried to dissuade Nocquet from making the trip alone.

All statements agree that Nocquet was determined to make the trip and do it quietly. Even Mr. Borglum, his closest friend, did not know of his intention until afternoon, and important business prevented him from going up to the gas works at the foot of East 138th Street in the Bronx.

Mr. Borglum, however, sent up one of his assistants to help him in the preparations. Only a few members of the Aero Club of America were notified, and even then it was so late that they arrived just before the ascent was made. M. Nocquet was insistent that no newspaper men be notified of his intended trip.

"I don't want any newspapers to know anything about it," was his statement to a friend, and Dr. Julian P. Thomas, who offered to follow the balloon in an automobile, was told that it would be useless, as Nocquet said he intended to stay up as long as possible and would not come down until he had to."

Nocquet's Farewell Remark.

"The last thing that Paul Nocquet said to me was to extend an invitation to go with him on Thursday or Friday of this week. He was wildly enthusiastic over the matter and was insistent that I should make a journey with him, and I consented."

As a young artist, Nocquet attained unusual success abroad. He won in the Brussels competition the Prix de Rome, but chose to study five years in Paris instead of Rome. He was then about 20 years of age. In Brussels he was a pupil of both Munier and Lambeaux, and his work was highly esteemed. In Paris he continued to succeed.

Nocquet had little money the first year after his arrival in America, but it is said that he refused several big offers which he considered as lowering to his ideals of art. He made designs for one or two automobile magazine covers, but a year ago, his luck turned, and his studio at 55 East Fifty-ninth Street bears evidence of plenty of work of a high order.

One of his small pieces that caused him to be talked of considerably lately was the statuette of President Roosevelt entitled "A Presidential Vacation."

When the sculptor sent the statuette to President Roosevelt he received the following letter:

> My Dear Mr. Nocquet: I like the plaster cast very much. It amused the family as much as it did me. Thanking you for the courtesy, I am, sincerely yours,
> THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

This statuette was rejected for exhibition by the Society of American Artists. Nocquet said he was not surprised at the rejection.

He executed a group of young men in a furious football struggle shortly after he came here. This was purchased by I. N. Seligman and presented to the Columbia University Club.

Recently he has received a number of commissions for portraits, although he preferred the work of the sculptor to that of the painter. Nocquet was a powerful man, and his appearance gave one the impression of strength and great endurance.

A year ago he had an attack of pneumonia, and his friends think this weakened his constitution so that he has never been able to withstand as much as formerly.

"If he had a little more flesh and a little more red blood I believe he would have got through his difficulties all right," said Mr. Borglum. "It was no wild flight that he went on. He had made a most careful study of the air currents and winds around New York, and probably understood them better than any other man.

He had also studied carefully all sections of Long Island. He was a highly practical man, one of the best I ever knew. He was a natural inventor, and was always endeavoring to put his ideas into practice."

Mr. Borglum took formal possession of Nocquet's effects last night, sealing up his studio. He will make all arrangements for the funeral, and intends to hold the service at his own studio, probably to-morrow.

The dead sculptor leaves a mother, two sisters, and a brother in Belgium, and he was constantly sending remittances to his mother.

Navy Tug Out in the Search.

When news of the finding of Nocquet's empty balloon reached town early yesterday morning, the Navy Department was appealed to for aid in finding the missing aeronaut. The navy yard tug Narkeeta was dispatched to search the coast. She spent all day in cruising among inlets which Nocquet never went near.

BARGAINS IN MEDICINE.

A woman once wrote us that she was not going to buy Scott's Emulsion anymore because it cost too much. Said she could get some other emulsion for less money. Penny wise and pound foolish. Scott's Emulsion costs more because it is worth more—costs more to make. We could make Scott's Emulsion cost less by using less oil. Could take less care in making it, too. If we did, however, Scott's Emulsion wouldn't be the standard preparation of cod liver oil as it is to-day.

GOT DOCTOR'S ROLL.

Two sneak thieves entered the apartments of Dr. Frank Giovannelli, at 234 East 106th Street, late yesterday afternoon, and stole $1,000 in money, some old coins, jewelry, and two suits of clothes.

The thieves forced the doctor's desk, where they found the large roll. They had entered by way of the fire-escape. After removing their own well-worn garments and dressing themselves in the doctor's best suits, they left by the front door.

Dr. Giovannelli reported the robbery to the police of the East 104th Street Station, and detectives were detailed to run down the burglars.

WOULDN'T LET CONRIED GO.

Magistrate Pool in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday declined, in the absence of Heinrich Conried, to discharge him from the charge of operating the Irving Place Theatre without a license, although requested to do so by Acting Inspector Hodgins. In refusing the request Magistrate Pool said:

"We discharge. You may make arrests. I will adjourn this case until April 7 and I shall want Mr. Conried before me on that date. Then I shall dispose of the case quickly."

CONTEST ON PALMER WILL.

Grandnieces Say Banker Was Unduly Influenced by Clergymen.

The second trial of the Francis Asbury Palmer will contest was continued before Justice Giegerich and a jury in the Supreme Court yesterday. Mr. Palmer was President for fifty-two years of the Broadway National Bank.

He left the bulk of his large estate to charitable institutions. The contestants, James R. Palmer, a brother, 97 years old, who lives in San Francisco, and who receives an annuity of $1,200 under the will, and two grandnieces, Mrs. Knapp and Mrs. Kepner, allege that Mr. Palmer was mentally incompetent to draw a will, and that he was unduly influenced by several clergymen who practically lived in his home at 180 Madison Avenue.

Alice Palmer Miles, a daughter of James R. Palmer, and Ida H. Manson, a grandniece of the testator, declared yesterday that Mr. Palmer's memory was greatly impaired for a considerable period prior to his death, and that he seemed to have lost interest in his brother, for whom he previously exhibited the warmest affection.

James Morrow, who said he had been a personal friend of Mr. Palmer for forty-five years, told of attending religious services with him in the latter years of his life. He said he usually accompanied Mr. Palmer to such services twice a week. Mr. Palmer used to go to sleep during a sermon or address, he said, and afterward, when they were going home, would usually remark:

"That was a good speech he made."

SAYS HE'S JURIST'S SON.

Tale of a Young Man Charged with Stealing a Suit Case.

A seedy-looking young man confided suddenly to Probation Officer Graveur in Special Sessions last Tuesday that he was not the owner of the name which appeared on the papers sent there with him from the police court next door for his trial on a charge of stealing a dress suit case from a Sixth Avenue shop.

His real name, he said, was Thomas G. Rhoades, Jr., and he insisted that his father was and is Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. Rhoades of Arkansas.

The Justices of Special Sessions remanded the prisoner to the Tombs pending an investigation. Up till late last night no reply had arrived to a telegram of inquiry sent to Arkansas by Graveur.

PRESBYTERY SUES CHURCH.

Starts Effort to Get Possession of the Westminster's Property.

The Presbytery of New York, through its counsel, Rush Taggart, filed a lis pendens against the Westminster Presbyterian Church, in West Twenty-third Street, yesterday. The Rev. John Lloyd Lee and his congregation withdrew from the Presbytery some time ago, and the action of yesterday is a part of the proceedings to recover possession of the church building.

The lis pendens recites that the plaintiffs in the action are Walter Findlay and others against John Lloyd Lee. The Trustees are ordered to appear before Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court to-day in regard to the dispute over the church property rights.

In a circular distributed to his congregation on Sunday, Feb. 25, Dr. Lee intimated that the Presbytery sought to sell the church to endow the Rev. Dr. Duffield's First Presbyterian Church.

BONE TUBERCULOSIS AT SEA BREEZE HOSPITAL

Yesterday's appeal for sea air cure for sick crippled children should have read "$8 will give a crippled child 168 hours (not 68 hours) of out-of-door sea air hospital treatment." Sea Breeze Children sleep or play out of doors all day; go to school—and sleep at night—in rooms with windows wide open. When visitors see these ruddy, happy "patients" they ask, "Where are the sick ones?" Yet the small group of 43 require 39 surgical dressings daily. Just the kind that are usually confined to beds indoors. $150 will pay for one child until Oct. 1st; $8 for one week. Will churches and clubs send collections? SENATE BILL CRIPPLES MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE

Joker in It, It Is Charged, Favoring Foreign Companies.

TAXES ONE, EXEMPTS OTHER

Levy Is 20 Per Cent. and Outrageous, Says Armstrong—Grady, Treasury Watchdog, for It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Senator Smith succeeded in having passed in the Senate to-day his bill to regulate and tax mutual fire insurance companies, which, if it becomes a law, its opponents said, will not only have the effect of driving out of business every mutual fire insurance concern doing business in the State, but which, according to Senator Marks, who says he has discovered an extra joker in the bill, will exempt from taxes every foreign fire insurance company.

The Smith bill provides that the 1 per cent. tax sought to be collected on the gross premiums and assessments paid in by the persons banding together as a mutual fire insurance corporation shall be paid to the various volunteer firemen's associations in the State for their maintenance and support.

Senator Armstrong made very clear the effects of the bill in stating his opposition to it. He said that the insurance companies operating under the New England mutual plan were in fact associations of manufacturers who combined together for their own protection and underwrote their own fire insurance. They made absolutely no profit and charged only to the various members of the combination the actual cost of the insurance. In order to protect each other they put up each a guarantee fund to meet possible losses, and this was annually paid back to them, less the actual cost of the insurance. He quoted instances where the guarantee fund had been $10,000 each, and at the end of the year, or period, $9,500 was paid back, making the net cost or premium $500. If the bill was passed, he said, the provision taxing the "gross" assessments and premiums would bring the tax of 1 per cent. on the "gross" sum paid, so that in case the assessment was $10,000 and $9,500 was paid back, the tax would be 20 per cent. on the net sum paid for actual insurance, an outrageous proceeding.

Senator Smith insisted that there was no intention of taxing the guarantee fund, but Armstrong said that the language of the bill showed that no other construction could be placed on it.

Senator Hinman said that the bill had been cunningly drawn under the pretense of helping the volunteer firemen, but that its real purpose was to drive out of existence the mutual companies and force the manufacturers, who had banded together for mutual protection, to place their risks with the stock fire insurance companies.

Senator Smith refused to accept an amendment striking the word "gross" from the bill to free it from the objection raised by Senator Armstrong. Senator Marks said he had discovered another joker in the bill which repealed Chapter 530 of the Laws of 1903, which has nothing to do with mutual companies, but which does tax foreign fire insurance companies.

"It will also be observed," said Marks, "that there was no gross tax on premiums or assessments received by foreign companies, and by the joker at the end of the Smith bill every foreign fire insurance company is relieved from the provisions of Chapter 530, which provided for a tax and then the mutuals are taxed on gross premiums. There was a reason for Chapter 530 of the Laws of 1903, and that was to compel foreign fire insurance companies to pay their taxes, which they did not do, and that act was to force them to pay. That is wiped out by this bill."

In contending for the bill Senator Grady said he was in the Finance Committee as the watchdog of the Treasury. "I notice," he said, "that when I leave the Finance Committee room that all those who want a dollar flock in. I want to assure the public that I will be more vigilant in guarding the Treasury, and so I will save the public about a million a day for the balance of the session."

INSURANCE BILLS PASSED.

Assembly Acts on Five and Puts Over One on a Question.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—The Assembly to-day passed five of the insurance bills introduced by the Armstrong Investigating Committee.

Four slipped through without trouble. The fifth, that relative to perjury, was held by its opponents to be nothing more or less than a very radical amendment to the Criminal Code, and therefore not entitled to quick consideration like the others. Mr. Wade, one of the best lawyers in the Assembly, led the fight on the measure, but only eight members voted with him—Messrs. Wemple, a member of the Investigating Committee; Becker, Steele, Fish, Bisland, Tompkins, Cohalan, and Salomon. There were 116 votes for the bill.

Mr. Rogers explained all the measures at length, and led the forces of the Assembly against Mr. Wade on the Perjury bill. The debate was largely technical. The bill in effect establishes a new presumption of guilt when false statements are made by insurance officials to State officials. Its opponents held that it went too far, that many innocent persons would be unjustly prosecuted.

"This bill," said Mr. Wade, "is the fiercest proposition that has ever come here of this kind. It brings up a question involving possible perjury indictments for inadvertent or unavoidable misstatements of fact in preliminary stages of litigation."

Mr. Averill of Monroe stood with Mr. Rogers in defense of the measure. He declared that the measure would give a "show down," and that was to be the end sought. Mr. Rogers stated that in his opinion "the public conscience needs great awakening on the crime of perjury."

Mr. Salomon opposed the bill, "because," he said, "it was in contradiction to the tendency to place upon the prosecution in criminal actions all the burden of proof of guilt."

The other bill to receive negative votes was that making it a misdemeanor for an agent to give and for a policy holder to accept a rebate on a policy. Mr. Eagleton of New York and Mr. Nolan of Rensselaer cast the two negative votes.

The other bills, which passed unanimously, were:

That relating to lobbying.

That relating to the acquisition of real property by life insurance corporations.

That increasing the penalty for falsification of records of corporations.

A sixth bill, to prevent corporations from aiding political parties, was on the calendar, but Mr. Rogers had it laid over to discover if it would not prevent an organization, like the Republican Club or the Manhattan Club in New York, from permitting the use of its building for a political meeting. If he discovers that such construction is possible an amendment may be offered.

The insurance bills are a special order in the Senate to-morrow.

A FEDERAL INSURANCE BILL.

Measure to Meet the President's Ideas Put Into Form.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—After consulting with the President to-day Representative Ames of Massachusetts put the finishing touches on a redraft of his bill for the regulation of insurance in the District of Columbia.

The purpose of the bill is to exercise Federal control of insurance indirectly through complete regulation of all companies in the District. Mr. Ames hints that the President may send a special message to Congress advocating the principle proposed.

The redraft of the measure, he says, conforms to the recommendation of the Armstrong Investigating Committee in New York, and meets the approval of the sub-committee of fifteen Insurance Commissioners of the United States.

HENDRICKS WANTS PROXIES.

Thinks Policy Holders Might Well Trust the Insurance Superintendent.

State Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks thinks that policy holders in mutual life insurance companies would do well to execute their proxies to the State Superintendent and let him vote them. This suggestion is conveyed in a letter which Mr. Hendricks sent to the Truesdale Investigating Committee of Mutual Life Trustees. It is included in the exhibits attached to the report that the committee sent to the board last week.

Mr. Hendricks also says he considers it very unwise that the companies should be compelled to publish their lists of policy holders. In this view he is joined by several other of the twenty-seven State Insurance Commissioners, whom the Truesdale Committee addressed early in its work, but none of them has suggested any such plan for the policy holders' voting as appears to have been in Mr. Hendricks's mind.

Varied suggestions as to the voting come from State Commissioners. Commissioner Host of Wisconsin says in his letter to the Truesdale Committee that he wants a mail ballot, while Commissioner Vandiver of Missouri prefers an organization of policy holders by States, so that each State, where a given number of policy holders live, shall be represented on the board.

The Mutual Life has stripped the gorgeous offices formerly occupied by President McCurdy on the seventh floor and will rent them to the Delaware & Hudson Railroad as soon as alterations have been completed. It was to furnish these offices that $90,000 was spent in Paris in 1903, according to the report of the Truesdale Committee.

AUTO VICTIMS BURIED.

New Rochelle Demands a Law to Put Speeders in Jail.

The funeral services for Mrs. Bettie Kuchler of New Rochelle and her sister, Miss Alvine Stein of Louisville, who were killed at New Rochelle on Sunday by the automobile of John C. Rodgers, Jr., were held yesterday in St. Luke's German Lutheran Church at New Rochelle. The pall bearers were Mrs. Kuchler's four sons. One of them is President of the New Rochelle Board of Aldermen and another is President of the Police Board.

As the two hearses containing the bodies of Mrs. Kuchler and Miss Stein approached the church all of the church bells of the city were tolled. The funeral was largely attended. Among those present were representatives of the Aldermen, Police, and city departments.

Indignation is high in New Rochelle over the action of the automobile party in killing the two aged women on Main Street in broad day and then running away without offering them assistance. The people of the city demand that all reckless automobilists be punished in general, and to this end a petition is being circulated asking that the law be changed to make the first offense punishable by imprisonment instead of a fine. Those who are circulating the petition will get 2,000 signers and then take it to Albany and ask to have it passed at the present session of the Legislature.

TIMS STILL A SERGEANT.

The Shakespearean Scholar of the Police Wins His Case.

"Tims is himself again."—Shakespeare revised.

Action was taken in the Supreme Court yesterday to restore Oliver Tims to his place as Sergeant and Shakespearean scholar of the Police Department. The legal documents didn't say a word about the scholarly end of the matter, but that is understood, of course. Ex-Commissioner McAdoo retired Tims on a pension because he couldn't hop nimbly over a bar at a certain regulated height and do other athletic acts before the Board of Police Surgeons.

The proceedings consisted in the granting of an alternative writ of mandamus by Justice Clinch directing Commissioner Bingham to restore Tims to active duty and to his former place and rank in the department. Application for the writ was made two weeks ago by Grant & Rouss, who appear for Tims and a score of other former policemen in the same predicament.

It is expected that Sergt. Tims will be immediately restored to active duty.

D. B. HILL VISITS SENATE.

Drops In on His Way to Albany from South Carolina.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Ex-Senator D. B. Hill of New York spent some time to-day on the floor of the Senate and in the Democratic cloakroom. He is on his way to his home at Albany from South Carolina, where he has spent the last two months on account of ill-health. He is now much improved.

The visit was the first made to the Senate by Mr. Hill since his retirement from that body nearly ten years ago. He exchanged greetings with his old-time colleagues of both parties, and was introduced to many of the newer members.

Larry Rogers, who gave out a "fake" confession to the effect that he was hired by two members of the police force to murder the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, and later admitted that the whole story was part of a "practical joke," was sent to Sing Sing for seven years and six months by Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday.

10 PER CENT. LAWLESS, AUTO CHAMPION SAYS

Their Methods Disgusting, He Asserts at Stanley Bill Hearing.

BUT NO NEW LAW IS NEEDED

Citizens Will Go Armed Next, Advocate of Bill Asserts—Auto Association Split.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Prominent officials of automobile clubs and associations all over the State appeared to-day before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee to protest against the Stanley bill, which establishes a State Commission for the government of automobiling, including the fixing of speed regulations and the examining and licensing of chauffeurs. It was asserted that the bill had split the Automobile Association of America, so earnest were the advocates and the opponents of the bill among the members.

Charles T. Terry of New York made the principal argument for the opposition. John C. Coleman, Assemblyman Stanley, and James Vandyck Card spoke for the bill. Coleman dwelt upon the recent fatal accident in New Rochelle. Oliver Quayle of Albany, Lincoln G. De Cant of Watertown, H. A. Meldrum of Buffalo, and others appeared against the bill.

Mr. Terry declared it was another effort on the part of the West End Association of New York to limit the rights of automobilists. "This bill," he began, "will be difficult of enforcement. Why won't the old highway law do? That is adequate enough, if enforced."

Mr. Rogers of Broome, with the New Rochelle accident in mind, inquired if the users of automobiles had been conforming to the rules of the road.

Mr. Terry replied that they had in the main. In his opinion, the lawbreakers formed only 10 per cent. of automobilists in the State.

President Card of the West End Association held they formed at least 40 per cent.

Mr. Terry continued: "The methods of that 10 per cent. are disgusting and reprehensible, but because of them don't take our natural rights away. Don't let the misconduct of a few stigmatize the class. The present law is all right, if enforced. But even so, public opinion is not back of the present law, else Justices would enforce it."

Assemblyman Stanley asked if the opponents of his bill would object to a speed limit device—one that would stop a machine when it exceeded a certain speed limit. The answer was that it would not be objected to, but the automobilists doubted if such a device could be workable.

Mr. Card declared that the carrying of revolvers for protection against vicious and irresponsible automobilists would be a logical result of the present lawlessness. He scorned the idea that an automobilist don't know how fast he is traveling. In his opinion, if they didn't have a fair estimate they were not fit to run a machine. He was for legislation that would curb a growing and monstrous evil.

"This bill," began John C. Coleman, "was drawn for certain officials of the Auto Club of America—W. W. Niles, W. E. Scarritt, and D. H. Morris. Now they run from the measure, though not denying that it represents their views. Last year the automobilists came here and said the present law was enforced too much; now they say it is not enforced at all."

A proposition for inter-State courtesies relative to automobiles was suggested to the opponents of the Stanley bill. At present New York City or any New York State machine driving in New Jersey is subject to a special tax. Jersey machines pay nothing in this State. If they be tagged with a New Jersey identification device that is sufficient. The plan is to pass retaliatory legislation in this State, and thus force the New Jersey Legislature to abolish the tax on New York State machines, or in default the Jersey automobilists will be subjected to conditions which New Yorkers now meet in New Jersey.

President Quayle of the State association was authorized to appoint a committee of three to plan for legislation to be introduced at the session of 1907.

SAYS EDISON CO. RUINED HIM.

Campbell Brings Suit to Recover for His Lost Lamp Business.

The Edison Electric Light Company of Harrison, N. J., is defendant in a $500,000 damage suit filed in the United States Circuit Court at Newark, yesterday by George Campbell, formerly in the electrical business in Harrison under the name of the Germania Electric Light Company. Summonses were served on two resident Directors of the concern here yesterday. The basis of the action is the alleged destruction of Campbell's business.

Mr. Campbell, in his complaint, sets forth that he began the manufacture of incandescent electric lamps six years ago, and had built up a lucrative business. He says that in 1904 it was the policy of the General Electric Company and the Edison Electric Light Company, the defendant corporation, to organize manufacturers of incandescent lamps throughout the country into a strong combination, and "with them to conspire to fraudulently drive out of business all makers of incandescent lamps who refused to join the combination."

The declaration further sets forth that early in 1904 the defendant company urged the plaintiff to join the combination, threatening, in case of his refusal, that his shipments would be followed up and he and his customers would be sued on the ground of his alleged infringement of a process known as the improvement in leading in wires for incandescent electric lamps.

The complainant alleges that in consequence of the intimidation to which his customers were subjected his business was completely destroyed and he was ruined.

Distinctiveness: Its Sources

RELATIVE TO READY-FOR-SERVICE CLOTHING FOR MEN

Of Which This Is Number Four

Cleverness is a benefit only when it has a defined purpose. We have devised a number of innovations in the tailoring of a garment, which we believe to be clever—and they have a vital purpose.

This is one of them: instead of leaving the interlining or canvas to the discretion of the tailor, we cut it to a specific size. A coat in size forty has every integral part in size forty.

This is essential if the garment is to hold its shape, not only after it is pressed, but as long as it is in service.

Such is the source of distinctiveness in our ready-for-service garments for men.

TAMMANY PEACE TALK.

Lots of It—Nothing Back of It but Some City Hall Visits.

McClellan office holders and Tammany men who stand by Murphy appear to have weak nerves these days. This was shown yesterday when a little thing like the return of Alderman "Little Tim" Sullivan from Hot Springs, and his presence with Congressman "Big Tim" at the City Hall stirred up all sorts of reports about peace having been declared between Murphy and McClellan.

"Big Tim" and "Little Tim," walking through City Hall Park toward the City Hall in the morning, were met by Borough President John F. Ahearn. The three exchanged greetings and then the Sullivans went with Ahearn to the latter's office for a friendly chat. Politics, of course, was the subject, for these men never could come together without taking up the subject which is food, drink, and air to them. After half an hour of conversation in a lighter vein the Sullivans dropped in to see President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen for another little chat.

By this time the gossips around City Hall were wrought up. A few minutes later President O'Donnel of the Tax Board entered the Mayor's office on a small matter of official business. It was the last straw. Was not O'Donnel the confidential friend of Murphy? Enough. Politicians were working to bring about peace and harmony between the two, and the gossips announced accordingly that peace and harmony had been established.

The gossips all but collapsed when they saw Fire Commissioner John H. O'Brien appear in the doorway, not indicating by the slightest look whether the Mayor had agreed to a Murphy-McClellan peace or was still working on the old plan to make O'Brien the leader of Tammany Hall.

A few wiseacres declared that the various moves meant an anti-Hearst alliance between the city officials and the interested in Tammany, who have been warring for months. The men most concerned declared otherwise. Both Ahearn and McGowan said that the call of the Sullivans was on a friendly and not a political basis. O'Donnel declared he discussed only an official errand of small importance. Then everybody agreed that the day must have been dull from the news collector's point of view.

Redfern Whalebone Corsets

are due in a large measure to the quality of their boning, which is a vital point in corset "style" and ease.

Redfern has a subtle and lasting elasticity in its light fibres that is not equalled in other boning. It is selected from the choicest Arctic whalebone. There are no corsets that approach these in shape, material or daintiness, as they are foremost in corsetdom—leaders in corset fashion.

RATE FIGHT HAS BROKEN THE SENATE OLIGARCHY

Allison's Opposition to Aldrich Surprises Washington.

DEMOCRATS ARE CONSULTED

President Has Secret Channels of Communication with Tillman and Others of Minority.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The surprising changes in alignment in the Senate caused by the Railroad Rate bill have now reached their climax. The Senate oligarchy is broken, and Senator Allison is leading one Republican faction, while Senator Aldrich leads the other.

The rate situation in the Senate is without a parallel. An Administration bill, antagonized by the Republican leader, with a Democrat in charge of it, and that Democrat the President's chief adversary, was the first development. Since then the changes have gone on with such rapidity that only yesterday the Democratic leader, Senator Bailey, was complaining publicly that the President had not invited Democrats to participate in the framing of an amendment to the bill.

The spectacle of Messrs. Allison and Aldrich leading opposing hosts in the Senate, however, is of all others the one most certain to make old onlookers sit up and rub their eyes. Mr. Allison, it is true, is not officially in charge of the President's interests, but the moment he entered the fight he necessarily became a leader by virtue of his position in the Senate.

Allison and Aldrich are the chiefs of the little knot of men which for years has ruled the Senate. Never before have they been divided. Allison waited long before declaring himself, but on Saturday he attended the White House conference, and since then has been out in the open.

It is a sufficiently unusual thing to see Mr. Allison take an active and decided part in a fight; but to have him fighting against Aldrich would have been declared unthinkable a week ago. His appearance as leader of the Republican friends of the Rate bill has vastly boomed the interest in the rate situation. Everybody is now watching with eagerness to see which of the two great Senate chieftains will demonstrate superior generalship.

Hitherto it has been difficult to form any idea who were the most influential men in the little oligarchy which runs the Senate. Their differences have been fought out in private, and when they appeared in open Senate they were always, or almost always, united. About the only exception has been Mr. Hale, who has sometimes expressed his disagreement with a policy framed by his associates.

Aldrich has been generally recognized as the leader of the cabal, but there has been always plenty of material for speculation about who was the real dominating force in it, if any one man was. The present fight between Aldrich and Allison may bring a show-down. Hale and Spooner stand with Aldrich in opposing the Hepburn bill in its present form.

It was definitely learned to-day how President Roosevelt and Senator Tillman have been able to keep in touch during the recent fighting on rates. It is impossible for Senator Tillman to go to the White House. He has never crossed its threshold since the President to humiliate him withdrew the invitation for the dinner in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia because of the personal encounter between Tillman and his colleague, Senator J. L. McLaurin on the floor of the Senate.

Tillman has never forgiven the President for this affront. Yet the President and Senator Tillman are keeping in full touch. A former New England Senator, now a high official of the Government, has been the go-between. This able and brilliant man devotes his entire time from his official duties to the service that has been placed upon him. He visits the President and discusses and counsels with him, and then goes to the home of Senator Tillman and carries the message that has been committed to him. Thus Senator Tillman has been all the while informed of every move in the fight long before its occurrence.

There are some Senators of the minority who have been kept in touch with the President's ideas on the Rate bill through another channel of communication. This bearer of tidings is a Texas Judge of learning and ability as a lawyer and a great student of railroad transportation problems. To him is credited the authorship of the greater part of the Hepburn bill and also of the amendment that was placed in Senator Lodge's hands to introduce. It is the common belief that this trusted aide to the President is slated for appointment to the Inter-State Commerce Commission in the near future.

The speech by Senator Newlands in the rate debate to-day was not a contribution to the legal, constitutional or practical phases of the subject. It was rather a political argument on rate control. The utterances of the Nevada Senator were more remarkable for their novelty and boldness than for their application to the problem involved in the bill itself.

Mr. Newlands declared that the effect of the passage of the Rate bill would be to force the railroads into politics on a scale and with an energy never before witnessed. They would, through their managers, traffic agents, and many employes work on the party leaders and workers in both parties for the purpose of controlling the election of members of Congress, Senators, and of the President of the United States.

"You can't keep twelve billions of capital in railroads out of politics when the interests of railroads are assailed by legislation of any sort," he said. "The railroads have 1,200,000 employes, nearly one-tenth of the labor of the country. These employes will be made to vote as the railroads decide. Already these employes are taking a part in public affairs and are sending petitions here to Senators to vote against this bill because, if it be passed, they believe it will reduce their pay. You can't keep the railroads out of politics after this."

Mr. Newlands applied his argument along this line to support his contention that the taxation of railroads should be regulated by more satisfactory legislation and greatly increased.

FOOD.

JOE'S LUCK

Drew a Prize in Matrimonial Lottery.

"Before we were married my husband was a coffee drinker and subject to severe attacks of sick headache, which interfered with his duties as Sup't of a large factory," writes a young Mass. matron.

"I had made up my mind that coffee was at least partly to blame, and that I could cure him after marriage by the use of Postum Food Coffee.

"When I told my younger sister about it she laughed and said: 'Just wait and see! After you are married you'll find that Joe will have his coffee anyway.'

"I proceeded gradually, first eliminating by degrees the pastry and sweets from the daily menu, and as his meals were always daintily served and appetizing, he began to have faith in his wife's ability as a cook.

"Meantime his headaches became less frequent, but did not cease altogether. When the time was ripe and I proposed to use Postum Food Coffee he consented upon the promise that he should have the old kind of coffee at his Sunday breakfast. He grew fond of the new food drink, however, and noted that after drinking the old coffee on Sundays he suffered from unsteady nerves and a dull, heavy feeling that he never had on the days when he drank Postum. The result was that at last he said: 'I would rather have the Postum Food Coffee Sunday morning, too, if you don't mind, my dear. The old kind makes me feel like a fool all day.' You may imagine how ready I was to fall in with this suggestion. The old kind of coffee has been banished from our table for more than two years now; Joe's headaches are only a memory and he always has steady nerves and a clear brain to meet the exacting demands of his business. On hot Summer days he relishes a glass of clear, cold Postum with a squeeze of lemon at noon, finding it most refreshing.

"In the Winter I make up a pot of Postum Coffee in the evening, boiling it 15 minutes, and let it set on the back of the range till morning, when it is heated and ready to serve in a few minutes." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

BARNES INQUIRY ORDERED.

Senate Committee to Inquire Into Morris Incident and Citizenship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Benjamin F. Barnes, the Assistant Secretary to the President, who has been nominated for Postmaster of Washington, will not be confirmed without a hard fight.

A sub-committee consisting of Senators Burrows, Carter and Culberson of the Post Office Committee, was named today by Senator Penrose, Chairman of the committee, to investigate and hear all complaints in regard to Barnes. The affair in which Mrs. Minor Morris was dragged from the public waiting room of the executive offices and past the White House by policemen and a negro at Barnes's command will be thoroughly ventilated.

Senator Tillman gave Senator Penrose notice to-day that he would demand fair play and a full inquiry into the case, and he will endeavor to get all the facts before the sub-committee. Four eye-witnesses of the incident have been asked to tell their stories, and it is expected that several other witnesses, including Mrs. Morris's physician, will also be heard.

Representative Hull of Iowa, a brother of Mrs. Morris, who has quarreled with her, spent almost the entire day yesterday on the floor of the Senate and a portion of to-day's session endeavoring to make clear that Barnes did only his duty.

The sub-committee will inquire also into the question whether Barnes is eligible for appointment to any office under the Government. He is a native of Nova Scotia, and went to New Jersey as a boy, his parents remaining in Canada. It is said that he never took out his naturalization papers, although he entered the Government service under a civil service examination, and has held office continually since 1887.

JEROME PARK FILTRATION.

Ellison Says a Plant There Will Save Money to the City.

Commissioner Ellison of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity made a preliminary report to Mayor McClellan yesterday favoring the utilization of the Jerome Park Reservoir for the proposed filtration plant in connection with the new Croton water system. With his report he included a statement by Chief Engineer De Varona of the department.

The two reports hold that the city can, by following the Jerome Park Reservoir plan, save half of the money which it was proposed to expend on a filtration plant under the recommendations of the Burr-Hering-Freeman Commission, which investigated and reported on additional sources of water supply. Incidentally Chief Engineer De Varona complains that he had incomplete data on which to discuss the matter, and requests an appropriation of $50,000 to pay for hiring engineers and making maps and detailed plans and estimates. In his communication to the Mayor the Commissioner cites the following five advantages he believes his plan possesses over the other plans recommended:

First—A proper filtration plant will require approximately 130 acres of land. This land we already have in the Jerome Park Reservoir, and we would thus save the cost incidental to the acquisition of the property.

Second—We thus avoid the long delay and the heavy expense incidental to the condemnation of property for the purposes to which I have referred.

Third—The water will be delivered by gravity at the filters, thus abating the necessity of pumping and the large attendant cost of installation and the constant ones of maintenance and repairs.

Fourth—The danger of contamination of the filtered water in the conduit by inflow during its passage from the distant filter beds to the Jerome Park Reservoir is avoided.

Fifth—The inspection would be more efficient and its cost diminished with the filter beds located within the city limits, and in close proximity to one of our most important pumping stations. The cost of construction and the time required for the completion of the work will be almost cut in two.

The Burr-Hering-Freeman Commission proposed the construction of the filtration plant north of Yonkers at an initial cost of $15,000,000 and an annual maintenance cost of $1,500,000.

SAYS PRESIDENT USURPS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Some time ago the House passed a bill opening to settlement 505,000 acres of land in the Apache, Kiowa and Comanche Indian reservations. The measure went through the Senate also, and to the President for his action.

But a hitch developed, and it became known to members of the Senate and House that if he were obliged to pass upon it the President would veto the bill. So a concurrent resolution was passed recalling it from him, and this morning it came up in the House, amended to meet his objection.

The incident furnished Mr. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn occasion for a speech, in which he gave the House some talk about executive usurpation.

"The first section of the Constitution provides that all legislative power shall be vested in the Congress, which shall consist of the Senate and House of Representatives," he said. "Under this new dispensation all the legislative power sems to be vested in a Congress consisting of three branches—the Senate, the House, and the White House.

"This is not Russia. The President is not a Czar. The Czar originates, enacts and executes the laws. The President does not. He is not the source of all power in our Government. Under our Constitution the President has certain duties to perform which are specifically enumerated and carefully defined. He should not attempt to increase or extend these powers. He should be jealous of his rights, and so should Congress be keen to protect the powers lodged in it."

MINERS MAY MODIFY THEIR DEMANDS TO-DAY

Sub-Committee to Decide on Proposals This Morning.

THEN WILL MEET OPERATORS

Mitchell Displeased Because Baer Gave Out a Statement—Union Leader's Critical Position.

Conferences at the Ashland House occupied the Scales Committee of the anthracite miners a good part of yesterday. They considered the uncompromising attitude of the operators and discussed their policy in the circumstances. Many rumors were in circulation of modifications in their demands, but no official information was given out. The matter has been left in the hands of the sub-committee of seven that is conducting the negotiations with the operators, and their decision will be binding.

A conference will be held this morning at 9 o'clock between the sub-committee and the full delegation to cast into final form the proposals to be made to the operators at the 1 o'clock meeting.

A dispatch sent to Scranton from New York yesterday said that the miners would present to the operators a new set of demands greatly modified from those which the mine owners have so determinedly rejected.

"This information," the dispatch said, "emanates from a source that speaks from a complete knowledge of what the miners will do. The subcommittee of the miners, having ascertained the unbending position of the operators, has reported to the full Scales Committee, and that body, it is said, will to-day so revise the demands of the miners that the operators will be impressed by the conciliatory spirit.

"To-morrow's conference will be attended by the full committee, and the miners will do everything reasonable to secure a peaceful settlement. They will not, however, yield completely on all points which they have made. Should the operators reject the new proposition the miners, it is said, will seek to have the trouble adjusted by the Board of Arbitrators."

The operators did not meet yesterday. Mr. Baer was in Philadelphia, and their determination to "stand pat" leaves no reason for further debates.

Considerable attention was given to the news that already the Lehigh Valley Railway is preparing to lay off some of its men. Over 50 per cent. of its freight is anthracite, and in the belief that a prolonged suspension of work is in sight, it is making arrangements to reduce its staff. A good many improvements that had been planned for the coming Summer will also be abandoned. The Lehigh's income from the carriage of coal last year was $13,530,337.

The miners showed as few signs of excitement yesterday as the day before. Mr. Mitchell was anything but pleased that statements had been given out after the conference on Tuesday by the operators, but even this, which he considered a breach of faith, would not move him to divulge anything that has taken place. He is believed to be at a critical point with reference to his leadership. He has to justify to his followers his policy in ordering a strike without another conference with the operators. He shows the strain in his manner.

The miners met at 9 o'clock and continued in session until noon. A recess was then taken until 2 o'clock. At the afternoon meeting Mr. Mitchell was present and it lasted for a little over an hour. At its conclusion the following statement was given out:

"The general committee appointed by the Shamokin convention of miners met at the Ashland House to-day and had under consideration the communication from the Governor of Pennsylvania, and the offer of the anthracite coal operators to renew and continue for three years the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission. It was decided that the matter of further negotiations and the propositions of the anthracite miners be referred to the sub-committee appointed by the general committee.

"A further meeting of the general committee will be held to-morrow at 9 A. M. The sub-committee is in session."

The meeting thus referred to was exceedingly brief, and from this it appeared that, whatever might be the feeling among the general committee, the men to whom have been intrusted the task of the actual negotiations are thoroughly in accord as to their policy.

There does not seem much probability of the acceptance of the operators' suggestion of continuing the agreement under which work has been carried on for the last three years. One of the District Presidents expressed the opinion yesterday that the miners would rather go back to work without any agreement at all than continue the present arrangement. They maintain that the operators have not lived up to it, and that they have fared worse with an agreement which has not been observed than if they had had no protection at all.

Mr. Mitchell read a dispatch announcing that President Roosevelt has refused the request of J. C. Winder, Chairman of the Committee of Indianapolis Operators, to intervene in the bituminous coal dispute. The union President would make no comment, but it was easy to see that he regarded the matter as a point gained.

The following letter was approved and sent to Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania by Mr. Mitchell, in answer to the communication sent by the Governor to both the operators and the miners, calling upon them to use every effort to avert the strike:

"Replying to your note of March 31, which was forwarded to me at New York, I beg to assure you that every reasonable effort will be made by the miners to secure a settlement of their differences with the anthracite operators without recourse to a strike."

ANTHRACITE IS STILL UP.

Operators Keeping the Supply Down to Prevent Its Being Cornered.

Anthracite retained its high figure in the local market yesterday. The reports that 50,000 tons stored at Perth Amboy were to be released proved baseless, and the dealers were still in doubt in what direction to look for supplies.

On behalf of the operators it was asserted that the present restriction in the supply of coal is dictated by a desire to save the city from speculators. Wherever it is believed a demand is legitimate for the carrying on of a customer's regular business they are ready to supply it, say the operators, but they will not allow any one to amass a stock to sell at exorbitant rates in the event of a real scarcity.

Transportation charges from Jersey City to Manhattan have been raised by the barge owners about 20 cents a ton. They explain this action by the number of boats that have been hired by dealers as storage places for extra supplies of coal. There is now a scarcity of craft to meet the regular business, and the dealers have to pay higher rates.

Exquisite Easter Millinery.

Further Proof of Our Oft-Proved Claim That No Milliner Can Surpass Us In Beauty of Product and That No Store Approaches Us In Values Given.

In five years we have revolutionized the retail millinery trade by applying common sense to a business line that had been for a hundred years dominated by a combination of sentiment and greediness.

Ever since women's hats became an article of commerce they have been priced more on their beauty and effectiveness than upon their cost to produce.

Speaking broadly, it costs no more to produce a pretty hat than a commonplace one, using the same materials. Why, then, in the name of honest merchandising, should the pretty one cost you more?

At this store it doesn't. Our hats are priced strictly upon their cost to make. Every cent you pay is represented in quality and richness of materials. Beauty and style are attributes that we GIVE you, as a matter of course.

This policy is possible only to a store doing the volume of millinery business that we do—for some years the very largest in America. It is not possible for any organization, however talented, to turn out nothing but masterpieces. Smaller concerns, however, must make their successes pay for their failures. In a business of this magnitude the failures form so small a proportion to the total production of hats that we can afford to sell the success for just what it is honestly worth as merchandise—not as a work of art—and the failures you never see.

This is why we can show you

including all the approved models of the Spring, in original conceits and in copies of famous Parisian handiwork and values that are not duplicated in New York for less than $7.50—many of them for not less than $10.

AUTOMATIC AIR VALVES TO VENTILATE SUBWAY

Should Be Put in by June 1, Says Chief Engineer Rice.

THEY WOULD COST $275,000

But to Cool the Air Other Devices, Not Yet Decided On, Must Be Tried.

Immediate installation of louvres, or automatic valves, in the roof of the Subway is recommended by Chief Engineer Rice in a report he has submitted to the Rapid Transit Commission. The work ought, he says, to be completed by June 1. The chief engineer, aided by a corps of experts, has been at work all Winter in an effort to work out a solution of the Subway heat problem. The present report is a result of his work.

Analyses have shown that in purity there is little or no difference between Subway and street air, so that heat is the only element left to deal with. The valves recommended by Mr. Rice are to be placed half way between the stations, so that the air going streetward through the valves will be replaced by fresh air rushing from the street into the stations.

"The most desirable manner of renewing the air under the conditions which exist in the Subway," says Mr. Rice, "is to exhaust the air at points midway between the stations, thereby causing the inflow of air through the station openings. By this means the freshest air is always secured at the station, and such iron dust as may be liberated is also drawn into the interior and out through the exhaust openings there provided."

Three ways of cooling the Subway by artificial means have been suggested. These are (1) evaporation of water, (2) refrigeration, and (3) the absorption of heat by disposing relatively cool water throughout the Subway. Before any method can be definitely chosen, experiments will have to be made in the Summer. Mr. Rice says that "to improve materially the conditions, the air must be renewed more frequently than at present throughout the whole Subway, and, at the same time, recourse must be had to some method of cooling it."

The movement of the proposed automatic valves will be dependent upon the movement of the trains. Because the rushing trains increase the air pressure in the Subway and thereby cause the valves to open, as soon as a train has passed a valve the latter will close of itself. Mr. Rice made his experiments between the Columbus Circle and the Sixty-sixth Street stations. This is what the report says about them:

"From observations made upon those installed between Columbus Circle and Sixty-sixth Street it was found that approximately 20,000 cubic feet of air per minute were discharged through 100 square feet of louvres during the hours of maximum train movement. From 1 A. M. to 5 A. M., when very few trains were running, only about 5,000 cubic feet per minute were discharged through the same area.

"If the air is to be renewed only for the purpose of ventilation the installment of a sufficient number of louvres would unquestionably bring about the desired result, as the volume of air renewed is nearly directly proportional to the number of passengers carried. When, however, renewal is desired for cooling purposes, and not for ventilation only—as this is commonly understood—train action should be supplemented by other devices such as fans; especially should this be done during the night hours. At this time the outside temperature is at its lowest, and the benefit from air renewal for cooling purposes would be greatest.

"Again, at the present time there is no provision whatever for renewing the air in case the Subway should become filled with smoke. Under such circumstances the signals would be obscured and trains would become stalled; the louvres, therefore, would not be operative. Fans should be provided for such an emergency.

"Louvre chambers are considerably larger than fan chambers of an equivalent capacity; in consequence their cost of construction will be greater. It required no additional power, however, to operate the louvres, while the operation of fans consumes considerable power."

Fourteen valve and fan chambers will be made, if the Chief Engineer's plan is adopted, between Brooklyn Bridge and Columbus Circle. They may be made large enough to serve as exits in case of emergency. The cost of the improvements recommended would be about $275,000.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

ENTOMBED FOR 25 DAYS, MINER IS FOUND ALIVE

WOMEN ATTACK ENGINEERS

LENS, April 4.—Another survivor of the mine disaster at Courrières twenty-five days ago was discovered this morning.

The man was found in Pit No. 4 of the Sallaumines vein. He was in good condition. His name is Auguste Berton. He is 32 years old and was born in the same place as Nemy, the leader of the thirteen men rescued on March 30. Berton suffered less than the men previously rescued.

One of a party of salvage men was working in the mine this morning, when he felt the touch of a hand on his shoulder, and a man, who turned out to be Berton, said:

"I am saved!"

The alarm was immediately given. Berton was taken to the pit mouth, doctors were summoned, and the wife of the rescued man was sent for. There was an affecting meeting between them.

Berton, who was covered with a layer of coal dust, said:

"I was working with my cousin when an explosion occurred, and we became separated. Afterward, alone, I groped about in the darkness, trying to find an outlet. I first found a dead horse, but was unable to eat any of its flesh. Later I found some lunch bags, which belonged to men who had been killed by the explosion, and I lived on the food found in them. I suffered from the cold and took clothing and shoes from the dead. I also found three watches and 24 sous. At one time I gave up hope and tried to commit suicide by opening a vein. I slept ten times and tried to count the days, estimating that eight days had passed since the explosion."

The finding of another miner alive after twenty-five days' entombment caused intense excitement, which soon turned into extreme exasperation against the engineers who have been directing the salvage work. M. Leon, the State Engineer, when he arrived at the pit was surrounded by a crowd of people, who cursed and swore at him, one woman going so far as to strike him.

When the engineers came up from the Courrières pits at noon they were attacked by a crowd of women crying: "Death to the murderers!" They were rescued by a squadron of dragoons. The people are intensely wrought up. They believe that there are other men alive in the mine, and serious disorders are threatened.

Several bodies of miners with the appearance of not having been long dead and a living horse were discovered. The horse was in good condition.

PARIS, April 4.—The Ministry of Justice has directed the Public Prosecutor of Douai, Department of the Nord, to investigate the methods followed by the salvage engineers at Courrières with a view to prosecuting them under the Criminal Code for negligence and manslaughter. The Ministry has ordered the Prosecutor to make a rigid application of the laws without respect to the high position of the responsible persons, including the State and coal companies' engineers.

Premier Sarrien has received notification from the mining companies of the Departments of the Nord and the Pas-de-Calais that they accept the Government's proposition to increase the wages of the miners for the purpose of adjusting the strike.

BRITISH ARMY HAZING CASE.

Colonel of Scots Guards Says Maltreated Officer Was Dirty.

ALDERSHOT, April 4.—Four Lieutenants of the First Battalion of the Scots Guards—Hamilton, Dalrymple-Hamilton, Jolliffe, and Harford—were placed on trial to-day before a court of inquiry, which is making an investigation into the hazing of Second Lieut. Clark Kennedy, who was severely maltreated by his fellow-officers last month because, it is alleged, he was too poor to meet all the regimental subscriptions. The court is composed of four Generals and two Colonels, Lieut. Gen. Sir Gerald Morton presiding.

Lieut. Kennedy testified that after mess on March 18, just after he had returned from sick leave, he was tried by a mock court-martial on the charges that the medical officer had found him in a filthy condition, and that he had told his Colonel a lie. Kennedy was thereupon sentenced to be stripped and to take a bath. The sentence was carried out with force. A mixture of motor oil and other ingredients was poured over Kennedy, and jam was spread over his hair. Subsequently Kennedy escaped naked to his room. His persecutors, however, proceeded to break the door open, whereupon Kennedy jumped out of a window and took refuge in a hotel.

Kennedy comes of a family of well-known soldiers.

Col. Cuthbert, commanding the Scots Guards, testified that it had been reported to him by the medical officer that Kennedy was suffering from a skin disease as the result of neglect. The Colonel thought it disgraceful that such a thing should exist among young men of that station in life, and expressed the hope that his brother-officers would deal with Kennedy.

Col. Cuthbert added that he only intended to suggest moral pressure, and did not foresee that physical force might be employed.

The trial was adjourned.

BANKER A SUICIDE.

Heinrich Block Introduced American Methods in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—Heinrich Block, a banker, hanged himself at his residence to-day.

Block first introduced into Russia on a large scale the American method of advertising. He was engaged principally in the sale of lottery bonds on the installment plan, his own fortune having been based on his luck in drawing a capital prize of $150,000. In every city and town in Russia his name was painted in large letters on the blank walls of buildings.

It is intimated that Block was heavily committed on the Bourse, and that the investigation into his death will develop a big bankruptcy.

BUREAUCRACY'S WATERLOO.

St. Petersburg Elections Followed by Reform Victories in Country.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—Nothing is left to complete the rout of the Government parties in St. Petersburg, the great stronghold of the bureaucracy.

Three-fifths of the voters are in the employment of the Government, and the election was fixed for their pay day. The official organ published lists of the candidates put forward by the Moderates and Reactionaries, and carefully ignored the Constitutional Democratic candidates. Every effort was made to discourage and disorganize the opposition by threats or imprisonment. The right of meeting remained a dead letter till within a few days of the election.

Yet in spite of all these adverse conditions the Government has been hopelessly beaten. The Constitutional Democrats have carried every electoral seat, even in wards where the official and commercial elements predominated and where every nerve had been strained to obtain votes.

The persistent rumors of projected Jewish massacres at Easter are traceable to Reactionary sources. It is more than doubtful if the local authorities would again dare to permit atrocities after the official publication of Ministerial circulars warning them to take precautions, and especially after the Opposition victories in the elections, the Constitutional Democrats being committed to demanding the punishment of guilty officials as soon as the Douma meets.

RUSSIAN LOAN ISSUE SOON.

To be for at Least $200,000,000, and More If Possible.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—In view of the agreement at Algeciras, Russia has opened preliminary negotiations in Paris for a large foreign loan. It is to be of at least $200,000,000, and Russia desires more if possible.

The syndicate with which Russia is negotiating is composed of German, Dutch, and British capitalists, but so far as is ascertainable, no Americans are connected with it.

GERMANY PUNISHING RUSSIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, April 4.—The relations between Germany and Russia appear to be a good deal more strained than has been indicated even in recent articles in the German press, which have spoken of considerable friction.

The National Zeitung says to-day that serious differences have arisen over the interpretation of the new Russo-German commercial treaty. It also repeats the report that the German Government has refused to lend its support to a new Russian loan in Berlin.

There seems no doubt that the situation is primarily due to the attitude of the Russian delegates at Algeciras. It is evident that Germany expected Russia to throw over her ally at the conference and to support the German contentions. Why this expectation was entertained remains a mystery, but it is certain that Russia's behavior caused intense disappointment in the Wilhelmstrasse.

"Is Lamsdorff a Russian Delcassé?" is the question that one semi-official Berlin newspaper recently asked, and the officially inspired Frankfurter Zeitung, after Count Lamsdorff's circular note regarding the Morocco conference was published, remarked that Russia had done "no good to herself" and that the Czar's Government was trying to raise money in other countries besides France, adding that these financial negotiations had certainly not been facilitated by Russia's behavior.

WE WON, SAYS BUELOW.

He Declares That Germany Got What She Sought at Algeciras.

BERLIN, April 4.—Chancellor Bülow, at the request of The Associated Press, to-day gave the following estimate of the results of the Algeciras Conference:

"The principle of equal privileges for all countries in Morocco has been asserted and maintained. That was the contention of Germany from the beginning—the one thing that German diplomacy strove for. We placed it beyond our power to ask for anything for Germany that we did not ask for all countries. So powerful was this simple statement of the principle of equal privileges that France, Great Britain, and all the countries admitted it at the opening of the conference as regards the open door for trade.

"But the question then arose, How was the door to be held open? What guarantees could be given that no one should afterward step into the open door and block the way? Two guarantees only appeared adequate to the German Government—international control of the Bank of Morocco and international supervision of the police. These guarantees have been accepted by France and all the other participating countries."

"While Germany has obtained those things which she sought, France has obtained recognition of her special position as neighbor of the Sultan, first, by international legitimization of her right to maintain order adjacent to the Algerian frontier, a right which Germany never contested; second, by a larger share in the State Bank, and, third, by having intrusted to her the instruction of the police in company with Spain and under international supervision.

"Throughout this long controversy the European powers have been aware that President Roosevelt was ready to assist in any proper manner in the effort for an agreement. The American Government's advice and attitude were helpful, especially during the latter stages of the conference. Mr. White was a conciliatory force."

A NEW Storage for Furs. We have recently completed the most thoroughly equipped cold storage vault for furs in the world.

Before accepting furs for storage we thoroughly clean them by a new process with THE VACUUM CLEANER. This removes every particle of dust, dirt, insects or insect eggs.

The furs are then placed in the cold storage room, in which a current of cold air is constantly circulating.

The action of this circulating air is most benefical to furs, it has a remarkable toning effect and makes them fluffy and brilliant.

Before the garments are returned they are again given a thorough cleaning.

Our charges cover insurance against theft, fire and moth, and are really less than you would expect to pay for the renovating treatment alone.

We would be glad to send you a little booklet, "The Proper Care of Furs," if you will indicate the desire to have it.

RAILROAD COMMISSION CENSURES THE B. R. T.

Slaps Company for Not Making Improvements Urged.

RAPS CITY AUTHORITIES, TOO

No Work Done on Manhattan Bridge and Police Force for Regulating Traffic Has Been Reduced.

In its report on the condition of passenger transportation in Brooklyn, issued yesterday, the State Railroad Commission criticises the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for its failure to make certain improvements recommended a year ago. The city authorities are also sharply notified of their neglect to better the Brooklyn traffic situation. In dealing with the city's responsibility for the congestion in the rush hours, the commission cites its previous recommendations and says:

"No contracts have yet been executed for additional tunnels under the East River, no work on erecting the Manhattan Bridge has been done, and the police force for regulating vehicle traffic and expediting cars has not been increased, but has been reduced."

As to the recommendations not followed out by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the report states:

"The Brooklyn Heights Railroad has not complied with this board's recommendation that an additional track be constructed on all its elevated lines, nor has it lengthened its platforms on the Broadway line from the ferry to East New York or on the Ridgewood line from Vanderbilt and Knickerbocker Avenues.

"It has not complied with the recommendation that ash cars be operated only at night."

The report concludes with the statement that no material improvements can be made on the lines which are operated over the Brooklyn and Williamsbridge Bridges during the rush hours.

"Additions to the service," says the board, "can be made during the other hours. The conditions of the surface and elevated travel are better than they have been for a number of years."

In reply to the criticisms made by the commission, this statement was given out at the offices of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company yesterday:

"The situation on the elevated lines was carefully looked into by the Railroad Board on March 22, as was the situation on the surface lines on March 27. Full reports were made, which embodied several recommendations for each branch of the system.

"All have been complied with on the elevated lines except those pertaining to the extension of platforms on the Broadway line and the installation of certain signals and track work on the Brighton Beach line. These changes are now under way.

"Changes recommended in the surface lines are now in process of completion."

The commission's report gives some new figures for Brooklyn traffic, showing that the number of passengers carried on both elevated and surface systems in January, 1906, was 34,377,752, which is 6,121,547 more than in January, 1905, an increase of 21.63 per cent.

DALRYMPLE.

Judge EDWARD F. DUNNE was elected by a plurality of 24,000 and received the largest recorded vote for Mayor of Chicago. As a direct result the city was last year officially committed to the quickest possible cessation of private franchises for public utilities. Immediate municipal ownership and operation of the street car lines had been the platform of the successful candidate, and this policy had been determined on a separate ballot by 90,000 majority.

Difficulties arose with which the public is sufficiently familiar. The Mayor's plans worked smoothly on paper. But the City Council was again forced to negotiate with the companies, and meanwhile Mayor DUNNE had wisely cabled for, and obtained, the leading expert on municipally owned street railways in the world, Mr. JAMES DALRYMPLE of Glasgow. Mayor DUNNE suppressed Mr. DALRYMPLE's report. It came out, nevertheless, last month, and imbedded in its ungrateful framework the people of Chicago discovered this paragraph of caution:

> Presuming that you are able, at a satisfactory figure, to purchase the present franchises, there would undoubtedly be a very grave danger in your city attempting to operate what would be the largest street railway undertaking in the world without making a very radical change in the methods usually employed in carrying on municipal work by the cities of the United States.

As a pledge of the Chicago Council necessitated a referendum, the people voted on April 3, 1906—just a year after the triumphal entry of DUNNE—separately on the questions of municipal ownership and operation. DUNNE's plurality had been 24,000. The vote for municipal operation on Tuesday lacked 17,791 of the requisite three-fifths for adoption, and the majority declaration in favor of municipal ownership and the issuance of certificates of purchase was 3,330, as against a majority of 90,000 for that policy a year ago.

The Glasgow expert had also stated:

> If the city insists on taking over all the lines at once, $75,000,000 would be only a starter. Enormous sums would have to be spent to bring the lines up to a state of efficiency.

Mayor DUNNE is now free, as he predicted the other day, to "clinch the right of the people to proceed to acquire the lines":

> As soon as the Mueller certificate ordinance becomes a law we shall proceed at once to advertise and issue Mueller law certificates. Then we shall have a test case carried to the Supreme Court to determine whether the certificates are valid.

But there will be no sale of the $75,000,000 of certificates until their validity is established, which requires two years' litigation. Then their security will be the street railway property itself, which, Mr. DALRYMPLE states in his report, is "worn out." The companies must be allowed to say on what terms they will sell to the city, according to the statement made by Mayor DUNNE after the election. We wonder just how much he supposes the Mueller certificates will be worth when placed upon the market?

MANHATTAN BRIDGE.

Neither the technical authority nor the disinterestedness of The Scientific American will be impugned by anybody. These qualities give especial weight to an open letter to the Mayor, signed by "The Editor," which that periodical publishes in this week's issue on the subject of the Manhattan Bridge. After a careful review of the history of the project, first under Commissioner LINDENTHAL and then of its progress, or rather, its lack of progress, under Commissioner BEST, the article concludes:

> Summing up, we beg your Honor to consider the following facts as between these two sets of plans:
> That the eye-bar plans were drawn by engineers who, having in view the desirability of quick construction, adopted the eye-bar system because of its great facility of erection and smaller cost. That these plans were submitted to an independent board of bridge engineers of high professional reputation, who gave them unqualified indorsement. That several bridge manufacturing companies have stated (1) that they are prepared to bid upon the plans, (2) that they can furnish eye-bars of the size and structural quality specified, and (3) that the bridge can be built more quickly and for considerably less money than one of the wire-cable type.
>
> That the wire-cable plans, as completed by the Bridge Department, have never been submitted for the consideration of any outside board of experts. That your Bridge Department officials have, on the contrary, thrown every obstacle in their power in the way of such discussion of these plans by an independent commission. * * * That this premeditated and carefully guarded secrecy has raised an inevitable and very reasonable doubt in the minds of the technical world, in which we strongly share, as to the ability of the wire-cable plans to stand comparison with the plans for which they were substituted.
> Finally, and in view of the above facts, we respectfully submit to your Honor that in order to safeguard the interests of this city in this matter, it is advisable that you should instruct the engineers of your department to offer both sets of plans for bids, and thereby make sure that, whether the eye-bar or wire-cable type be selected, the city will secure the cheapest possible bridge in the least possible time.

It seems difficult for the Mayor to avoid the conclusion that it is necessary to the credit of his administration that this most important and costly improvement shall not be permitted to be carried any further in hugger-mugger, but that it must be decided in the open. The people of New York have a right to know that they are getting the best, the cheapest, and the quickest bridge for their money.

TWO LEADERS.

It is announced that Massachusetts thinks of appealing to the President for aid in getting a hearing on the tariff. Her Representatives are in despair as to any action by the party managers. Chairman PAYNE's letter settled that. The notion of a caucus does not, as we were sure that it would not, make much headway. An appeal to Mr. ROOSEVELT suggests itself. We fear that it will prove utterly futile.

Mr. ROOSEVELT is not Mr. MCKINLEY. Some of his admirers allude to the fact with misplaced pride, which, we are confident, is not shared or approved by Mr. ROOSEVELT. The difference is not necessarily unflattering to the reputation of the living or to the memory of the dead President. But it is a difference that makes such a move as that of the Massachusetts Republicans extremely unpromising. Mr. MCKINLEY, as a political leader, had a kind and degree of foresight and breadth of view which, so far, Mr. ROOSEVELT cannot be said to have shown. The history of their action toward the tariff indicates plainly enough what we mean. Mr. MCKINLEY had an intimate knowledge of the political and a fair knowledge of the business side of the tariff. He saw, despite the popularity of the policy of his party, that that policy was bound to come in conflict with the wider interests and the permanent tendencies of the business of the country. He weighed the conflict patiently and honestly, and warned his party in the most serious manner that it should be avoided; that the course of the party should be brought into harmony with modern conditions; that this should be done gradually, but should at once be begun, and should steadily be carried forward. Had he lived, there is little doubt that, given his skill and sagacity, his persistence and conciliatory methods, the party would have yielded to his remarkable leadership.

Mr. ROOSEVELT, at one moment, immediately after his accession to office, appeared determined to take up the work of his illustrious predecessor. But the determination soon lapsed. Apparently, he was not prepared to face the consequences, and he did not seem capable of shaping them. He early showed signs of discouragement, and then of practical indifference. Other things distracted him. Whether his sense of the importance of what Mr. MCKINLEY had begun was less acute, or whether he felt less disposed to the struggle it involved, he soon dropped the matter, and he has never shown any desire to resume it. He had not taken his stand in the deliberate manner of Mr. MCKINLEY; he had not the definite opinions regarding the present or the future; he had not calculated the situation with the same care or precision, and it is possible that the ultimate consequences of a decision did not interest him as much. It is not to be denied that the other things by which he was distracted were of real importance, but we think Mr. MCKINLEY would have found time to attend to them without abandoning the reform of the tariff as to which he had such deep-seated and definite convictions. A movement such as that of the Massachusetts Republicans, especially with the movements in the West of the same nature, would not have been presented to him in vain. He would have seen their significance and their essential timeliness at an early stage and would have known how to deal with them. Not so Mr. ROOSEVELT. We fear that the appeal of Mr. MCCALL and his associates will be hopeless.

MR. PROUTY'S CONVERSION.

It is to be remarked with pleasure that the Inter-State Commerce Commission, having returned to Washington, has reconsidered its view of its duty toward the shabby railway rate frauds which it uncovered here. When Commissioner PROUTY asked for advice, and was told that the complaining witness would like to see the petty thieves prosecuted, he asked, "Why don't you apply yourself to the District Attorney of this county?" Upon reflection, Mr. PROUTY perceives that the law which is violated is one under his own Commission's care, and, according to a Washington telegram, he will certify the cases to the Department of Justice for prosecution under the Federal statute.

This is as it should be. Not that anybody would object to the road by which such violators of the law traveled to jail, but it has so long been the practice of the Commission to devote itself to the perfection of the law as it thought it ought to be, rather than to enforcement of the law as it is, that it is agreeable to note activities in the latter direction. It is worth while to make these remarks lest anybody should think that a critical attitude toward the Railway Rate bill is approbatory of abuses under the Inter-State commerce law. The desire for an enforceable law and the desire that existing law shall be enforced are interdependent and mutually consistent.

FEVER EXCLUSION.

The passage by a vote of 202 to 26 of the National Quarantine bill is a fit sequel to the Chattanooga Quarantine Conference. The vote itself is the best answer to the protest of Mr. HENRY of Texas against taking away from Texas its right to have all the yellow fever it wants. If Texas would keep its yellow fever to itself nobody would object; but sad experience has proved that yellow fever in any State is a menace to every State. The debate on the regulation of inter-State commerce, if not otherwise fruitful, might at least have taught even those ready to die in the last ditch for State rights that there may exist co-ordinate jurisdictions, and that the exercise of Federal jurisdiction is not necessarily antagonistic to the most jealous exercise of any State right whatever. Texas can quarantine all it desires within its boundaries and jurisdiction. All that Texas or any other State loses is the right to admit yellow fever, which it has neither right nor power to exclude, since it lacks the maritime jurisdiction and the control of inter-State commerce which the United States can exercise.

But while the passage of the bill is a stitch in time which every prudent person—except some Texans—is glad to see taken, it is not above criticism. We might well have a general National quarantine, instead of a bill directed against merely yellow fever. The restriction to a sectional disease gives the bill a sectional aspect which it does not deserve, and which we would be glad to see remedied by the inclusion of all sections of the country and all epidemic diseases. And we should be be glad to see the bill further strengthened by the active formal co-operation of the States regarding inter-State commerce.

Much might be done by the States which it is impracticable for Congress to do in deference to the sentiment expressed by the 26 nays. Such action by the States would be the best safeguard against Federal encroachments, if any were designed or attempted. It is agreeable to know that thirteen States dissented from the course of Texas in absenting itself from the Chattanooga Conference, and in standing alone in the conference upon its bill preceding its passage. We can expect a policy of embargo and shotgun medicine in Texas alone. The New Orleans Picayune is critical of the bill, but The New Orleans Times-Democrat approves, and so also does The Chattanooga Times among many other representative Southern sheets. It is true last year's experience proved that yellow fever's sharpest tooth has been drawn, but that is no reason why it should be given the smallest chance to bite.

THE COAL STRIKE PROSPECT.

From behind closed doors come conflicting reports regarding the prospects of an anthracite coal strike. When there is no authentic basis for opinion there can be no intelligent judgment, but this much is certain, behind those doors there is no one to speak for those who want to buy cheap coal, nor for those willing to mine coal at wages which the operators are willing to pay. These are not negligible interests, and sooner or later they will be heard from regarding any settlement in defiance of them. It is said that the United Mine Workers will recast and moderate the demands which have been rejected. They were not rejected as they were made, in the form of a blunt demand. They were rejected for reasons which were plainly stated over responsible signatures in an official document. It is to be hoped that something of the same sort will accompany the new demands, if there are to be new demands.

No one wishes to prejudge the miners' case, but they must supply the material for a judgment in their favor. The side which seeks to impose its will without proffer of submission to impartial inquiry and award will have much to answer for before that public opinion which will be influential in the court of last resort, the American people.

Probably Senator LODGE never had just the experience of Tuesday when he had to announce that he would move to discharge his own committee from the consideration of the Philippine Tariff bill and take the sense of the Senate on the measure. The bill is supposed to be backed by all the influence of the Administration. It is a bill of peculiar justice, as every one officially acquainted with the situation agrees. The only criticism to be made on it is that it does not go far enough. It is held in the Senate committee in obedience to the dictates of two protected interests—beet sugar and domestic tobacco. We wish we could believe that Mr. LODGE's appeal to the Senate would be listened to. We fear it will fall on ears deafened by timidity and selfishness.

The House has passed two railway rate regulation bills, while the Senate has not yet been able to pass its first. This is not so singular as it seems, for the Senate bill, when passed, will have validity, while neither House bill would have had any. Instead of doing anything itself, the House told the Inter-State Commerce Commission to do something, without saying what it was to do, and at the same time without designating the power which should revise the Commission's action. An omnipotent and irreversible commission is worse than the rate trouble we have. That is the substance of the railway rate controversy.

Gov. HIGGINS did quite right in sending in an emergency message with reference to the Prentice bill for the inspection of so-called Raines law hotels. The gist of the law is that these places shall not get their licenses until they have been inspected and found to have conformed to all the requirements of the building law. This, if the bill becomes a law and is faithfully enforced, will close the greater number of the places. That was the intent of the legislation of two years ago, and it is a shame that hundreds of dens of vice and iniquity have managed ever since to escape its restrictions.

The Baltimore Sun beholds regretfully the passing from the Senate of the historic representatives of the Old South, veterans of the civil war, of whom Senator JAMES H. BERRY of Arkansas is a type. The New South is asserting itself. A political upheaval in the Carolinas caused the retirement of ZEBULON VANCE and MATTHEW W. RANSOM and Gen. WADE HAMPTON. The Tillmanesque school of statesmanship is now rampant, but, perhaps, transiently. Its latest recruit, the successor to Senator BERRY, is to be JEFFERSON DAVIS, in whose name only lingers the old flavor of Southern traditions.

The Assembly by its vote on Tuesday would imbed in the Constitution Mr. COX's amendment guaranteeing the preservation of Niagara so far as this State is concerned and able. The bill will now pass to the Senate's consideration. By investing the Falls with the immunity of the Constitution New York will have performed its sacred duty.

It is not the intention to have the present generation pay the entire cost of the Panama Canal.—Administration News.

We are glad that some of the cost is to be defrayed by the generation that will use the canal.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Auto Clubs Plan for Action. It is both pleasant and encouraging to hear that the automobile clubs are giving serious consideration to the Terry plan for bringing the whole weight of their influence and power to bear upon automobilists who break the speed laws or by their recklessness kill or injure other users of the highways. There is some difficulty in understanding, however, why the rules as formulated for the guidance of clubs make such a distinction between members and non-members. The suggestion is, we notice, that erring members should be fined from $5 to $20 for first offenses, suspended for second, and expelled for third. That is all well enough as club discipline, but it will not give much satisfaction to the public, and no reason appears why the same action should not be taken in the case of members as with non-members. As regards the latter the announced purpose is to collect evidence, swear out warrants, and use every effort to bring about the conviction in court of the guilty. We do not, as a general thing, have much favor for the special activity of private organisations and societies in enforcing the laws, since that tends to lessen the responsibility of the police and to result in other abuses, several of which have been well ventilated in the papers of late, but there are peculiar reasons why the automobilists should do their best to impress upon their careless or lawless brothers the enormity of their conduct. Of course it must not be taken for granted that whenever a rustic constable arrests the driver of a motor car the prisoner is guilty as charged, but even when he really is guilty there is difficulty in convicting him, and the case usually comes down to a question of veracity, proverbially puzzling. It would be greatly beneficial to good automobilists if the bad ones could all be brought to justice very early in their hurried careers, and therefore the good ones should give the law all the help they possibly can. They should do so even more as regards the members of their clubs than in the case of outsiders, and experience has proved that with neither will small fines have any effect except upon temper. The true remedy, it seems to us, would be deprivation of license after a second or third offense. This would make professional chauffeurs extremely, or at least decently, cautious about what they did, and if it could somehow be extended to the owners of misused cars, that also would have the force of a real punishment. The privilege of owning as well as that of driving an automobile can be abused.

One Board of Examiners. A bill now before the Legislature which deserves more attention than it has received is one introduced on March 22, ordered printed, and now in the hands of the Committee on Public Health. As summarized by The Medical Journal, it seeks to do away with the State Board of Medical Examiners as now constituted (representing the Medical Society of the State of New York, the Homoeopathic Medical Society of the State of New York, and the Eclectic Medical Society of the State of New York) and to substitute for that board one consisting of nine members to be appointed by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York irrespective of sectarian affiliations. In cases in which the board examines candidates for the license as to their proficiency the examinations are to include the subjects of surgery, obstetrics, gynaecology, pathology, diagnosis, bacteriology, and medical jurisprudence. "It will be noticed," says The Medical Journal, "that materia medica and therapeutics are omitted. The committee's assumption is understood to be that anybody who, besides fulfilling the other requirements substantially as they stand at the present time, can pass a satisfactory examination in the branches specified in the bill is a safe person to license without regard to his belief as to therapeutics." The hope of the committee is that by this change in the law an end will be put to the endless clamor of irregular practitioners and "healers" for special examining boards of their own. The Journal expresses some doubt as to whether desirable results can be obtained in this way, but it apparently deems the plan worth trying, on the theory that the well-educated licensee is not likely to be led far astray by his therapeutic predilections. And, anyway, it says, the profession can more safely accept legislation not positively detrimental to its interest than present a divided front to its tireless enemies, the charlatans, and their allies among the lawmakers. That is rather queer doctrine.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—When John Sharp Williams was fighting to get the Quarantine bill through the House the other day the Texas delegation fought it tooth and nail. They denounced it as a violation of the Constitution, and to a man predicted the downfall of that venerable document if the bill passed. The House, however, passed it.

To-day Mr. Williams bumped up against Mr. Slayden of Texas in the cloakroom. It was the first time they had met since the fight. Slayden looked at Williams with sad reproach, but spoke not. Williams looked back at Slayden apologetically. Then he placed his hand on the Texan's shoulder.

"Slayden," he said comfortingly, "cheer up. To-morrow I am going to introduce a bill to re-enact the Constitution."

"Flint," said Dolliver this afternoon, yawning and stretching over toward the California Senator, "you are going to speak to-morrow, aren't you?"

"Why, no; what makes you think so?"

"Well, Stone is going to speak, and I thought you might hit him up a bit and make the sparks fly."

FERTILIZER IN COKE.

Immense Supply as By-Product in Coalfields.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the editorial page of your issue for Sunday, April 1, under the heading, "Kalkstickstoff," is an interesting and timely presentation of some important facts as to the needs of agriculture for nitrogenous fertilization, and the relation of this substance to the available nitrogen supply.

The writer is glad to see the subject brought up in a place where not only scientific but popular attention will be directed to it, and heartily indorses all you say as to the hunger of the crops for nitrogen; but from the way ammonium sulphate is referred to, a somewhat erroneous impression might be gained by the uninitiated. The substance really plays an important part in the composition of nitrogenous artificial manures.

Of the world's consumption of nitrogen as Chilean nitrate and ammonium sulphate, 33 per cent. was due to sulphate in 1904, and so far from being a fixed quantity, the 500,000 tons of sulphate quoted by Prof. Duncan as produced in 1900 had increased to over 600,000 tons in 1904.

If the 40,000,000 tons of coal that we annually convert into coke were treated in by-product ovens, and the ammonia recovered made into sulphate, we would have 400,000 tons to add to the world's supply of nitrogeneous fertilizer. And, to take up another point that was somewhat obscure, ammonium sulphate is a better fertilizer, pound for pound, than Chilean nitrate, as it contains approximately 20 per cent. of nitrogen, the nitrate containing but 15 per cent.

The writer does not wish to in any way depreciate Prof. Duncan's interesting paper, nor does he doubt that "Kalkstickstoff" has a great future before it. But there is also some hope for the agriculturist in the more rational treatment we are learning to give to our bituminous coal. C. G. ATWATER.

TRINITY'S COMMUNICANTS.

Counts Made on a Visit to Three Chapels on Passion Sunday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For Mr. Wilkinson's benefit I visited three of Trinity's chapels yesterday morning. Called in at St. Paul's; found a congregation of ninety-four. Took the car to Canal Street and walked to St. John's; eighty-seven grown-ups present. Took the car to Twenty-fifth Street and arrived during the celebration of the holy communion; forty-eight communicants. (The estimated number in the Year Book is 750.)

Will Mr. Wilkinson maintain in the face of these statistics that my letter was "unfair, unjust, and misleading"? Yesterday was Passion Sunday, one of the four days in the ecclesiastical year when the attendance at an Episcopal church reaches high-water mark. I say "grown-ups" at St. John's, because a number of Sunday school scholars were present, and cannot be counted as members of the congregation.

I am told the condition of things in Trinity Parish, as shown by my letter, is a great surprise to a great many. I expected it would be. QUILLER.

Another Good Word for the Horse.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to letter signed "A Friend of the S. P. C. A.," in to-day's issue, I will gladly join in hoping that the newly selected officer will make a few changes for the benefit of the ill-treated horses of this city.

To have an agent of the society on the busy streets all day is an excellent idea and the only way to prevent abuses.

One can see every day the most inhuman conduct toward these unfortunate, patient animals on such streets as the Viaduct, on West 155th Street, and others surrounding the Subway at 157th Street; also the various sand and coal yards in the Bronx and other outlying districts.

The writer saw a man this morning strike a horse on the head with a shovel and also kick him in the stomach. When spoken to the man cursed and abused in the most profane language and kept on beating the horse.

It is to be sincerely hoped that something can be done soon for these daily suffering animals.

Side Doors Not an Extra Expense.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of the 28th Mr. J. W. Edmonds suggests the most sane and feasible means for remedying the crush in the Subway and at the same time improving the train service, viz., side doors; but he falls into the same error that almost everybody else does when this matter is discussed. He says side doors mean "more door tenders," whereas the fact is that they do not, as any one can see who happens to be in Boston and rides on the elevated in that city. The guard who stands between each pair of cars opens and closes the side doors as well as the end doors, the side doors being operated by some pneumatic connections. There is nothing the Subway Company could do which would contribute more to the improvement of its train service, by the saving of time at stations, to say nothing of eliminating the outrageous conditions which result from having a common doorway for ingress and exit.

Extenuating Circumstances.

A woman was charged with stealing a dozen cases of silver. She appeared before the Second Judicial Chamber. Said the Judge: "Come, tell us the truth." Said the woman: "The truth, my good Judge, is that I have not been able to resist the temptation. Consider, your honor—they all bore my initials!"

AMERICAN HOME LIFE.

A Family in Which Conditions Have Changed—Whose Is the Fault?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I know nothing about British married life, but I have read Mary Mortimer Maxwell's exposition thereof in THE SUNDAY TIMES. The records of three generations of American married life may, however, have interest for some American wives and mothers.

My mother was born at No. —— Bowling Green. Her father did business in New York City Winter and Summer. His wife and family never deserted him. If a child needed a change it was sent to the country for a week or two. Later a country house was bought a few miles up the Hudson, where the family spent the Summer months.

My brother was born at No. —— Eleventh Street. His father did business in New York City Winter and Summer. His wife and family never deserted him. For two or three months in the Summer all went to their country house a few miles out of town.

My brother's children were born at No. —— Seventy-third Street. He did business in New York City Winter and Summer. His wife and family always deserted him for from three to five months in the year.

There was no question of money involved in either generation. Grandfather, father, and son were all able, and more than willing, to do those things demanded of them by their wives as being necessary and requisite to the comfort and well-being of themselves and their children.

The difference lay not in the husbands, but in the wives. The creed of the women of the first and second generation was that of Ruth: "Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God"—and the creed of the men was like unto it.

The creed of the woman of the third and present generation seems to be: "Stay thou with thy nose to the grindstone, that I and my children may kick up our heels afar off."

In the grandfather's and father's circles there were no divorces. In the son's circle there have been to date six divorces. That the woman is to a large extent what the man makes of her is true enough. The good-natured complacence of the American husband is a world-wide joke. He must bear his share of the blame. But, American wives and mothers, are you content to let it rest there?

ETHICS OF THE THEATRE.

Public Liking No Final Excuse for Trashy Plays.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his admirable lecture on the above topic before the Society for Ethical Culture last Sunday morning Mr. Otis Skinner rather seemed, by implication, to extenuate the policy of some theatrical managers in presenting trashy plays on the ground that they are what the public, or a considerable portion of it, demands.

This excuse is plausible, but not tenable. The trashy play has no raison d'être. No such play ever made a lasting success in this country, and never can while American sentiment and taste remain as they are, a fact which Mr. Skinner justly emphasized.

It is very convenient to blame the public for bad plays and corrupt politicians by declaring that people get as good as they deserve. Whatever truth there may be in this plea, it reveals a low estimate of his calling on the part of him who makes it. If we consider the theatre only as a reflector of the public taste, let us at least ask that the mirror be kept clean, so as not to give indistinct or distorted views.

There is no valid excuse for an inane book, a sensational newspaper, or an inartistic play. Such things are always failures in the end, despite the ephemeral success they sometimes attain.

Theatrical managers and publishers of books and newspapers are in a position where they are bound to render services other than those measured by dollars and cents. To them belongs a large share of the artistic and intellectual leadership of the community. The proper administration of such a trust demands a rare equipment, and most of all a lofty purpose.

That a newspaper to be successful does not have to be sensational is well illustrated by the history of THE NEW YORK TIMES, and that, as a rule, the good play lives while the bad one dies is so well known as to require no illustration.

We ought to have more lectures like that of Mr. Skinner. His admonition to theatregoers to be more discriminating should be heeded.

"FELIX OLDBOY."

Prior Claims of John Flavel Mines to the Well-Known Signature.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of to-day we read a notice of the death of "Felix Oldboy." While the late George Albert Halsey may have been known by that pen name, the "Felix Oldboy" of "Walks in Our Churchyards" and other studies and recollections of Old New York, the late John Flavel Mines, LL. D., was a "Felix Oldboy" too well known to require an introduction at this hour.

How much his facile pen did to rescue associations from oblivion, which otherwise would have been swept away with the structures with which they were connected! It is well said that we cannot buy with gold these old associations.

"One army of the living God
At his command we bow;
Part of the host have crossed the flood
And part are crossing now."

In these rapid days we are prone to forget old friends—the friends of our youth. And so I write you these few lines:

"Lest the dead, who is forsaken,
May not be happy now."

Can Automobile Drivers Be Curbed?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I should like to say "amen" to the letter in your issue of to-day signed "M. S.," anent the encroaching of automobilists into the narrow country roads. In fact, I would go even further, and say that the Legislature be asked to compel them to travel only on specified roads, as in the case of railroad trains, and keep off the highways entirely.

When an accident, such as happened at New Rochelle, can occur in a city street, what chance would one have on the quiet back roads of a small village?

The people who want to enjoy horseback riding and driving with some feeling of safety surely have some rights that ought to be respected, and let us hope the Legislature may find some way to protect such citizens from the encroachment of the modern "Juggernaut car."

MRS. GILBERT'S MEMORIAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To-day you printed a lengthy letter from a committee, (of a suspiciously self-constituted character,) which had been seeking financial aid to dispose of a statue made, or to be made, by Mrs. E. St. John Matthews, of the late Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, the actress, for the preposterous purpose of placing this monument in the Central Park.

The ridiculous character of this little enterprise has long since been evident, and the scheme has, I believe, long since been "scotched." I merely write in defense of the late Mrs. Gilbert to say that she was never aware of such a plan, nor do her friends believe for a moment that she would have approved of such a measure in her behalf.

As to the committee's attacks on one of the managers of the "Theatrical Trust," their disappointment and resentment are of course natural, but no such "manager" of any "Theatrical Trust" is interested in this worthy and suitable plan that Mrs. Gilbert's friends have approved for a memorial window, far more in keeping with the character and position of the actress, to be placed in the church of which she was an honored member. It is for this purpose that the performance at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Tuesday, April 17, is to be given.

How Citizens Are Made.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some days ago I went to the United States courts to take my first naturalization paper. The hours of the bureau are stated to be 9 A. M. to 12 M. I reached there shortly after 9. About ten persons were already there waiting. The door of the bureau was unlocked at 9:35 and the clerk walked in at 9:45. The office boy, a man of 45, now and then bounced on the applicants, and with a mouth foaming with rage bade them to keep in line, followed by a sustained fierce look to see if any one would dare disobey his words of command. On the other hand the clerk, in sympathy with his fellow worker, grew fast and furious, and gave names to some of the applicants who had difficulty in catching the questions put to them. It was about 11:30, after two and a half hours of waiting, when I obtained my paper. Nothing short of American citizenship was worth putting up with so much insolence, incivility, and aggressiveness as displayed by these officials, and the waste of time. I am told that this is typical of American officialdom. I sincerely hope it is not true.

Double Fares.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I recently boarded a Third Avenue surface car at Ninety-fifth Street, and as usual I was hardly seated when the conductor asked for the fare, which I handed to him. Having several parcels, and looking after them, I neglected to ask immediately for a transfer, so waited until the conductor collected another fare from a young lad who entered the car at 109th Street, when I politely asked the conductor, "Do you transfer at 116th Street?" The conductor said "No." I sat quietly, and on reaching 116th Street, but before alighting, I said to the conductor: "I will make inquiries whether or not you transfer at 116th Street." He answered: "I do transfer at 116th Street, but you did not ask for yours quickly enough, so I did not give you any."

The outcome was I had to pay another fare on the 116th Street crosstown car to reach my destination, which was Seventh Avenue. I took the conductor's number, and have the time of entering the car and leaving it.

Dreadnought and Constitution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There appeared in your issue of to-day a letter under the above heading, and commenting on the published accounts of the United States ship Constitution, (as yet in embryo.)

Your correspondent points out the fact that while this monster is being constructed for the United States Navy, an undertaking to last at least three years, Great Britain will not be idle.

Well, I should think not. Great Britain, instead of being idle or even working in the ordinary manner in the keeping of her navy up to the standard, is, year by year, increasing the naval estimates. At the present moment seventy warships are being built in his Majesty's realms for the British Navy.

Dreadnought was launched within four months after her keel was laid down. She will be in commission in six months more. The United States takes two years and a half at the very least to build a battleship. Yes! I think the time is far off when Britannia will cease to rule the waves.

Lexington Avenue Car Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an every-day patron for many years of the Lexington Avenue cars I wish to enter a protest against the recent order of operating the cars below Murray Street on lower Broadway. As now run, all signs read Ninety-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue only. If the cars are to go above that point the signs are changed at Murray Street. By this arrangement a disabled person does not know when taking a car whether he will be subjected to the inconvenience of changing at Ninety-ninth Street or not.

I also desire to complain of the manner of the running of the cars in the forenoon on the down trips, as very few cars are marked "Bowling Green." On the morning of April 2 eleven cars passed the corner of 108th Street marked for Murray Street and points above.

TUSKEGEE CELEBRATES ITS TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR

Special to The New York Times.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., April 4.—The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary this week. Tuskegee itself, of course, is in gala dress, and making a holiday with all its might. But how far the occasion goes beyond any local or State limits in its significance is evident to any one who views it.

There are few other institutions that could draw to visit them, and to honor them on such an anniversary, so many distinguished men as are here to-day or that could so deeply interest so many people as are interested in it.

The formal celebration extends over four days, beginning to-day, but the real celebration began last Sunday when Bishop Doane of Albany preached the anniversary sermon. The rest of it takes the form of addresses from men prominent in National affairs, both political and educational, and in elaborate arrangements to show visitors the workings of the institution.

The largest delegation of visitors came from the north on a special train sent from New York under the auspices of the Armstrong Association, containing 100 persons, guests of Robert C. Ogden, Chairman of the General Education Board.

Among these are Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University, and Mrs. Eliot; William H. Taft, Secretary of War; Andrew Carnegie, the largest benefactor of the institute; Dr. Lyman Abbott and Mrs. Abbott, Isaac N. Seligman, Felix Warburg, W. J. Schieffelin, Dr. J. E. Russell, Dean of Teachers College; E. E. Olcott, Dr. Edwin Knox Mitchell of Hartford Theological Seminary; A. S. Frissel, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank; Dr. H. B. Frissel, Principal of Hampton Institute; Dr. Wallace Butterick of the General Education Board; the Rev. Samuel H. Bishop, George A. Plimpton, Charles C. Burlingham, William Lloyd Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald G. Villard, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes, and Horace White.

The special train bearing these guests was about ten hours late because of a railroad wreck in front of it, which somewhat interfered with the order of the exercises as it had been arranged.

Other guests include many prominent Southerners, among whom are President Charles C. Thach of the Alabama Polytecanic Institute, Judge William H. Hurt of Tuskegee, and the Commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama.

The exercises were held in the chapel of the institute, holding about 2,000 people. Booker T. Washington presided, and on the platform were many of the guests, while behind them was a chorus of institute pupils who sang at intervals some of their characteristic songs.

The chapel was crowded with colored people, among whom was a large sprinkling of white guests. Many of the graduates of the institute who are carrying on its work in other places in the South have returned to take part in the celebration, thus emphasizing one of the essential features of the work at Tuskegee, which is to furnish leaders throughout the South in the education of the negroes on the industrial and technical lines to which it is devoted. Some of them in addresses have set forth in a striking manner the success that has attended these efforts.

The most important incident of to-day was the speech of Secretary Taft, who was introduced as representing the interest which President Roosevelt and his Cabinet feel in the institution. His speech was carefully prepared and was read from manuscript, and created a deep impression.

Mr. Taft reviewed the present situation of the colored race in America, tracing the influences to which it had been submitted the last 250 years, comparing its history with that of the white race in the much longer span of the world's history. He especially took up the influence that had been exerted since the war by the operation of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution. He drew some pictures of a political future, in which the colored race, through the training and uplifting that shall come, shall not be excluded from politics, but shall be sought because of the political divisions which are bound to arise in the South.

But the chief emphasis has been put on other matters. The remarkable progress and success of Tuskegee in its chosen line of work has been shown in many ways, in none perhaps more remarkably than in the address of President Washington in the evening session. Twenty-five years ago the institute was begun through the grant by the State of Alabama of $2,000 annually, with thirty pupils in a rented shanty church and one teacher. There are now material resources amounting to $2,100,000, 1,500 pupils, 83 buildings, large and small, with an endowment fund of $1,200,000 and an annual cost of operation amounting to $182,000.

The meaning of the institution, as was emphasized by President Washington is that his race intends to remain in this country and in the black belt of the South. Its mission is to promote ownership of land and homes, craftsmanship and skill, and high standards of living. But most of all it is to put a new spirit into his people, to make them feel that they are among friends, that they can make progress and fulfill their mission in this Republic.

This was the burden of most of the speeches of the day. It was the burden of President Eliot's speech, of Mr. Ogden's address, that was to be delivered in the morning, but was postponed until evening, and of Seth Low's address. James C. Napier, a savings bank President of Nashville, spoke on the business developments of the negro. A noteworthy showing of the affiliated work was made by William J. Edwards, a graduate of Tuskegee and now President of Snowhill Institute, Alabama.

A LYNCHING AT BARNARD.

The Freshman Spirit Is Legally and Properly Curbed.

With all roughness abolished at Barnard by order of the Student Council, and the sophomores longing for an opportunity to teach the freshmen their proper sphere, the scheme was hit on yesterday of haling the 1909 "babies" to court. Accordingly at noon sharp yesterday a green baby doll, the effigy of 1909, robed in white clothes and freshman banner, was dragged into court after much resistance and arraigned before Mary Marshall, C. J.

The freshman was indicted on three counts—insubordination, criminal conspiracy with the class of 1907, and audacious and flagrant presumption in attempting to become the equal of 1908. Helen Loeb, prosecuting attorney, pressed the case successfully, obtaining a verdict of guilty in exactly two and one-half minutes.

The prisoner accepted the sentence impassively, and after being marched through the college as a warning, was unceremoniously lynched.

OPERA AT THE ARTS CLUB.

"The Daughters of Egypt" Is Produced in Part.

Excerpts from "The Daughters of Egypt," a romantic comic opera, the book and lyrics by Eden E. Greville, music by Walter Pulitzer, were sung last night at the National Arts Club, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street.

Mr. Pulitzer, the composer, is a son of Albert Pulitzer, founder of The New York American, and a nephew of Joseph Pulitzer of The New York World. He is already moderately well known as an author.

Mr. Greville comes from London, where he was known as a dramatic critic and playwright, and as one of the founders of the Independent Theatre. In all, twelve numbers from the opera were sung, and some incidental dances were played.

The singers were Miss Alice Clark, soprano; Miss Florence Edney, mezzo-soprano; Mr. T. Kirby Cahill, tenor, and Mr. Pierre Lasalle, bass. Miss Mae Murray played the piano accompaniments and the incidental dances.

MISS BINGHAM IS WILLING.

Actress Has Rival for President of American Playgoers.

More trouble is brewing in the American Playgoers, which now has 300 members. Only a little while ago there were turmoil and accusations and counter-accusations as to who was the real dyed-in-the-wool father or mother of the club. The headliners in that dispute were Miss Bingham, Miss Isabelle Evesson, and a Brooklyn man. Miss Bingham's friends considered that she scored a great triumph in that encounter.

Whether or not Miss Bingham was the originator, it certainly grew when she became President of it a month or so ago. Its meetings were unnoted and uncertain; now they take place semi-monthly in the ballroom of the Hotel Astor. Now is coming on an election. On April 23 a new set of officers is to be elected. Three or four political parties have already developed, and more are expected. Fights are on about almost all of the offices. Opposing bosses are caucusing to swap office for office. Some of the tickets now proposed show a mixture of candidates that is distressing quiet members who are looking for peace.

The big fight is over the Presidency now held by Miss Bingham. She has tasted the sweets of office but a month or so, and does not dislike them. Some members of the club went for President Mrs. Doré Lyon, who lives at 22 East Thirty-first Street.

Miss Bingham, however, is not one of these.

"Politics?" she said last night at Proctor's Theatre. "I know of no politics. There is to be an election, and I have no doubt that practically all of the old officers will be re-elected. Why shouldn't they? The club has grown wonderfully; things have gone along smoothly. Oh, yes, I'm President. Politics? Dear me, no; that is a mistake.

Some of the members of the club have received this printed notice:

> A special letter is being sent out by those who wish to secure the unanimous re-election of the present board. Your name has been included therein, as time was pressing and we felt sure that you would serve us as you have the true interests of the club at heart. Please let us know at once if you are with us. Yours fraternally,
> AMELIA BINGHAM,
> President American Playgoers.

"Yes, I know Mrs. Lyon," answered Miss Bingham at the mention of the name of her reputed rival. "She is a very smart and a very capable woman. I think she would do first rate as First Vice President, to serve whenever I am away. You know, we've got to have somebody to take my place. At present she is the head of the Governing Board. I think she'd do very well as First Vice President."

Miss Bingham spoke of Mrs. Lyon's literary works. She said Mrs. Lyon had written a few things, she didn't quite know what. Asked if Mrs. Lyon was a player of plays or a writer of them, she answered:

"She was never on the stage. I think she has written one or two little things; the kind that is presented by the Century Club, you know. On Broadway? Oh, no, no; not on Broadway."

Miss Bingham smiled.

"As for me," continued Miss Bingham, "I have not dabbled in politics. There may be several cliques, you know, who are trying to figure who are to be the officers. There are people who have time for such things as that. But not I. All I know is that I have received three different tickets from as many different cliques, and my name stood at the head of them all."

Mrs. Lyon was reported out of the city last night.

COUNT WARD HERE,

But Says He Will Not Start Suit Against Col. Mann.

Reginald Henshaw Ward, Papal Count, who figured prominently in the evidence taken in The Town Topics libel case, arrived here from Europe on the Cunard liner Carmania yesterday. He said he did not come here to testify against Col. Mann, but to look after his mining properties in Utah. He added, however, that if he was called upon to testify in regard to his contribution of mining stock to Col. Mann, he would tell all he knew about it, but he wanted it understood that he did not seek revenge on Col. Mann.

Count Ward is about fifty years old, has gray hair, a gray mustache, and a military bearing. As he stepped to the gangplank he was met by reporters who questioned him as to his connection with The Town Topics case. One of the reporters said the statement had been made at the trial that Count Ward had given to Col. Mann the mining stock so that Town Topics would say pleasant things about the Count.

"Well," said the Count, "it is true that it is pleasant to have pleasant things said about one, but there was no need for me to have Town Topics boom my social aspirations, if I had any, for my people have always been eminent among the best families in America. One of my ancestors, Arthur B. Ward, was a Revolutionary officer, and my uncle, David Henshaw, was Secretary of the Navy."

"Why, then," continued the reporter, "did you give Col. Mann those shares of Rico stock?"

"You must remember," answered the Count, "that those shares were only worth 25 cents, and not even that until the syndicate members had been paid."

"Did you consider the contribution an advertising venture?" was the next question, and the Count answered emphatically: "No."

"Then," suggested one of the reporters, "why did you contribute to the support of Town Topics?"

"For the same reason that others did," replied the Count. "So that that scurrilous sheet would stay where it belonged.

"I feel bitter against nobody," added the Count. "I have seen fit to keep on friendly terms with many persons. I shall start no libel suits against Col. Mann or any one else. I have no fear of any evidence that Mann can bring against me.

"I am going to Utah to see about some mining interests. I don't know much about this case, except what I have read in the newspapers, but though I am here principally on business, I will tell all I know, if asked."

The Count left the pier with his lawyer, Walter C. Shoup. He will remain in Manhattan for a day or two and then go to Boston. From Boston he will go to Utah. He expects to return to England in May.

When told of the arrival of Count Ward, Mr. Jerome said yesterday that he knew of no reason why the Count should be called as a witness in the trial of Col. Mann on the perjury charge.

PLUMBER HAS DOUBTS ABOUT THAT $16,000,000

He'll Take It If It Comes, but Just Now He's Busy.

TALE ABOUT A RICH UNCLE

Gesheidt's Friend Says He's the Heir, but the Plumber'll Wait Till the Ship Comes In.

"For the last time, will you accept that $16,000,000?"

There was something plaintive in the way "Jake" Schenk said it—as one aggrieved at the obstinacy of a friend. "Jake" is a plumber employed by Louis Bernhardt Gesheidt of 695 Third Avenue.

"You ought to take the money, Louis," "Jake" went on, addressing Gesheidt, who was kneeling with a soldering bolt over an iron gate he was making in his workshop. "If only for the sake of your friends, you—"

"Go away! I'm busy!" Gesheidt roared, straightening up and brandishing the soldering bolt. "Don't you know I gotter get this thing fixed before 5 o'clock, an' you come around askin' me when I'm going to get that $16,000,000? Don't bother me. Throw over that tunkin, an' I'll want that wrench in a minnit."

"Jake" Schenk turned away with a sigh and met a reporter, who had come to address a similar question to Gesheidt.

"Is it true that a vast fortune has been left you and you refuse to take it?" said the reporter.

"If you folks come botherin' me any more about that sixteen million, I'll never get this gate done," responded the plumber, irritably.

But when it was pointed out that such an aversion to money required explanation Gesheidt became interested.

"Last month," said he, "I got a letter from some lawyers downtown asking me to come and see them, as they had something of importance to say to me."

He produced the letter. It purported to be from Gainsburg & Solomon of 229 Broadway.

"I went down two or three days later," continued the plumber, "thinking I'd see what was doing. They said that a man had died at Putnok, Hungary—an uncle of mine—and had left all his money to his sister's son, now in America—that's me.

"'All right,' I said, 'where's the money?'

"They said some things had to be fixed up first. So I come away and told the lawyers to let me know when they was done fiddlin' about the business. Jake, gimme that tunkin."

Gesheidt appeared to have lost all interest in the subject.

"I think it's a steer anyway," said he, applying a red-hot bolt to the solder, "and if it's my money it'll come to me in due time. F'r the present"—he blew the solder fumes away from his face—"I'm busy."

A friend of Gesheidt, one William Freistadtl of 136 Maujer Street, Williamsburg, says he got a letter from friends in Hungary who also knew the Gesheidt family. The friends asked casually if Freistadtl knew where Gesheidt was, as everybody was asking what had become of him. His uncle mentioned as Vesuti Allomas, had died and left everything to Louis.

Gesheidt, whose mother died when he was born, left Hungary when a boy, and ultimately landed on Third Avenue, where he set up a plumber shop.

When Freistadtl got the letter naming Gescheidt as a millionaire he told him about it. Gescheidt just laughed. Then Freistadtl says he put the matter in the hands of lawyers in the hope that he would make a little commission on the plumber's fortune when it was finally forced upon him.

Gainsburg & Solomon, the lawyers, said yesterday that they only represented Freistadtl in the matter. Freistadtl says he knows Gescheidt to be the heir to the estates, but Gescheidt can't see why he should get the money, as he was the youngest of seven children.

"They are all scattered now," he said, "but I am sure they are alive. My father married again after my mother died. My brothers and sisters are doing well. One is a medical man, another is in the Stock Exchange over there. My mother had several wealthy brothers, but, as I never saw my mother, and my father married again, I do not know anything about them. Anyhow, I'll wait till the ship comes in; then I'll see what is in the cargo."

Freistadtl says he has written to Hungary for further information. Until a reply comes Louis Bernhardt Gescheidt refuses to calculate on more than $16 a week for his wife and two children, who live at 622 Broadway, Brooklyn.

E. C. SWIFT DEAD.

Chicago Packer, Stricken with Pneumonia, Dies in Boston.

BOSTON, Thursday, April 5.—E. C. Swift of the Chicago firm of Swift & Co., meat packers, who has been ill at the Quincy House for several days, died this morning soon after midnight of pneumonia. Up to yesterday, when the crisis in the disease was reached, his condition had been satisfactory to his physician.

Yesterday afternoon there came a sudden change, and the patient failed gradually. Mrs. Clarence Moore, a daughter of Mr. Swift was with her father.

Edwin C. Swift, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Swift & Co. of Chicago, with his brother, Gustavus F. Swift, built up the enormous packing enterprise from absolutely nothing. Born near Cape Cod, they started in life as drovers, and for many years were in a very small way of business.

They naturally turned their attention to Chicago as the centre of the cattle trade, but it was not until they took up the idea of shipping dressed meats in special refrigerator cars that they began to come to the front.

The railroads, when the Swifts proposed the plan to them, were by no means favorably impressed, and they were obliged to build their own cars for the carrying out of their idea. The prejudice of local butchers had to be overcome, buyers had to be convinced that frozen meat was as wholesome as fresh, and branches had to be established in important centres.

By 1880, however, the battle was won, and the Swifts found they had not only revolutionized the packing trade, but had devised an element of immense importance in the economic development of the country, the private car.

From this time on the house of Swift & Co., organized in 1885, has steadily developed. It is one of the "Big Six," as the leading packing houses of Chicago are called.

It shares with Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. the control of the National Packing Company, which, incorporated in 1903, completed what is commonly known as the "Beef Trust" by extinguishing ten independent packing concerns and assuring the co-operation of the houses that owned it.

Mr. Swift lived for many years in Boston, and during the lifetime of his brother, Gustavus F. Swift, was First Vice President of Swift & Co. Gustavus died in 1903, and was succeeded as President of the company by his son, Louis F. Swift.

Edwin C. Swift then took the position of Chairman of the Board of Directors. During the recent investigations into alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law he had not come prominently to the front, and when last July seven officials of Swift & Co. were indicted, he was not attacked.

SHE WAS ALWAYS TOO LATE.

But Miss Nickerson Will Get That Lost Parent Clue Yet.

Asked is "the strange story" true credited to her in a newspaper yesterday about having been cruelly torn from the bosom of her family while yet a babe and placed in a "fashionable Boston nursery" and under the care of an ogreish nurse, who kept from her the secret of her parentage, Miss Grace Nickerson, at present a pianist and accompanist having a studio in a Broadway office building, looked up, and, with tears in her eyes and a sob in her soprano voice, answered:

"Yes, it is only too true."

Upon the door of her studio yesterday afternoon was a slip of paper which read: "Call at the office of Prof. Reeves, Room 400." "Prof." Reeves teaches dramatic art and vaudeville dances, and sketches in the same building. Miss Nickerson was found there hard at work. She is a blonde young woman, and her account places her age at something more than twenty-four years.

"I knew the nurse's name was Saunders," said Miss Nickerson, "and often I asked her who my parents were. Not a word would she say about them. And then one day a young couple named Nickerson, the husband being a photographer, adopted me. I have been working my way over the country, blindly hoping that some day I should come across a clue that would lead me to my loved parents, whom I have never seen. Once—"

Here Miss Grace Nickerson halted. But with an effort she controlled herself and went on:

"While in New York several years ago I found an old Boston directory. I saw the name Saunders. I hurried to that address, but I was too late. Tenants in the house informed me that she had moved to St. John, New Brunswick. And right there is where the paper to-day makes a great mistake," said Miss Grace Nickerson sternly. "It says I went to St. John, and that the old nurse told me I could not find out the secret for all the money in the world. I didn't go to that place.

"But two years ago I did receive a telegram from a man who signed himself John Ormsbee and who was stopping in the St. Nicholas Hotel in Boston. He asked me to visit him, for he had something interesting to tell me about my family connections. When I got there he was on his deathbed. He could not speak, and died with my secret in his heart. Once more I had been too late."

Miss Nickerson looked sadly out of the window. Presently she shook herself, looked up brightly, and said optimistically:

"Some day I'll not be too late. I'll get a clue some day, some day."

Miss Nickerson has been "on the road" with several companies—theatrical companies—she said.

GEN. BLANCO IS DEAD.

MADRID, April 4.—Gen. Blanco died this morning.

Gen. Blanco was the last Spanish Captain General of Cuba. In 1897 he was sent to the island to succeed Gen. Weyler, whose "reconcentrado" policy had been denounced throughout the civilized world. Blanco endeavored to introduce a conciliatory policy, but he met with little success. The Cubans refused to trust him, and the Spaniards carried out his orders in only a half-hearted way.

Blanco was in Havana when the Spanish-American war began. He was nominally in charge of the defense of Cuba, but it is understood that from the first he had little hope of opposing the Americans successfully. He returned to Spain at the conclusion of the war and had since then held no public office.

Ramon Blanco y Arenas, Marquis de Pena Plata, was born at Bilbao in 1832. He fought in the Carlist war, served in Cuba during the rebellion of 1868-78, and was Captain General of the island 1880-81. He was Captain General of Catalonia from 1877 to 1879, in 1882, and from 1887 to 1893. In 1894 he was appointed Governor General of the Philippine Islands, succeeding Capt. Gen. Despujol. In the Philippines he narrowly escaped assassination, and when, shortly after the attempt on his life, the rebellion started he was recalled and was appointed Chief of the Military Household of the Queen Regent at Madrid.

VENTURES OF THE LADY AND THE COWBOY COUNT

HOW MISS PAGE LOST $16,000

Declares She Was Victimized by the Nephew of a Prince—He Says He's Plain Mr. Sackey.

Miss Claire E. Page of 244 West Fifty-sixth Street, appeared in the West Side Police Court yesterday against a man whom she declared to be a Count and the nephew of "Prince de Martine, Master of Ceremonies to the Khédive of Egypt," and the son of a Bey of Egypt. The defendant repudiated the title, declaring that he was just plain Mr. Sackey—Mr. Aribert Sackey of 237 West 109th Street.

Mr. Sackey was accused of many things by Miss Page before he was locked up in default of $1,500 bail, pending the filing of briefs and a further hearing on Sunday, but the specific charge seemed to be the larceny of a Gobelin tapestry of the sixteenth century, and which Magistrate Wahle, to the surprise of the complainant, declared to be worth $3,000, if as represented. Miss Page also declared that Sackey owed her at least $16,000, money loaned and expenses.

Miss Page said she met the "Count" at the Waldorf-Astoria more than a year ago. She declared that within six weeks he had borrowed $600 from her. He then persuaded her to enter into a scheme with him to ship cattle to Egypt. She said he showed contracts indicating that he had the exclusive right to ship cattle there.

The tapestry was mentioned at this point. Miss Page said she purchased it in Seville, Spain. It was 16 by 20 feet and represented St. John the Divine. She said she paid $800 for it.

Miss Page said she had loaned so much to Sackey that she was short of money. Sackey introduced her to a St. Louis art dealer, and she gave the "Count" $100 to go to St. Louis to dispose of the tapestry. She had to send him $90 in the week he was there, and then $50 to get back. He then pawned the art treasure for $150 instead of selling it, and failed to return the amount, she declared.

Miss Page and the "Count" were then working on the Egyptian cattle deal. Miss Page exhibited in court three notes for $25,000 which Sackey had given to her, and against which she said she had secured a judgment for $10,000 last week.

When Sackey returned from St. Louis she said he went to Egypt, and she paid his expenses as well as those of a friend. She also sent him on receipt of several cablegrams over $500. The cablegrams were in cipher. They read:

"Money robbed mute cabled pasha tiptop." This was sent from Naples, and, translated, reads:

"Money robbed, everything in good shape. Wire money immediately."

The other reads:

"Hungry cable 2 Wednesday boat. Miss Honey."

The translation reads:

"I need money. Cable 200 Wednesday. I love you desperately."

He got the money.

Sackey was then called to the stand.

"The cattle deal was all right," he said. "I was once a cowboy in the West, and a multi-millionaire almost closed a deal with me for over $1,000,000. This woman broke it up. Judge, I am being made a fool of. I was in your court a year ago on the charge of not paying a board bill. It was not my bill, but a bill of a friend who was in straits, and I said I would take the blame."

"I am going to tell you the truth now," Sackey went on. "I have an income from Europe, and from a millionaire in Canada. I put $4,000 in this deal myself, but have lost it all because of this woman. I acknowledge I got $5,000 from Miss Page, and that she paid my board bills. I am not a Count; I am only Mr. Sackey. I gave Miss Page back $185 after I returned from Egypt, and her tapestry is now in New York. She knew I had pawned it."

THE SPOILERS

By REX E. BEACH.

This is a story written by a strong man, of a strong man, for strong and grown up men to read. It is a tale such as is told by a man perhaps once in a lifetime—a tale of impetuous emotion, of brute strength and courage, of swift and passionate love and hate—a tale which tells itself without fine words—vigorous, forceful, mighty. There is no room for the violet conventions of society in that robust land where

"Never a law of God or man runs north of Fifty-three."

The only law is the law of possession, of individual conscience, and of hunger—the hunger for gold digged out of the hills, and the blinding hunger of man for woman and for woman's love. It is a story of to-day, but it goes back to the root of things, and is true of all men and all real women since time began.

TURF STARS GALLOPED ON TRAINING TRACKS

MODERATE WORK THE RULE

Delhi, Hamburg Belle, Cairngorm, Tradition, and Blandy Out at Sheepshead Bay.

The race tracks of Long Island were dry to the point of dustiness on the surface yesterday, and though still damp below, offered every chance for the trainers, who are supposed to be hurrying preparations for the Aqueduct and Jamaica meetings. There was nothing suggestive of any great hurry on the Sheepshead Bay and Gravesend courses, however, the more active place being Sheepshead Bay, where the gallops were only moderate, though the horses that were out in the morning represented about the best quality of the American turf.

The most distinguished individual horse that appeared for exercise came out in one of Trainer James Rowe's late sets, this being the turf champion Sysonby, big and strong after his Winter's rest, but so far showing no real impression of Spring training. Sysonby only cantered, but covered a half mile at a two-minute pace. That he will be seen in a race before late in June or early in July seems improbable, as it is about settled that Sysonby is to have his own time in which to be fitted.

Delhi, Wild Mint, and Von Tromp, also of the Keene stable, were galloped half miles only a shade better than half speed. Four three-year-olds from the Keene stable—Bohemian and the Commando colts, Oyama, Nogi and Kuroki, also breezed, Kuroki doing a half-mile gallop in 0:57¾, and the others moving just better than a two-minute pace, all going with great ease and finishing fresh and strong.

The next lot of notable horses at Sheepshead appeared in the Sydney Paget string, trained by A. J. Joyner, with Cairngorm, Hamburg Belle, and Tradition as the stars of the stable. The best move by any of these was a half mile breezing style by Cairngorm, he finishing in 0:56, which time Watergrass duplicated. Tradition and Hamburg Belle had easy gallops. August Belmont's string, also trained by Mr. Joyner, showed another set of well-known horses, with Blandy, the eldest, leading the lot. He finished in a gallop, covering the last half mile in 0:53½. Blandy, winner of the Inaugural, at Belmont Park last season, looks to be preparing to repeat that feat, and though he might be ready much earlier, horsemen have picked Belmont Park as the place of Blandy's first appearance this season.

The Belmont three-year-olds, Bridgeman, Don Diego, and the filly Tiptoe, had moderate canters. The Keene, Paget, and Belmont two-year-olds were represented in the morning work, but took only slow gallops.

At the Gravesend track the only event out of the ordinary was when the three-year-old filly Whimsical bolted with a light exercise boy and galloped a mile. She was pulled up unhurt. The fastest move of the morning at the Brooklyn track was made by Migraine, a half mile in clever style in 0:49¾, the horse showing to be about ready to run whenever called on. The best of the other work was by horses of the selling class, Wizard, Little Flea, and Masaniello doing six furlongs in 1:19.

SCRATCHES SPOIL RACE.

Three Horses Start in Benning's Chief Event—Three Wins for Miller.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4.—This was an ideal Spring day for the racing at Benning. The crowd, attracted by the beautiful weather and the promise of fine sport, was large and enthusiastic. Miller made another good record, riding three winners.

The sixth race gave promise of being the event of the day, but it was narrowed down by scratches to a three-horse affair. It was a handicap, at a mile, with some of the best horses at the track entered. With the scratching of Belsnicker, Workman, and Northville the race seemed to be between Bobbie Kean and Sailor Boy. The latter was made the favorite, the idea being that Bobbie Kean could not give him ten pounds and a beating. The two were nearly even favorites until near post time, when Sailor Boy was made the favorite by two points. The race was Bobbie Kean's all the way.

Hyperion, always a favorite, captured the first race rather easily. Town Topics had little difficulty in landing the second race. Al Powell, an odds-on favorite, led the field in the fourth race. Orphan Lad, which ran an excellent race, closed fast in the stretch, but was only good enough to get the place from Mode. Paeon won the fifth race as he pleased. Miller took him out in front and gave the others a beating they will remember. Zany, which has been placed several times, landed second money again, with the strongly touted Kuro third. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; six and one-half furlongs, Columbia course. Hyperion, 103 pounds, (T. Burns,) 2 to 1 and 4 to 5, won; Suffice, 101, (C. Morris,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; The Veiled Lady, 101, (McDaniel,) 20 to 1, third. Time—1:24. John F. Ahearn, Echodale, Plantagenet, Caronal, Saladin, Weirdsome, Monte Carlo, and Palora also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Maiden two-year-olds; four and one-half furlongs, old course. Town Topics, 104 pounds, (Miller,) 4 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Mary Custis, 104, (T. Burns,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Jobstown, 104, (Diggins,) 3 to 1, third. Time—0:58 1-5. Rye Boy, Brittanby, Jarvis Lane, Tileing, Miss Dixon, Shackle, Norwina, and Lucy Strome also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Jack McKeon, 108 pounds, (Robbins,) 8 to 1 and 2½ to 1, won; Judge White, 88, (Miller,) 11 to 5 and 9 to 10, second; Dekaber, 110, (T. Burns,) 11 to 5, third. Time—1:30 3-5. Foxy, Australina, Pleasant Days, Vagabond, and Henry Waring also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Selling, two-year-olds; four and one-half furlongs, old course.—Al Powell, 107 pounds, (Shaw,) 2 to 5 and out, won; Orphan Lad, 98, (Miller,) 6 to 1 and 6 to 5, second; Mode, 87, (Chandler,) 5 to 1, third. Time—0:58. Estelle H. Ransom and Finance also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Maiden three-year-olds and upward; one mile, Columbia course. Paeon, 100 pounds, (Miller,) even and out, won; Zany, 110, (Robbins,) 3 to 1 and 4 to 5, second; Kuro, 100, (Truebel,) 5 to 1, third. Time—1:44 1-5. Salt and Pepper, Tarlac, Thorium, Indra, and Elton Weaver also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; one mile, Columbia course. Bobbie Kean, 118 pounds, (Miller,) 9 to 5 and out, won; Sailor Boy, 104, (Burns,) 7 to 5 and out, second; Phoebus, 90, (J. Johnson,) 11 to 5, third. Time—1:43 1-5.

COLUMBIA WINS AT BASEBALL

Defeats Pratt Institute Team of Brooklyn by Score of 12 to 3.

In the opening game of the season Columbia's 'Varsity baseball team defeated the nine of Pratt Institute of Brooklyn yesterday, 12 runs to 3. Coach Lauder gave all the candidates for the team a chance in the field, and as a result the Blue and White combination was mainly composed of new and untried material and freshmen. Of the 12 runs made, the majority were unearned, and due to Pratt's poor pitching and errors. The score:

NINTH INNING SAVES GIANTS.

Score One Run and Defeat the Columbus Team by 2 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4.—Columbus fought so well against the New York Giants this afternoon that the making of the second and winning run for the champions had to be put off until the ninth inning. Then Gilbert broke up the game by a hot single to left, after Devlin had doubled to right centre. The game bubbled over with close plays. Runners of each team were out repeatedly at first on close decisions. Devlin and Pickering were nipped at the plate when they tried to score on taps to second.

"Christy" Mathewson, using his slow drop ball, had the Columbus team at his mercy for the first three innings. Pickering opened the fourth with a double past Donlin, and advanced to third on Friel's sacrifice. Coulter hit to Gilbert, who snapped the ball back to the plate to get Pickering. So Mathewson got out of his one hole. Taylor finished up.

To-night the New York party left for Wheeling for a game to-morrow. McGraw is confident that his team will get to hitting. The score:

Greater New Yorks Without a Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4.—The Greater New Yorks did not play a game to-day, but were out for light practice. A game was to have been played with the Georgia "Tech" College team, but owing to an error of Griffith's there was a conflict in the schedule, so the visitors will have another day's rest.

On Saturday, against Atlanta, Griffith will pitch and McGuire catch, and this means that the oldest battery in the business will work out before the Atlanta "fans."

The declarations were: Sysonby, 134 pounds; Delhi, 130; Hamburg Belle, 125; Cairngorm, 121; Tradition, 119; Lady Amelia, 118; Prince Hamburg, 118; Blandy, 116; Aaron J., 110; Merry Lark, 109; Aeronaut, 107; Mount Henry, 103; Disobedient, 98; Sprakers, 97; Aucassin, 95; Israfel, 94; Belle of Pequest, 92, and Inquisitor, 89.

The declarations reduce the original field of sixty-five entries to forty-seven horses eligible at present, with Hermis successor to Sysonby as top weight. That Hermis will be ready to race on April 16 is regarded as improbable. The declarations make Roseben, the next horse in the weights, a stronger favorite than ever before.

Cure Defeats Daly and Mullen.

Lewis Cure, the French billiardist, won both his games at Daly's Billiard Academy yesterday, playing eighteen-inch balk-line, two counts in balk. In the afternoon he beat Maurice Daly rather handily, Daly failing to get the balls rolling at any time until the last inning, when he put on a well played 58. The game ended with the totals, 300 to 196. The points were scored as follows:

Cure—29 1 83 0 8 12 51 15 0 1 86 2 67. Total, 300; average, 21 6-14.

In the evening the Frenchman defeated Mart Mullen about as easily as he did Daly. His average was a bit better than in the afternoon, though he failed to equal his high run of 83. The thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth innings, when he put on 176 points, brought his figures up well. The totals were 400 to 251. Cure averaged 23 9-17 and Mullen 13 10-17.

GLIDDEN AUTO CUP A TROUBLESOME TROPHY

Peculiar Conditions Prevent Equitable Rules for Classes.

Manufacturers' Association Adopts More Lenient Policy Regarding Motor Shows.

Evidences that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction over the conditions governing the award of the Glidden trophy offered for the annual American Automobile Association tour were apparent yesterday at the regular meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, held at 7 East Forty-second Street. The Contest Committee that had been invited by the American Automobile Association to suggest plans for the conduct of the tour this year reported that it was impossible to formulate rules that would be equitable in making an award to one car selected from a large number combining elements of various construction, weight, power, speed, seating capacity, and price.

In a purely speed contest, this might be possible, because in that case the cars are built solely for speed. In the Glidden Cup tour, however, a large number of things are to be taken into consideration. The fact that a small two cycle car might win the trophy against well-built touring cars of higher horse power and heavier mechanical construction is regarded by the builders and owners of the latter cars as an injustice. The large cars are not only built for endurance, but for comfort, and while a small runabout might show equal serviceability, its occupants would get less comfort in a long tour. Moreover, the difference in points of serviceability might be so slight that the impression conveyed by the victory would not be an absolutely correct one.

It has been suggested that the cars be classified and awards offered on this basis. This would do very well if the Glidden Cup were out of the way, but under the terms of the deed of gift the cup must be awarded, thus limiting the awards to a single prize. Although certificates for class winners might be given, the same difficulty would occur in determining which of the leaders should get the Glidden Cup. The Contest Committee, therefore, declined to draw up any suggestions, and, notwithstanding the fact that the members met with the officers of the American Automobile Association, no satisfactory solution was reached. The new Touring Committee of the American Automobile Association, which will meet in a short time, will have the problem to meet.

The Executive Committee adopted a more lenient policy in respect to automobile shows that do not have the sanction of the association. There is nothing to prevent dealers and agents from entering shows not expressly sanctioned, but in many cities manufacturers maintain branch houses instead of agents. When such is the case, it was voted that the manufacturers might enter local shows through these branch houses and incur no penalty.

Competitions, whether speed, touring, or special tests that have the sanction of the American Automobile Association will be recommended to the manufacturers, but no approval will be given to others.

President E. H. Cutler of Springfield, Mass., presided at yesterday's meeting, and those present were S. T. Davis, Jr., Windsor T. White, Charles Clifton, S. D. Waldon, W. R. Innis, C. C. Hildebrand, M. J. Budlong, Albert L. Pope, L. H. Kittridge, and S. A. Miles.

Owner of Two Derby Winners Dead.

English turfmen are lamenting the death of John Russell Gubbins of Bruee, County Limerick, Ireland, which occurred recently. He was 67 years old, and ten years ago was one of the most prominent horse owners in Great Britain. He was the owner of Galtee More, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, St. Leger, and the Derby in 1897, and Ard Patrick, a half-brother to Galtee More, which won the Derby in 1902.

Galtee More wound up a successful two-year-old career by beating Lord Rosebery's Velasquez, which had been undefeated, and as a three-year-old, after winning the triple event—Two Thousand Guineas, St. Leger, and the Derby—he was sold to the Russian Government for 20,000 guineas. In his racing career in England Galtee More won ten races out of thirteen, worth £27,019. Ard Patrick was only moderately successful as a two-year-old and early in his three-year-old form did not give any evidence of being a horse of very much quality. He finished third to Sceptre in the Two Thousand Guineas, and a fortnight later lost the Newmarket Stakes. Next came the Derby, which Ard Patrick won. The following Spring he won the Prince of Wales Stakes, and afterward was sold to the German Government for £20,000. He won six races out of eleven in England, the value of which was £27,960.

Four Racing Yachts for New York.

B. B. Crowninshield announces that he is building four yachts for racing in New York waters this season. Two are for one member of the New York Yacht Club. One is to rate just under forty feet and to race Charles Lane Poor's Mira and H. Mason Raborg's Irondequoit, and the other is to rate in the twenty-two-foot class, to compete against the general class on the Sound. A third boat is for a prominent member of the American Yacht Club, and will be a twenty-one-foot water-line raceabout to contest in the regular Sound class, while the fourth is a twenty-two-foot water-line keel cruiser for a Detroit yachtsman who is to race from New Rochelle in the cruising races, and probably in the handicap class as well.

Canada After Lipton's Lake Cup.

CHICAGO, April 4.—All doubts as to the entry of a Canadian boat in the next Lipton Cup races were removed yesterday, when E. S. Balcom of the Columbia Yacht Club returned from Hamilton, Ont., with a signed contract from J. H. Fearnside of that city to build a twenty-one-footers and sail it in the series.

The deal is considered the most important in yachting for some years, as it gives the Lipton races international interest. Mr. Fearnside is a member of the Royal Hamilton, Royal Victoria, and Royal Canadian Yacht Clubs. The boat is to be a fin-keel craft, and is to be finished on June 1.

Four Oaklawn Records Broken.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 4.—Four track records were broken at Oaklawn to-day. De Oro brought the time for three and one-half furlongs down to 0:42, while Embarrassment and H. L. Frank, respectively, clipped two-fifths of a second off the record for one mile and an eighth, and six furlongs. All Black reduced the five furlongs track record to 1:00 3-5.

IN PLACE OF OLD PIMLICO,

Belmont Interests in Maryland Jockey Club to Build New Race Track.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 4.—The Belmont interests associated with the managers of the Maryland Jockey Club have practically consummated a deal which will result in the building of a model racing plant at Halethorpe, which is about eight miles from Baltimore and equally accessible from Baltimore and Washington, by both the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroad. The lease of the famous old Pimlico track will expire in two years, and the new track will be ready for use at that time. It is contemplated to use the track for not only Baltimore, but Washington as well. There is now a bill pending in Congress to abolish racing in the District of Columbia, and whatever its fate the movement to that end is constantly being brought up in Congress and always growing stronger, so that it is believed that sooner or later racing will be abolished at the National capital.

"Billy" Riggs to-day announced that the option had been secured on a large tract of land admirably adapted to the purpose, and located so that both railroad lines will pass at opposite sides. Besides, at the recent session of the Maryland Legislature a bill was passed authorizing the building of a trolley road from Baltimore to Halethorpe.
